Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court collided again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet Constitutional requirement of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO—Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $325,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Ogilvie's Help Asked

PEORIA The Rev. Jesse Jackson, director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket, said Monday a "breakdown of law and order" exists in Cairo and urged Governor Ogilvie to join him in the troubled city.

In Peoria on a tour of poverty areas, Reverend Jackson sent a telegram to Ogilvie saying, "A national emergency exists in Cairo, to which you as governor in this state should respond."

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Nixon Asks Air Bill

WASHINGTON—President Nixon yesterday asked Congress to pass a $5 billion program of airport and airway improvement for the next 10 years that would be financed by a series of taxes on those who use the facilities.

Nixon asked for a new $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights starting in the United States, an increase from 5 to 8 per cent in the tax on domestic airline tickets, and a new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

ARTIST KARSTEN Topelmann displays one of his favorite oil and water color painter may be viewed at a current showing in the Schaumburg Township Library.

Painting Is His Art

by SHERI DILL

One cannot walk into the home of painter Karsten Topelmann without immediately sensing the kind of man he is. Bright orange drapes, flowers blooming in antique bird cages, the odor of garlic bread baking in the kitchen, painstakingly kept antique furniture, and three delightful children begging in German to go swimming, all depict Topelmann as a man contented with life and its pleasures.

So does his art. "In today's time of unrest, everyone needs a quiet place to get away from the turmoil. This is what I think a picture should represent," Topelmann says.

Topelmann has a one-man art show now on display at the Schaumburg Township Library. It will continue through June.

BORN IN 1928, HE attended school in Munich, and prepared for entrance into the Academy of Art there by studying under Prof. F. H. Ehrmcke, one of Germany's top commercial artists. In 1955, Topelmann moved to the United States and continued his work with oils and water colors.

He likes water color best. "Water color is closer to the artist's interpretation of nature and his feeling for the things he sees. Some artists use water color as a stepping stone to oils. I think it is more valuable to the viewer if he can understand the concentration that goes into it."

Topelmann's paintings are primarily landscapes and still life studies.

"I LIKE TO CREATE mood visually through a recognizable scene," he says. "I want all elements of the picture to be positive with good color. Then it is happy."

Topelmann says he chooses one focal point for the picture and the others act as background "music" for a central theme. "I want the eye to rest in a certain area and then wander. The viewer should be drawn into a picture which is more than a spectacle of color."

"Many painters say they are making social comment on the unrest of society," he says. "I'm of the opinion we need a counterpart to this. I like to give a feeling of relaxation and heartwarming."

Topelmann feels he could do work that falls into the realm of modern art "without much trouble."

"IT'S ALMOST TOO EASY even though it's supposed to have some kind of theory behind it. Without the observation of nature, you lose something. It's a tad to look for forms and excitement, but I wouldn't be satisfied that I had done anything worthwhile."

When asked to give advice on how to start painting to a man he met at one of his art shows, Topelmann told the man to buy five tubes of paint and a canvas, and figure out a way to get the paint on the canvas in some way that had not been done. "Then make up some explanation of why you did it that way, and you'll be a recognized artist overnight. He knew I was kidding of course."

THOUGH HE WORKS with water color and oil, Topelmann says the two have to be treated differently. "Water color provides an outlet for capturing mood. Oil provides a more refined version of a mood or scene."

"People respond more to oils than water color. It's regarded as more valuable so it's demanded more," he said.

Topelmann usually works on his oils in the mornings before he goes to his "chore," his job as a package designer at Container Corporation. He works on several at a time so he can stop and think about them in between. "You have to do a lot more to an oil painting and it takes more time," he said.

His weekends are spent on water colors, giving him a chance to become "accelerated." "Every mistake in water color shows and can't be corrected so you have to be ready to concentrate," he said.

TOPELMANN'S QUIET home in Keneville gives his needed isolation from the turbulence of the city. He agrees with the view of artists as sensitive and desirous of escaping from the world.

"I have separated myself physically by moving out here from our apartment on Lake Shore Drive and mentally by not painting things of the time."

"You have to get away from the negative. I try for appeal without trying to be negative or positive," he said.

Although several conflicts in scheduling occurred late last week, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg park district tot lot programs and Dist. 54 summer school classes will begin as planned next Monday with only minor adjustments at several school sites.

Due to heavy scheduling in both park districts, as well as the summer school program, minor alterations were found necessary.

The Hoffman Estates park tot lot, originally scheduled for Hillcrest School will be shifted to Churchill School and activities in the same program slated for Lakeview School will be held instead in Pinger Park.

In Hoffman Estates, tot lot programs, designed for boys and girls 4 through 6 years of age, will run from June 23 through Aug. 8.

As detailed in the brochure mailed to each resident of the park district last week, tot lots will be held as originally scheduled at Fairview, Twinbrook, Blackhawk and MacArthur schools and will meet every other day.

CHILDREN WILL receive daily schedules at the time of registration.

Schaumburg Park District's tot lot program, for pre-schoolers 3½ through 5 years of age, will be held at Thomas Doolley and Nathan Hale elementary schools and Robert Frost Junior High School, as well as Jennings House Youth Center.

A tot lot session originally scheduled for Campanelli School has been transferred to Jennings House, and, according to park officials, all parents of children enrolled at that school have been advised of the change in location.

Approximately 2,000 pupils will attend the Dist. 54 summer school program which runs from June 23 through July 25.

Pupils in grades one through four will attend classes at Hillcrest, Campanelli, Lakeview and Hanover Highlands schools. Students in grades five through eight will attend either Nathan Hale School or Helen Keller Junior High School.

According to Dist. 54 Supt. Wayne E. Schaible, both the summer school and park activities programs could be held at the schools at the same time, if necessary, since all park summer activities are scheduled outdoors.

Decisions for the shifting came after discussions of safety and overcrowding came to light. There also appeared to be some confusion on the part of several principals of the buildings involved.

Registration Continues

Registration for summer school in Dist. 211 will continue until opening day, June 23, but interested students are encouraged to register this week before decisions are made on whether to hold classes with insufficient enrollment.

More than 800 persons have registered for the classes, which will be held in air-conditioned James B. Conant High School in Hoffman Estates, William Mueller, summer school director, said.

The summer school session will last seven weeks, from June 23 to Aug. 8. Classes meet from 8 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. five days a week. A one-credit course runs full-time each day for the seven weeks. A one-half credit course may meet two hours daily for seven weeks or four hours daily for three and one-half weeks.

Tuition for each half unit of credit is $20; bus transportation is available for $8 for the entire session. All payments will be due on the first day of classes, June 23.

COURSES AVAILABLE this summer include art, business education, industrial arts, math, science, chemistry for non-science majors, social science, sewing and BOTH PARK districts use Dist. 54 buildings and facilities under separate park-school lease agreements in existence for several years.

Hoffman Estates Park Pres. Robert L. Schuhr viewed the scheduling difficulty as minor and told the Herald that the growth of both park and school districts could produce nothing else.

"This was not a serious problem and we have been able to work it out very nicely," Schuhr said.

Paul Dorda, director of Schaumburg parks and recreation, echoed Schuhr's sentiments and suggested that both park districts be alerted to summer school enrollment increases in planning future programs.

"All in all, I am very happy with the arrangement the way it has finally come out," Dorda said.

The Last Day For School Registration

Deadline for Dist. 54 summer school registration is today. Parents must register their children at Schaumburg School.

According to John Jones, summer school director, room assignments will be mailed to pupils this week. More than 2,000 students will be attending summer school from June 23 through July 25.

A total of 106 teachers will be employed for the summer program, Jones said.

Dist. 54 pupils in grades one through four will be attending Hillcrest, Lakeview, Campanelli, and Hanover Highlands Schools. Pupils in grades five through eight will attend Nathan Hale and Helen Keller Junior High.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL session will be 9 a.m. until noon. Each pupil will take two courses and there will be a materials fee of five dollars.

Among the classes to be offered in the 1969 summer school are enriched arithmetic, enriched reading, nature and field studies, art, conversational French, band, physical skills development, remedial reading, remedial arithmetic, wood crafts, creative writing and typing.

driver education.

Students who are planning to register must have the consent of their school guidance department before they enroll. A guidance counselor's signature must be on the registration form. Students from schools outside Dist. 211 are asked to call the summer school office at 359-3300.

To Investigate Fire At Conant

The origins of a fire Sunday night which destroyed Conant High School pole vault pit still are unknown, Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell said.

Foam rubber and tires used to cushion pole vaulters burned in the 9:30 fire, causing smoke clouds over the area.

The fire department received three calls reporting the fire, all of them saying the entire stadium was burning. Fire Chief Carl Selke said. Nine trucks were sent to the area.

POLICE HAVE questioned two boys seen at the site just prior to the fire, but have no evidence that the fire was set or that the boys were involved.

O'Connell said it would be difficult for a fire to start spontaneously in the stadium, but it could have been accidental. Investigation will continue, he said.

Crash Injures Henry

William T. Henry, 22, of 424 S. Prindle in Arlington Heights received minor cuts and bruises when his motorcycle collided with a car driven by Patricia Galvan, Schaumburg, at the intersection of Kensington Road and Prospect Manor S. y.

Mrs. Galvan failed to yield the right-of-way, according to police.

School Study Meeting is Set

The Schaumburg Schools Study Committee evaluating the implications of disannexation from Dist. 54 will present information collected at a July 7 meeting in the Great Hall at 8 p.m. The committee will meet on the first Monday of each month.

Facts and figures on the recent population census taken in Schaumburg and the projected assessed evaluation of Dist. 54 and Schaumburg village will be presented.

The Schaumburg Schools Study Committee is studying the feasibility of disannexing the community's schools from Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Final Evaluation This Fall

The final phase of the accreditation and evaluation study of High School Dist. 211 conducted by the North Central Association, the group which gives accreditation to high schools, will be completed early this fall.

This phase of the 18-month study calls for a Dist. 211 steering committee of teachers and principals to discuss and recommend changes in the educational program of area high schools to the board of education, after it reviews the proposals made by visiting North Central Association committees this spring.

Before the visiting committees came in March, district personnel evaluated every phase of the staff, plant and educational program in the three district high schools. Twenty-seven areas were investigated and evaluated. The self-evaluations were given to the visiting committees when they came.

The second phase of the evaluation process began with interviews by the visiting committee in each school. Teachers and students were observed working in classes. A report with North Central Association recommendations for improvements in each high school was presented last month to the district.

ADMINISTRATORS AND faculty members are evaluating the visiting committees reports now and will assign priorities to the recommendations before presenting them to the board of education in the fall. The recommendations will be in three classifications: ones to be carried out in the near future, ones to be carried out through long-range planning, and ones judged to be invalid.

Academic departments in the district will appear before the board to describe programs of study throughout the year and discuss the North Central Association reports.

HOFFMAN RUNNER advances safely during softball contest between Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates village officials Saturday. The contest was won by Hoffman Estates officials, 15 to 12. Starting pitchers were the village presidents, Robert Atcher and Fred Downey. Following the high-spirited affair, the Schaumburg players had another "bowl" contest.

Police Uphold Arrest

Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry P. Jenkins recently issued a statement responding to charges that police were unfair to a Skokie man arrested on a charge of driving under influence of alcohol June 7.

The complaint, in behalf of Joseph Costello, 57, was filed last week by Mrs. Elizabeth Schnur of Chicago, Costello's mother.

Mrs. Schnur sent a letter about the incident to the Elk Grove Village Board, the Illinois Attorney General's office, and several newspapers. She charged police with "outrageous procedure" and use of "autocratic police department rules."

Costello was arrested after his small foreign car went off the road near Oakton Street and Arlington Heights Road. According to police reports, he disregarded a stop sign and "dead end" arrow, coming to a stop in the mud on forest preserve property.

POLICE REPORTED that the car was mired in a ditch and that Costello was racing the engine in an attempt to get out. It was raining at the time.

In Mrs. Schnur's complaint, she said the car went off the road, but there was no accident and no one was hurt.

She said police put handcuffs on Costello and locked him up at the police station.

According to the police, Costello resisted arrest and was intoxicated.

Costello, who did not have a driver's license in his possession, was required to post a $500 cash bond, police said.

Mrs. Schnur termed this "police requirement" ridiculous.

Jenkins said that under the rules of the Illinois Supreme Court, effective Jan. 1, 1968, a cash bond of $500 is necessary in such cases.

WITH A VALID ILLINOIS driver's or chauffeur's license, the bond would be 10 per cent, or $50, plus the license.

According to Mrs. Schnur, her son could not produce a valid driver's license because it had been removed from his wallet at Downey Veterans Administration Hospital, Great Lakes, where he is a patient.

"He was home on a weekend pass, she said, adding that he did not know the license was not in his possession.

Jenkins said Costello did not have a weekend pass, adding that the hospital holds the license in attempting to prevent or discourage unauthorized weekend trips.

Furthermore, Jenkins said a breathalyzer test for Costello was indicative of a much greater quantity of alcohol than would have shown after two drinks in five-hour period, a claim made by his mother.

COSTELLO WAS IN JAIL for two nights and all day Sunday, Jenkins said.

His bond was reduced on Monday to $40 by Judge Edwin Breen in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Jenkins said it is not within any person's province to reduce bond except a judge.

Buildings Group Sets Interviews

Members of Hoffman Estates Municipal Buildings committee will begin to interview prospective architects June 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the village hall.

Trustee Virginia M. Hayter, chairman of the committee, said a minimum of two and possibly three architects will make presentations before the group on the first night of interviewing.

The committee is working on methods leading to construction of a municipal complex and must report back to the village board by Sept. 1.

In line with a committee decision made last month, the group will first proceed with employment of an architect for the project and then will begin to investigate sites and other aspects of the planned complex.

Streamwood Girl Gets Scholarship Grant

Eight high school graduates planning to enter nursing training and nine students completing their first or second year of nursing education have been awarded a total of $4,310 in scholarships by the Sherman Hospital Auxiliary of Elgin.

One of the eight scholarships will go to Mrs. Ronald Phillips, Streamwood.

The auxiliary has awarded more than $28,000 in scholarships to area graduates for nursing education, beginning with $200 to two girls in 1955.

Since then, more than 100 girls have been assisted. Mrs. Robert Westenberg is chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Galen C. Bruns, Sherman nursing director, assists with recipient selection.

The Lighter Side

For Love of Dad

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Just about the most beautiful thing in this world to me is the esteem and affection that is lavished upon us fathers by department stores.

We may not be revered too highly by our children, but the department stores love and respect us with a zeal that knows no bounds.

Reading the Father's Day advertisements always brings a lump to my throat, and I'm not what you would call the sentimental type.

The most touching thing about it is the way the department stores are willing to overlook our shortcomings and follies. So maybe we're not perfect. So what? To a department store, old dad is still the greatest guy around and deserves nothing but the best.

One store, I note, wants me to have a pair of "kicky party pants" done in "smashing floral prints for Pop." I got really choked up over that one.

In the eyes of my offspring, I am strictly a parallelogram having four equal sides and four right angles. They would laugh their heads off at the idea of me stepping out in flowered trousers.

But there is no generation gap between a father and a department store.

A department store simply is blindly adoring of fathers. It will go to any extreme to be a "dad-pleaser."

That means a lot in these days when the family unit is said to be rapidly eroding as a binding-force and stabilizing influence in American society.

I'll be honest about it. At my age, I really would look pretty ridiculous in "kicky party pants." But it's nice to know that somebody still thinks of me as a swinger.

"Pop's the tops," the ads say. "For dad: the something extra." "Treat him to the luxury he so richly deserves."

The department stores, at least, are not ashamed to express a little honest emotion.

It is often alleged that America has become excessively materialistic, with commercial values taking precedent over human values.

But anyone who bothers to study the Fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate fallacy of that allegation.

Department stores spend a great deal of money to exhibit their appreciation of fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate.

I get a warm feeling every time I hear the patter of little credit cards around the house.

Hiawatha Play Ending

Three performances of Elgin's 42nd annual production of the "Song of Hiawatha" by the Big Timber and Kwo-Ne-She Indian dancers and players remain this season.

They will be at 8:25 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at Camp Big Timber, about five miles northwest of Elgin on Big Timber Road. Tickets are $2 for Adults and $1 for children.

Dist. 59 To Be in Red

School Dist. 59 will operate $2 million in the red for the 1969-70 school year.

A tentative budget for the district submitted to the school board last night places the total revenue of the district at $10,872,331. Operating costs are listed at $12,485,591.

Despite the apparent $2 million deficit disclosed in the district's budget, the financial statement does not include the funds the district will borrow through tax anticipation warrants. A balanced budget must be sent to the state Office of Education, meaning that additional anticipation warrants must be secured.

The budget presented last night to the board of education members is the tentative budget of the district and is open to change at the direction of the board members. Public hearings on the budget will be held before final action is taken.

ALTHOUGH THE Dist. 59 budget is a tentative one, the district will undoubtedly face an increase in its expenditures.

High on the list of expenditures in the district is $4.5 million set aside for salaries for elementary teachers. The total amount reflects the pay increase agreed to by teachers and the board and recently negotiated by both parties.

Should the proposed budget in excess of $12 million be approved by the school board, it will mark a new high reached by the district. In 1963, Dist. 59 discussed a tentative budget of $2 million, or one-sixth of the district's expected expenditures five years later.

The following year, then-assistant superintendent William Mann submitted a budget of $5 million. At the same time, the district was facing an enrollment increase of 24 per cent.

In 1965, with the budget still increasing in the district each year, Mann told members of the school board that the district could stop issuing tax anticipation warrants in the 1966-67 school year. Mann at that time said expected increases in the assessment of the district would overcome the yearly increase in costs.

FOUR YEARS later, that prediction remains invalid. Dist. 59 is still issuing tax anticipation warrants, and at a rate higher than ever before.

By 1966, the budget for the district rose to $4.1 million, with half of that amount going for teachers' salaries.

By 1967, the budget rose to $7 million and in 1968 the expected expenditures were boosted over the $8 million mark.

This year's increase, although not yet formally approved, would bring to the district its highest amount of expenditures.

A breakdown of the expenditures requested by the district shows $7,567,942 for education fund, $767,407 for the building fund, $1,209,316 for bond and interest, $342,300 for transportation, $134,300 for municipal retirement, $2,370,000 for site and construction and $94,326 for capital improvements.

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Nixon Asks Air Bill

WASHINGTON—President Nixon yesterday asked Congress to pass a $5 billion program of airport and airways improvement for the next 10 years that would be financed by a series of taxes on those who use the facilities.

Nixon asked for a new $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights starting in the United States, an increase from 5 to 8 per cent in the tax on domestic airline tickets, and a new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

Police Uphold Arrest

Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry P. Jenkins recently issued a statement responding to charges that police were unfair to a Skokie man arrested on a charge of driving under influence of alcohol June 7.

The complaint, in behalf of Joseph Costello, 57, was filed last week by Mrs. Elizabeth Schur of Chicago, Costello's mother.

Mrs. Schur sent a letter about the incident to the Elk Grove Village Board, the Illinois Attorney General's office, and several newspapers. She charged police with "outrageous procedure" and use of "autocratic police department rules."

Costello was arrested after his small foreign car went off the road near Oakton Street and Arlington Heights Road. According to police reports, he disregarded a stop sign and "dead end" arrow, coming to a stop in the mud on forest preserve property.

POLICE REPORTED that the car was mired in a ditch and that Costello was racing the engine in an attempt to get out. It was raining at the time.

In Mrs. Schur's complaint, she said the car went off the road, but there was no accident and no one was hurt.

She said police put handcuffs on Costello and locked him up at the police station.

According to the police, Costello resisted arrest and was intoxicated.

Costello, who did not have a driver's license in his possession, was required to post a $500 cash bond, police said.

Mrs. Schur termed this "police requirement" ridiculous.

Jenkins said that under the rules of the Illinois Supreme Court, effective Jan. 1, 1968, a cash bond of $500 is necessary in such cases.

WITH A VALID ILLINOIS driver's or chauffeur's license, the bond would be 10 per cent, or $50, plus the license.

According to Mrs. Schur, her son could not produce a valid driver's license because it had been removed from his wallet at Downey Veterans Administration Hospital, Great Lakes, where he is a patient.

"He was home on a weekend pass, she said, adding that he did not know the license was not in his possession.

Jenkins said Costello did not have a weekend pass, adding that the hospital holds the license in attempting to prevent or discourage unauthorized weekend trips.

Furthermore, Jenkins said a breathalyzer test for Costello was indicative of a much greater quantity of alcohol than would have shown after two drinks in five-hour period, a claim made by his mother.

COSTELLO WAS IN JAIL for two nights and all day Sunday, Jenkins said.

School Asks Aides

School Dist. 59's Volunteer Resource Pool is seeking additional volunteers who wish to lend their talents and skills toward the improvement of various aspects of the school program.

The pool organizes a supply of volunteers to answer teachers' requests for outside lecturers, slides or demonstrations in any area which the teacher feels may enrich the student. The Volunteer Resource Pool hopes to strengthen the ties between school and community by fulfilling these needs.

The pool welcomes a wide scope of slides, movies and lectures on travels, hobbies or collections, on science and sports. The pool is interested in knowing if you were born, lived in or traveled to a country and can talk about the people, their family life and cultures.

THE POOL, IN existence for three years, has over 200 potential volunteers to aid a class, a child, a small group or a school at a teacher's request from any public or parochial school in Dist. 59.

At the annual meeting in May officers were selected. They are: Mrs. Ethel Brod, president; Mrs. Cleo Stachowiak, vice president; Raymond Brod, secretary; and Mrs. Mary Grice, treasurer; all of Des Plaines.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer should contact Mrs. Brod at the Volunteer Resource Pool, 588 Dara James, Des Plaines, or phone 299-2352.

Art Stand, Colorful as Gypsy Camp

by GERRY DEZONNA

With curly red hair and a Dan Rowan mustache to match, he sat in the shade of a large, neon-green sign munching a cold roast beef sandwich and washing it down with lemonade.

The sign read "Oil paintings $7.95 and up. Must sell. Hungry artist." Large contemporary oil paintings were perched on easels around an enclosed trailer that was bulging with paints, frames, and more paintings.

Parked in the corner of a Sinclair gas station at Mount Prospect Road and Northwest Highway, the art stand was as colorful as a gypsy camp, but business was slow. A few curious housewives wandered over from Cumberland Plaza, and an occasional businessman stopped while he bought gas.

"I've been here for three days now, and a lot of people stop, but only to look. I've been thinking about moving on to Arlington Heights. There's not enough foot traffic here. An artist could really starve on this corner," he said.

CLIFF'S FROM Old Town, and he's got a plan to sell paintings. "Everyone likes paintings but not everyone likes to pay high art prices, so I appeal to the middle-income pocketbook. I think today people want large paintings, the massive look to go with the trend in Spanish furnishings.

"So seven friends of mine and I have decided to sell the people what they want — an attractive painting already framed for an equally attractive price."

Cliff, born in the Bronx but raised along the New England coast, has a college degree in business, and although he paints, he is primarily the business manager for the group. "I had a good job as a salesman for a New York company. I was the Chicago representative and the typical 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. businessman living in a high rise and taking my short business trips.

"SO ABOUT three years ago, I decided I needed a change and a job that would give me an opportunity to do some skiing. I'm an avid ski enthusiast, and I spend my winters in Aspen."

He sells paintings, colorful oils depicting harbor scenes and old whaling vessels, for $25. The selection also includes big-city street scenes and contemporary still-lives done in hues of blue, green, and orange. The smaller paintings cost about $10, while a few of the "super-large" ones sell for $50.

He had one portrait on display of a naked woman. "The Mount Prospect police paid me a visit this morning. They asked me to put the painting in the trailer because some woman had called to tell them her children were playing outside, and the painting wasn't a good influence on her little children. So far, this has been the only exciting experience on this corner."

"We've got art stands in several locations on the south side of Chicago, and our stands in Skokie and Dempster are doing well. The Sinclair representative in this area has given us permission to set up our stands in gas station lots.

"MY BUSINESS increases his business. You'd be surprised at how many people buy gas, so they have an excuse to browse through the paintings."

Cliff isn't a hippie or an Old Town beatnik, but an enterprising businessman with an idea. "I've been around a lot doing almost everything. I tried three universities before I finally got my degree. I traveled all over the country with the Coast Guard, and now I'm trying my luck at business. Something other than the 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. drag.

"I enjoy what I'm doing now, but I'm not sure what I'll be doing next year. Perhaps I'll still be in the painting business. One thing I know for sure is that I'll be in Aspen for the winter. I love the slopes."

Fancy Bikes To Compete

The second annual bike decorating contest, sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, will be held Saturday, for area boys and girls, 6 to 12 years old.

The contest is being held in conjunction with the Jaycees' 11th annual Peony Parade and parade, Wednesday through Sunday.

The contest will be at the Jaycee Carnival, Grove Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Biesterfeld roads, with the judging beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Two-wheelers only are allowed with judging being done in three groups: 6 and 7 year olds, 8, 9 and 10 year olds, and 11 and 12 year olds.

CONTESTANTS MUST decorate the bikes themselves. Judging will be based on originality and neatness. Decorations may center around this year's parade theme, "To The Moon."

The first place winner in each group will receive a trophy and the opportunity to ride decorated bikes in the parade on Sunday. Two runners-up in each group will be awarded a certificate for treats and rides at the Jaycee carnival.

"THE (REAL ESTATE TAX) rate in Elk Grove Township is still one of the lowest in neighboring suburbs," despite a $3 million increase, according to Arnold Scharringhausen, township tax collector.

Tax Rate Goes Up

Elk Grove Township real estate tax rate will be up by $3 million this year over last, according to Arnold Scharringhausen, Elk Grove Township tax collector.

The increase is due to new assessments and the county equalization factor which has been raised from 1.44 to 1.45. The equalization factor allows for an assessment of 50 per cent on the real estate value inside Cook County because of rising property values.

Despite the increase, Scharringhausen said, "the rate in Elk Grove Township is still one of the lowest in the neighboring suburbs."

He said that all local residents should have received their tax bills by now. He reminded residents to pay their first installment bills by July 1 to avoid a 1 per cent penalty.

THE SECOND installment is due Sept. 2.

He also asked residents to pay their taxes locally so the township will receive the 2 per cent commission as its fee for handling property tax collections.

Scharringhausen noted that the 2 per cent commission permitted the township to pay for all township programs and general assistance programs and to distribute excess funds to local mental health institutions and school districts last year.

He added that the township receives the commission at no extra cost to the taxpayers.

He explained that tax bills are prepared by the Cook County tax offices where assessment records are kept of all taxable property in the township.

BILLS MAY BE paid at the following locations: Bank of Elk Grove and Mount Prospect State Bank during banking hours; and at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Road, daily from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., except Wednesday and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

They may also be mailed to P.O. Box 129, Mount Prospect.

Illinois Bell Employees Meet

The largest meeting of veteran telephone employees in Illinois Bell history was held recently at the O'Hare Inn in Des Plaines.

Nearly 1,000 persons turned out for the 14th annual convention of the Theodore N. Vail Chapters of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

George Elsborg, 202 N. Dryden, Arlington Heights, a meeting delegate, said the pioneers are telephone employees with over 21 years service in the industry. The Vail chapters cover most of the state and a small portion of northwest Indiana, and have over 20,000 members. The national organization, the largest of its kind in the country, has a membership of over 250,000.

El-borg said the meeting's purpose was to find new ways to interest and involve more telephone people in the group's many civic and charitable projects, to explore ways to improve already existing programs and to develop worthwhile new ones.

"To give each other a concrete idea of the many different projects we're involved in," he said, "we set up and manned live exhibits on some of the more important projects such as our work with retarded children and our services to the blind."

In his keynote address to the group, James W. Cook, chairman and chief executive officer of Illinois Bell, urged them to become more personally involved in solving the problems facing our country today.

Graduate at Carthage

Seven area students have been awarded degrees from Carthage College, Kenosha, Wis.

They are: Mary Charlene Gebauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gebauer of 1113 N. Princeton, Arlington Heights, an elementary education major; Robert Allen Renner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Renner of 1710 Surrey Ridge Drive, Arlington Heights, a biology major; and Mount Prospect residents: Douglas Appleby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Appleby of 203 N. Elmhurst Ave., a biology and chemistry major; Gail Joanne Grosnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldemar O. Grosnick of 12 N. Louis St., an elementary education major; and Gerald Dale Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Schultz of 906 Can-Dota, a business administration major.

Also Bruce Alan Lorenz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lorenz of 8 Glenbrook Drive, Prospect Heights, a business and economics administration major; and Lyn W. Johnson, son of Mrs. Lillian Johnson of 10 Treebark Drive, Schaumburg, a business administration major.

Finance Committee Formed

A finance committee for 13th District congressional candidate Alban "Stormy" Weber has been formed, to be headed by Calvin Pentress, Jr., an executive with Allstate Insurance Co.

The finance committee will begin fundraising for campaigning in the Republican primary, according to Weber, a campaign manager, Vernon Pelouchoud.

Weber is one of seven Republican candidates seeking the office vacated by former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld. Weber, from Evanston, is chief legal counsel to Northwestern University.

Members of the finance committee are Robert E. Straus, chairman of the board of American National Bank; Charles Schaniel, president of United of America Bank; John L. Conley, president of Aetna State Bank; Leslie I. Reid, vice president of Continental Illinois National Bank.

HUGH B. McCULLOCH, vice president of Northern Trust Co.; Brerly W. Anderson of William Blair and Co.; Christopher

Janus of Bache and Co.; William Nichols, former senior vice president of Continental Illinois National Bank;

Norman R. Lieblich, attorney; Ronald J. Chinnock, of Chinnock and Doughty, Inc.; Henry J. Kaplan, president of Henry K. Jewelers; John Huarisa, president of Standard Kollsman Industries; and William McCannless, president of the Bank of North Evanston

Need Fund Board Job Mart for Teens Set

The Elk Grove Village United Fund, which helps support local community service groups, is seeking 13 new board members.

The present board consists of five local people who have served from three to six years each, but the bylaws call for 18 board members. The number has gradually been reduced because of conflicting interests, death, or removal from the area.

The 1969 budget is $27,225, part of which is supplied by the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

"ALL OF THESE services are part of a modern, progressive community like ours . . . and the only way they can operate with true effectiveness is through a board of public spirited citizens willing to give a small amount of time, really, toward community welfare," Mrs. Wallace Kuehl, board president, said.

Board members participate in the formulation of policies and practices in the operation of the Village United Fund. Members usually meet four times a year with the fund's executive committee.

Residents of Elk Grove Village or village employees are eligible for membership on the board.

BOARD MEMBERS are elected by the existing board for three-year terms. Interested persons should call or write Mrs. Kuehl, 1201 Maple St., Elk Grove Village, 437-1945.

Existing board members are: Mrs. Kuehl, Grant Watson, 690 Grosvenor Lane; Mrs. Kenneth Buck, 279 Walnut Lane; Dr. Alan Shapiro, 529 Grosvenor Lane; and Anthony Mostardo, 409 Charing Cross Road.

Teens in Elk Grove Village needing spending money will again be able to secure jobs this summer through the Job Mart, a service being sponsored by the village teen council.

According to Suzanne Olson, supt. of recreation, youths may register for a job Monday through Friday from 9-5 at the park district office, 499 Biesterfeld Road.

The registration fee is 75 cents. The money will be used for clerical work and to raise funds for the council, she said.

At the time each teen registers for the Job Mart, he fills out a card listing job preferences.

A variety of odd jobs is available. Miss Olson said, from babysitting to lawn-mowing to painting.

ANYONE NEEDING a job filled may call 437-0439 from 10-5 Monday through Saturday.

The teen council recommends the amount of pay appropriate for each job. Babysitters may earn 50 cents to $1 an hour, according to age and experience, lawnmowers will earn $1 an hour; and painters, garden workers, and other household workers may earn more.

The Mart is open to all high school students residing in Elk Grove Village and all students attending Elk Grove High.

About 200 teens participated in this program last year, performing about $5,000 worth of jobs. The referral program then was sponsored by Community Services.

Jaycees Give Scouts Summer Camp Awards

The Elk Grove Village Jaycees recently announced it would send three scouts from Troop 284 to two weeks at camp this summer.

Five semi-finalists for the camp awards were selected by their troop leaders on the basis of merit and advancement.

Two other semi-finalists, Duane Antor and Frank Manske, will be treated to a dinner at the Maitre d' Restaurant, compliments of Bill Rose, owner.

School Dist. 214 Hires 832

High School Dist. 214 has hired most of 832 teachers it will need next year.

Much of the 12 per cent increase in teachers in 1969-70 was caused by the need to fully staff Hersey High School.

Hersey opened this year with just three classes — freshmen, sophomores and juniors. It is expected to have a student enrollment next year of 2,540 students, including seniors.

Nelson Lowry, personnel director, said Monday that the district has just 24 more teaching posts to fill, almost a third of them at Wheeling High School.

WHEELING needs seven more teachers, including a band director to replace Dean DePoy who helped the school band achieve nationwide recognition. DePoy, named Illinois Teacher of the Year this year, has taken a position with Ball State University in Indiana.

Arlington High School still has five teaching posts to fill, Prospect has four, Forest View and Elk Grove both have three and Hersey has two.

Nelson Lowry, personnel director, says so far Dist. 214 has hired 107 teachers new to the district. Many of them will go into the 92 new teaching posts being added.

Geological Society Will Hold Meeting

The Des Plaines alley Geological Society will meet June 19 at 8 p.m. at the West Park Field House, 651 Wolf Road, Des Plaines.

Robert Simonson, a geology instructor at Maine East High School, will present a slide lecture on mineral identification by color and techniques used in photographing minerals.

Visitors are invited to attend the meeting.

Buildings Group Sets Interviews

Members of Hoffman Estates Municipal Buildings committee will begin to interview prospective architects June 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the village hall.

Trustee Virginia M. Hayter, chairman of the committee, said a minimum of two and possibly three architects will make presentations before the group on the first night of interviewing.

The committee is working on methods leading to construction of a municipal complex and must report back to the village board by Sept. 1.

In line with a committee decision made last month, the group will first proceed with employment of an architect for the project and then will begin to investigate sites and other aspects of the planned complex.

Streamwood Girl Gets Scholarship Grant

Eight high school graduates planning to enter nursing training and nine students completing their first or second year of nursing education have been awarded a total of $4,310 in scholarships by the Sherman Hospital Auxiliary of Elgin.

One of the eight scholarships will go to Mrs. Ronald Phillips, Streamwood.

The auxiliary has awarded more than $28,000 in scholarships to area graduates for nursing education, beginning with $200 to two girls in 1955.

Since then, more than 100 girls have been assisted. Mrs. Robert Westenberg is chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Galen C. Bruns, Sherman nursing director, assists with recipient selection.

Hawatha Play Ending

Three performances of Elgin's 42nd annual production of the "Song of Hawatha" by the Big Timber and Kwo-Ne-She Indian dancers and players remain this season.

They will be at 8:25 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at Camp Big Timber, about five miles northwest of Elgin on Big Timber Road. Tickets are $2 for Adults and $1 for children.

Awarded Service Pin

Harold Schneider of 121 N. Western, Hoffman Estates, has received a twenty year government service pin from the Defense Contract Administration Services Region, Chicago.

Schneider is an industrial specialist with the organization which administers defense contracts in Wisconsin, Indiana and northern Illinois.

Close Buttery Office

The Schaumburg Township office in The Buttery on Roselle Road will close Saturday for the summer. However, appointments on Saturday morning may be made with the Schaumburg Township clerk at 894-8188, if this is the only time convenient for township residents.

200 Windows Broken At Construction Site

Some 150-200 windows and frames were broken or damaged by rocks and bricks last Sunday at six buildings under construction in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village.

In each case damage was estimated at $300 at buildings at 670, 680, 690 Greenleaf Avenue, and 660, 670, 680 Lunk Avenue.

All were under construction by S. P. & J. Builders, Franklin Park.

Joseph Palmisano of the construction firm, said he has not had any union problems or fired anyone recently.

To Study Feasibility Of Dist. Warehouse

Dist. 54 administrators are studying the feasibility of building a warehouse for school supplies.

Marvin Lopicola, business services director, said he is planning to visit Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to observe operations at a 15,000-square-foot warehouse leased by that district.

Dist. 54 is considering building a 15,000 sq. ft. prefabricated structure, costing about $60,000, near Schaumburg School on Schaumburg Road.

According to Lopicola, the district presently has storage space for only "ten per cent of the volume of materials used by the district."

He said the district often pays more for materials by buying in two or three installments instead of one large volume order. Yet this is necessary because space is not available for storage, he added.

Dist. 54 has 14 elementary buildings and two junior high schools, and another junior high under construction.

The proposed warehouse would handle receiving and purchasing operations for the entire school district.

The Lighter Side For Love of Dad

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Just about the most beautiful thing in this world to me is the esteem and affection that is lavished upon us fathers by department stores.

We may not be revered too highly by our children, but the department stores love and respect us with a zeal that knows no bounds.

Reading the Father's Day advertisements always brings a lump to my throat, and I'm not what you would call the sentimental type.

Dad's Tops

The most touching thing about it is the way the department stores are willing to overlook our shortcomings and follies. So maybe we're not perfect. So what? To a department store, old dad is still the greatest guy around and deserves nothing but the best.

One store, I note, wants me to have a pair of "kicky party pants" done in "smashing floral prints for Pop." I got really choked up over that one.

In the eyes of my offspring, I am strictly a parallelogram having four equal sides and four right angles. They would laugh their heads off at the idea of me stepping out in flowered trousers.

But there is no generation gap between a father and a department store.

A department store simply is blindly adoring of fathers. It will go to any extreme to be a "dad-pleaser."

That means a lot in these days when the family unit is said to be rapidly eroding as a binding-force and stabilizing influence in American society.

I'll be honest about it. At my age, I really would look pretty ridiculous in "kicky party pants." But it's nice to know that somebody still thinks of me as a swinger.

"Pop's the tops," the ads say. "For dad: the something extra." "Treat him to the luxury he so richly deserves."

The department stores, at least, are not ashamed to express a little honest emotion.

It is often alleged that America has become excessively materialistic, with commercial values taking precedent over human values.

But anyone who bothers to study the Fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate. fallacy of that allegation.

Department stores spend a great deal of money to exhibit their appreciation of fathers, and I, of one, reciprocate.

I get a warm feeling every time I hear the patter of little credit cards around the house.

Enrico P. Taramelli

Enrico P. Taramelli, 31, of 1020 Boxwood Drive, Mount Prospect, died Sunday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, from injuries he suffered in a motorcycle accident on June 12.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in St. Joseph Catholic Church, Chisholm, Minn. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery, Chisholm, Minn.

He was a science teacher at Chippewa Junior High School in Des Plaines.

Surviving are his parents, Peter and Jennie Taramelli of Chisholm, Minn.; two brothers, William and David; three sisters, Mrs. Charlotte Russ, Elsie Jean and Janis M. Taramelli all of Minnesota; and his grandmother, Mrs. John Pucelj also of Minnesota.

Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry Street, Des Plaines, were in charge of funeral arrangements.

Stevens in Program

Dennis Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Stevens, Palatine, took part in the music program for the baccalaureate service recently at Culver Military Academy, Culver, Indiana.

Cleo Delmar Jarvis

Cleo Delmar Jarvis, 62, of 2275 Dempster, Park Ridge, died Friday in his home after an extended illness. He was born Sept. 8, 1906, in Indiana.

Funeral services are being held today at 1:30 p.m. in the funeral chapel of Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry Street, Des Plaines. Burial will be private.

Mr. Jarvis was the owner of House of Jarvis in Arlington Heights for the last 14 years; a veteran of World War II; and was past president of Arlington Heights Rotary Club.

Surviving are his widow, Dorothy; his mother, Mrs. Hazel Jarvis of South Bend, Ind.; and a sister, Mrs. Helen Keir of Osceola, Ind.

Frederick C. Todd

Frederick C. Todd, 63, of 2712 Rohlwing Road, Rolling Meadows, died in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an extended illness. He was treasurer of Howe Manufacturing Co. in Chicago.

Visitation is today after 4 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. from the funeral home to St. Colette Catholic Church, Grouse Lane and Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows, for 10 a.m. mass. Interment will be in St. Joseph Cemetery, River Grove.

Surviving are his widow, Mathilda; two sons, Frederick C. Jr. of Des Plaines, and William F. of Arlington Heights; a sister, Mrs. Maxine Kozlowski, and a brother, William Todd both of Streamwood.

Elmhurst College Grads

Eleven area students have been awarded degrees at June commencement ceremonies at Elmhurst College.

They include four Arlington Heights residents: Diane Roeske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva R. Roeske of 1047 S. Dunton, an elementary education major; Mrs. Cynthia Salmon of 1831 W. Fernandez, also an elementary education major; Frederick Strobl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gottfried Strobl of 1911 N. Burke, a math major; and Richard Wollerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raul Wollerman of 1111 N. Patton, a chemistry major.

Both Strobl and Wollerman were named to the dean's list at Elmhurst.

Elk Grove Village residents Mrs. Diane Africk and Kenneth Dewey also received degrees. Mrs. Africk, of 540 Germaine, graduated with honor majoring in speech correction. She had been named to the dean's list.

Dewey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Dewey of 1175 Bosworth Lane, majored in geography. He had been named to the dean's list and was a member of Pi Gamma Mu and Psi Chi.

Georgia Smeryage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane E. Smeryage of 202 Apple St., Hoffman Estates, graduated with high honors with a major in elementary education. She had been named to the honor roll four times and was treasurer of the Student National Education Association.

Two Mount Prospect men are Elmhurst graduates. Robert Haden of 1609 W. Cottonwood Lane, graduated with a major in business administration.

Ralph Keiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Keiser of 1744 S. Douglas, majored in chemistry.

Linda Lampman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Lampman of 853 Martin Drive, Palatine, graduated with a major in English.

And Stephen Chyrchel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chyrchel of 103 W. Willow, Prospect Heights, graduated with a major in business administration. He was active in dramatics at Elmhurst.

'Old Swimming Field'

"It's just delightful!"

The deluge of rain in the last couple of weeks has caused farmers to despair, and other adults to complain of the mud, humidity and sog-giness of the world, but kids can usually find something good in what causes others grief. These kids from Elk Grove Village did.

These youngsters found delight in spending a late afternoon last week goofing off in a field of water at State and Higgins roads.

As yet unattuned to the prim and proper 8-to-5 world, they found something they liked and took immediate advantage of it. Diving in with their clothes on, they entered into a cool, bubbly world, unknown to adults, and became refreshed after days of high temperatures.

Getting a few days jump on summer vacation they released their pent-up energy and splashed around in the pond of water, obviously without a care in the world.

Weary adults driving by on their way home from work probably took only a moment to notice, smile, and remember...

Safety Tips Could Save Your Life

by JAMES V. HEALION
HARTFORD (UPI)—Before you grab your towel and trunks and head for a swim, you might read this. It could save your life, especially if you're a male between 5 and 24.

Did you know that 85 per cent of those who drown each year are men? And that those in the 5-24 age group are about twice as likely to drown as men in other age groups?

Safety experts at Aetna Life & Casualty aren't trying to throw cold water on anybody's plans, but you can tell the oddsmakers to jump in the lake by following six simple rules.

But the important thing here is not to break a seventh. The six are:

- Never swim alone.
- Don't depend on a tube.
- Don't dive in strange places.
- Don't swim under a diving board.
- Stay out of water during storms.
- Stay out of water when overheated and after eating.

Now you can follow the six rules until you're blue in the face, if you'll pardon that expression, but if you break the seventh, forget it.

The seventh: Don't take unnecessary trouble in the water!

Rescues should be made by boat if one is available or by throwing the victim a line or some floating object he can grab.

Try not to come in direct contact. It is better to give the victim the shirt off your back and let him hang on to that rather than try to effect a rescue yourself.

Of course, if there is no other way and you are a good swimmer, then it is up to you. As the safety men in the insurance company put it— "row" or "throw" if you can. "Go" only as a last resort.

The insurance company has produced a public service movie in cooperation with the American Red Cross covering these and other vital water safety measures in detail.

The title is "You Are The Lifeguard." It won the National Committee on Films for Safety Award and can be borrowed free for showings by community organizations from the film department of Aetna Life & Casualty, Hartford, Conn.

Harper Board Hires Six

Two staff positions were opened and six instructors hired at last week's Harper Junior College board meeting.

Qualified people are being sought for the positions of director of nonacademic personnel and director of instructional services.

The director of personnel will be responsible for the development and administration of the nonacademic personnel program, stenographic pool, telephone service, and other assigned duties. He will be directly accountable to the dean of business affairs.

The director of instructional services is responsible to the assistant dean of learning resources for performing most duties involving instructional media and equipment implementation and maintenance.

INSTRUCTORS were hired in the areas of science, counseling, communications and engineering to meet growing class enrollment and the opening of new programs.

Hired as instructor in dental hygiene for 12 months at $10,300 was Miss Barbara Ellen Kaufman of Wilmington, Del.

Three instructors were hired in the area of counseling, two for the developmental program set up for Harper students who are unable to cope with regular college courses.

Edward Liska of Pasadena, Calif., was hired as an assistant professor at $12,000 for the program. Miss Sharon Zamkovitz of Freeport, will also be assisting the program. She was hired at $12,000 as an assistant professor. Mrs. Anne Rogers of Barrington was hired as a counselor-instructor for $9,300. Her past experience includes a half year part time counseling at Harper.

IN THE AREA of communications English instructor Miss Dolores Crane of Chicago was hired at a salary of $9,500.

Sander Friedman of Morton Grove was hired as an assistant professor in mechanical design at $13,000. He served as a part-time teacher at Harper for the 1968-69 school year.

Sees Ease in Teacher Needs

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan says that the teacher shortage is apparently easing — in part because so many school districts are in a financial bind.

He predicted that the perennial teacher shortage may be "on its way out."

One of the reasons he cited is the fact that many local school districts, pinched for funds, are eliminating specialized and enrichment programs and reducing staff.

There are also more teachers available, many of them college graduates, who have decided to take jobs immediately instead of attending graduate school fulltime.

The third factor cited by Hanrahan for predicting an ease in the teacher shortage is the fact that pupil enrollment projections for 1972 and beyond show school enrollments declining.

FEW OF the northwest suburban areas will be on the declining enrollment list — in fact, most of them expect large pupil increases. But lowered enrollments downstate will mean fewer school districts will be competing for the teachers needed here.

Though there are still acute teacher shortages in some fields, Hanrahan's teacher recruitment assistant Roy Wehmhoefer says there is an abundant supply of teachers in many subjects.

The county office says he has a list of 209 English teachers seeking new jobs and a record of just 29 vacancies. Sixty-eight Spanish teachers have told the county office they are available but there are just three job openings throughout the county.

WEHMHOFER'S files include names of 34 French and 34 German teachers while local schools throughout the county have just four openings.

There are three boys' physical education teachers seeking jobs for every opening listed with the county school superintendent's office and two girls' P.E. teachers for each opening.

In the social studies area, Wehmhoefer has a list of 451 teachers seeking jobs — and a record of just eight openings.

He said there are still critical shortages of teachers for industrial art, special education, and reading.

When School Conflicts Will Occur

The greatest internal conflicts will occur in schools when faculty and board members strongly disagree on how the responsibility for decision making should be divided.

That was the finding in a Midwestern community college study done by John Upton, Harper Junior College director of community relations. The study was part of his requirements for a doctorate.

Upton, of 400 N. Carlyle Place, Arlington Heights, has just been awarded the doctorate by the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He studied higher education administration.

Upton surveyed faculties and boards of 20 community colleges in the area served by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the chief Midwest school accrediting agency.

UPTON'S STUDY found that faculty members differ significantly from board members in how they expected a college president to behave.

"The greatest differences," he said, "centered around how primary responsibility for decision making should be divided within the college."

"Where the greatest differences exist between board members and faculty, you find the most conflict in the college itself," he said.

Upton received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan. Before coming to Harper in 1966 he taught in the Ann Arbor schools and at Arizona Western College, Yuma.

He is vice president of the board of Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Rolling Meadows.

Enrollment In Summer School Lags

With summer school starting Friday, High School Dist. 214 is swamped with 1,600 teenagers wanting to take driver education.

Enrollment in the rest of the summer school program is lagging, however.

W. L. Randle, summer school director, so far has been able to give definite work commitments to only 42 of 70 teachers tentatively scheduled to teach in the six-week summer program.

Randle is hoping that more registrants will enroll by Friday, the opening day of classes.

There are sure to be some late registrations, since report cards for students in Dist. 214's six high schools — Arlington, Prospect, Forest View, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Hersey — are being received this week.

RANDALL SAID he attributes the lag in summer school academic class enrollment this year to several factors:

—The decision by the school board to permit all students, no matter what their grade point, to take a fifth subject during the regular school year.

—A change in state law that permits 16 to 18-year-olds to get a driver's license only if they have completed a driver education class.

—That shift of most summer school classes to Hersey High School, air-conditioned but less accessible than Prospect High School to central student population areas in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

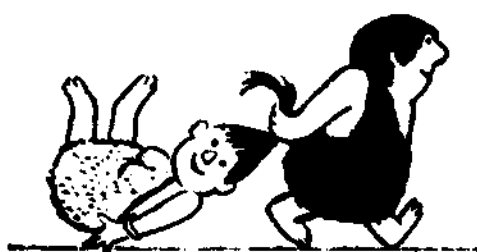

Summer school brochures distributed in all six high schools said that no busing would be available to Hersey or the other district schools having summer school classes.

Several weeks ago, however, a decision was made to offer busing anyway after a price check showed the cost would not be prohibitive. Randle says the bus charge will be $10 for six weeks or $5 for a three-week term.

Enrollment and arrangement for busing can be made by contacting the summer school clerk in any one of the six Dist. 214 high schools or through Randle's office in Slicemeyer Administration Center, 799 W. Kensington Road, Mount Prospect.

The Way We See It

New Democrats Stir

Constructive suggestions for improving and strengthening the Democratic Party were partially obscured by the clash between Mayor Daley and Sen. George McGovern at hearings by McGovern's Commission on Party Structure.

The fight, provoked by McGovern, distracted many from the excellent appraisals of what ails the Democratic Party in Illinois, and it took attention away from some positive suggestions made by witnesses.

Daley, for example, proposed a series of measures which, while falling short of reform, would certainly broaden the base of participation in the party presidential preference primaries in all states, consideration only of candidates who have entered at least one-third of the primaries, state caucuses open to all candidates and candidate addresses to the convention before balloting.

Suggestions for improving the party in Illinois, and for strengthening its vote-getting appeal, however, had to come from someone other than the leader, several suburban committeemen not on particularly good terms with Daley. They brought highly critical evaluations of the party to the commission and called for the party to take a new look at itself and the voters, particularly suburbanites.

Lynn A. Williams of New Trier

Township laid it on the line: the Democrats are losing appeal because their party is tailored to the needs of a party organization in Chicago, in an era when even those needs are changing.

Committeemen are expected to be content influencing the rewards and favors system: "The thing which subverts the outer form of democracy is the special Illinois patronage system in which the committeemen control the hiring, promotion, demotion and firing of thousands of government employees. Before I made it clear that I was personally opposed to the system, I received telephone calls from time to time from the Democratic headquarters saying, for example, 'There are two forest ranger jobs which are yours... do you want them?'"

Pointing to Republican control of the executive mansion, two U.S. senate seats and the state senate, Williams charged:

"Exclusion is the characteristic of the (Democratic Party) system. It excludes young people... it excludes suburban voters... the suburban areas are the political battlegrounds which will determine the outcome of every election from 1972 into the distant future... it excludes black people except as they are a part of the system and obedient to it... it excludes many of the most promising young leaders of Democratic ideas from any real participation in party decisions."

Aaron Jaffe, Niles Township deputy committeeman, was equally critical:

"The Democratic party will not be able to grow in the suburban areas of Cook County unless the Democratic Cook County Central Committee completely reassesses its attitudes toward these areas. Unfortunately, the Democratic organizations of the suburban areas are still thought of by the Democratic Cook County Central Committee as they existed 20, 30 and 40 years ago."

Jaffe also chided the suburban Democratic organizations for not striking out on their own:

"The interests of suburban organizations sometimes vary greatly from the interests of city organizations. By not developing their own programs, people tend to think of suburban organizations merely as extensions of the 'Giant city organization'."

The party record in both Niles and New Trier townships should not be ignored by party leaders in evaluating these stinging comments. Niles has risen from fifth to first the percentage of vote going to place among suburban townships in Democrats. New Trier has risen from 26th place to fifth.

Palatine Today

Alas, Sox, Where Are You?

by ED MURNANE

My cousin, who is three years my senior, and myself had a long and bitter rivalry during our years between 8 and 14.

He was a Cub fan, and I, devout south sider that I was, was a diehard White Sox fan.

The disagreement lasted throughout the year, but was most bitter in the summer months, of course, when the baseball season was foremost on everyone's minds.

Our battle strategy was one of constant ridicule of the other team. I recall quite well frequent trips our two families would take to a summer home and all the way, Rich and I would argue about who was the better team.

"Hey, here come the White Sox," he would say as a huge livestock truck would pass.

"ISN'T THAT Ernie Banks and Dee Fondy and Gene Baker taking their showers?" I would ask as we passed three pigs wallowing in the mud.

All through the 1930's, I had the edge on him because the White Sox were winning and the Cubs, well, the Cubs had a 10 year lease on the second division with rights only to move from fifth to eighth, no higher and no lower (until expansion came).

After the White Sox had won the American League pennant in 1959, I was sure my cousin would see the error of his ways and swing to the Sox. But no, he was very pleased when the Dodgers ended the White Sox hopes in the sixth game of the World Series.

"The Sox will never win another pennant," he predicted as his Cubs remained in the depths of the National League.

"The Cubs will have to buy televisions if they ever want to see a World Series," I told him.

BUT THEN THE 1960's showed some changes. The White Sox, who had always been exciting to watch with Minnie Minoso, Chico Carrasquel, Nellie Fox, Billy Pierce and Luis Aparicio, began to lose their appeal, and their players. One by one, they either retired or were traded. The color that made the White Sox heroes in 1969 was fading.

On the north side of town, the Cubs were still floundering, although a Cub game now appeared much more exciting than a White Sox game.

When the second half of the 1960's began to pass, the Cubs were using guys like Ron Santo, Billy Williams, Don Kessinger and, of course, Ernie Banks. They made their move toward the top very slowly, but it was matched by similar movement toward the bottom by the White Sox.

I'M NOT A FAIR weather friend, however, and I stuck with the Sox, despite some inept play, incompetent management and general lack of excitement. I even went to a few Sox games and watched, with a few hundred others, the White Sox lose 2-1.

I remember opening day in 1967. It was cold and windy in Comiskey park, but the 19,000 fans (one of the season's highs) were prepared to cheer the White Sox to victory over the Washington Senators.

They weren't, and neither was I, prepared to wait till the eleventh inning before the White Sox lost by a run. The Sox got three hits off the Washington rookie pitcher.

The most exciting thing to watch that day was the scoreboard, to see what the Cubs were doing.

AND THAT'S WHAT'S happened. The Cubs have just become much more exciting to watch, even if it's only the scoreboard. They seem certain to win their division this year, and probably the National league pennant while the White Sox, well, when they lost two games to Baltimore Sunday (the Orioles scored 39 runs in the four game series) they reached their lowest ebb.

Last night, the Sox were supposed to play some team from Washington — Spokane or Seattle or something — and they were supposed to play them in Wisconsin — Milwaukee or Madison or Green Bay or someplace like that. Whoever it is they're playing, the Sox trail them by two games.

Just Be Glad It Wasn't Ice Cream

by JAMES VESELY

I guess I like milk as well as the next guy, but I am drawing the limit at drinking one gallon a day.

It's tough for me to even talk about it, but the whole sorry mess began several weeks ago and I just have to get it off my chest.

We had been getting normal milk delivery three times a week, one gallon each delivery. Then a note appeared in the little aluminum box they give you. It said our delivery date was going to be changed, and would we like more milk?

No thank you, we said. The different delivery date is fine, just keep the same amount of milk coming.

PART OF THE trouble, of course, is that you don't ever talk to your milkman.

Unless you want to get up at 4 a.m., you have to talk to him through notes left in the aluminum box. It's like communicating with a secret agent who casually picks up a note left the day before.

Anyway, something must have happened at the milk company, because after the delivery date changed, we started getting milk almost every day.

And instead of one gallon each delivery, we now get two gallons.

At first it was kind of funny. We had milk pudding, creamed soup and a lot of other stuff with milk in it. Milk and cookies was always on hand. Milk, milk, milk.

WE LEFT NOTES for the milkman, notifying him that we do not need that much milk. The next morning, there were two gallons in the aluminum box.

Then more milk started to arrive. The milk that arrived two days before turned sour because we couldn't drink it fast enough. We ran out of room in the refrigerator because of all the milk in storage.

Now our notes to the milkman began to get desperate.

"For God's sake, don't give us any more milk!"

The next morning, two gallons of milk were in the aluminum box.

I tried waiting up all night for the milkman to personally plead with him to stop delivery of milk. But I must have dozed off around dawn because the only thing I remember is hearing his truck pull away from the curb.

AS I RUSHED to the door to call to him, I knew it was too late. Gritting my teeth, I reached down and picked up two more gallons of milk. They fit nicely in the refrigerator with the eight gallons still remaining.

I began to panic. Why us? Where will it end? Is it a plot?

There's got to be a reason for this, I thought. The cows are getting out of hand. They have been bred into milk producing monsters and we are all doomed.

Then it came to me. We've got two milkmen. They are delivering on alternate days and each one never gets the notes intended for the other.

That's when I sat down and wrote the last note. I left it in the aluminum box for two days. It tells each milkman to be at my house at 10 a.m. next Saturday.

I want to be there when they meet each other.

Schoolman Speaks Out In Controversy

(The following statement by Supt. Kenneth F. Gill to the Dist. 21 Board of Education last week represents the views of a Northwest suburban school administration deeply enmeshed in the current controversy over sex education.)

Anything as disruptive and time consuming as the current controversy over our Family Living and Sex Education Program should, of necessity, serve as a learning situation for all of us. It has helped me to focus on some issues which are not only school district oriented but find their roots deep in the unrest of modern day society.

My first observations deal with self-assessment concerning the operation of the school district and the climate which is generated. For the sake of brevity, I would like to list some factors which we should be more conscious of in the administration of programs.

1.) As school districts are asked to enter more diversified areas of instruction, we should by design attempt to discover and use more sources of expertise from other sectors of the community.

2.) We must attempt to more clearly communicate the rationale of our programs and the strategies to carry them out. We can no longer be wowed into believing that no response from the community concerning a program indicates total acceptance of the program.

3.) We must discover better ways of testing community opinion so that we can know quickly whether a small vocal minority speaks the feelings of the majority.

4.) We must devise simple hearing procedures for settlement of grievances concerning our programs.

5.) We must try to insure that any of our programs which are of a social or moral nature should not be any more objectionable than absolutely necessary to any sectarian group. However, we should also insure that sectarian beliefs of individuals should not dictate program content for the majority.

6.) Religious teaching should never be a part of our program but moral and ethical standards must be inherent in all of our interpersonal relationships and program objectives.

7.) We should prepare a design for counteracting misstatements and outright distortions of the content of our programs and our teaching objectives.

WITH THESE in mind, I would like to move to other factors which arise either directly or indirectly from this controversy.

1.) Bigotry, from whatever source it evolves, is still an ever present plague to our society. The wilful attempts to close men's minds, whether from motivations of fear, hatred, insecurity or whatever have tested the spirit of free men for centuries and will continue to do so. The public schools will continue to be a target of bigotry and we must resolve to bring it to light where freedom of thought can eradicate it.

2.) The present nationwide campaigns of boycotts, sit-ins, riots, anti-sex education, anti-government, anti-school districts and colleges, etc., can often be traced to radical socio-political beliefs that could easily tear our democratic society asunder. The lush and backlash of neo-Communist, neo-Fascist, and neo-Nazi philosophies and insidious endeavors are something which our country should not take lightly. Too many other countries have historically taken these groups lightly and have soon found themselves in disastrous circumstances. We in America must also be alert to this danger.

3.) It is apparent that hysteria is still generated easily by unscrupulous means in today's complex society where communication lines and trust levels are hard to maintain. Any group that accepts the philosophy that their self-righteous end justifies any means, not the least of which is character assassination, can create hysteria quickly and with tragic results. In the future we must be better prepared to avoid or alleviate this type of hysteria.

4.) All governmental groups, but especially the schools, will be coming under more and more attack. It is incumbent that level-headed citizens, the backbone of our country, must of necessity, become more involved in what transpires.

5.) The real fears as stated above should not be permitted to cause their own hysteria which would deny the right of proper dissent for any minority group or individual. As I stated above, such dissent brings self-evaluation, wisdom and hopefully progress.

NOW THAT I have spoken in generalities about some of the real problems we face, I would like to focus on specifics. We should all feel a deep debt of gratitude to the Board of Education for handling the Family Living and Sex Education Program controversy in a judicious manner. The pressures to make hasty decisions were great and the innuendoes for not making precipitous decisions were barbed. However, they withstood this and emerge as a real source of strength and reason.

Our local Ministerial Association should be congratulated for stepping forward to speak on the social issues of our day. This endeavor to add calmness and reason speaks well of the integrity of the religious leaders of our school-community and the stability of the churches they serve.

I would also like to compliment the many wonderful individuals who stepped forward to spend time and effort to study controversial issues and struggle with the resolution of these differences. As always, the citizens of this school-community have shown the stability and trust which as made ours a proud area.

The news media should be congratulated for giving fair and honest coverage, using investigative capabilities to identify and expose disgraceful tactics. It is also encouraging to know that the news media is willing to take a stand on issues that are inherently volatile.

The school staff members should be complimented for the time and effort spent in developing a program, thoroughly explaining it, withstanding ridicule, trying to compromise issues, and standing firm in the knowledge that their program is basically sound and of value to their students. I am overwhelmingly proud of them.

I know that in writing this I will probably cause a continuation of a controversy that has already bordered on the ridiculous, but it might also serve to clarify that I am fully prepared to meet this controversy or any others which will undoubtedly arise in the future. We are a proud, competent and steadfast school-community and resolve not to play dead for anyone.

A Parent Thanks a Teacher

This letter is being written to express my thanks to one of our community's leading citizens.

The person is Mrs. Wilma Crase, kindergarten teacher at Winston Churchill School. She has made this year a most enjoyable one for the children and their parents.

During the first few weeks, Mrs. Crase, with tender and loving care, helped each child over the fears of being away from Mom, and held little frightened hands through the adjustment of going to school.

She has taught children everything from consideration for others to the necessities of knowing their name, address and phone number.

She has taught with kindness of mind, a generous heart, firmness in her beliefs and a deep feeling of consideration and concern for each and every child.

It is not often you see a teacher looking full of pride and love at a school open house. It is not often you find a teacher who is willing to sit and talk with a parent over a problem at any time, or take the time to help a child with the difficulty of learning to tie a shoe.

Mrs. Crase has two classes each day and shares this deep devotion with all of the children, and even though she is busy nursing along 6-year olds, she also finds time to take care of a home, raise two children of her own, take an interest in the Little League and community affairs, and take pride in her husband's work as principal of another school.

Mrs. Crase, as a grateful parent, I thank you for the most enjoyable school year I have known, and I thank you for helping my child grow with good morals, loving consideration for others and a happy and healthy outlook on life.

Await New Books

Recently the Arlington Heights Public Library Board received the green light from the voters (and ultimately the tax money) to buy books for the vacant shelves in its massive new structure.

There was a steady barrage of publicity about the need to fill all the shelves prior to that referendum, but we've heard nothing since about the types of books that will be purchased, or the criteria to be used in their selection.

The rush to fill those shelves reminds us of the kid with a fresh dime in his pocket who can't wait to get to the candy store. Next thing you know, we're going to be informed our library is too small and we need a bigger one.

Scrimmage Lines

by LARRY MLYNCHAK

Attention, Little Leaguers

AT LEAST 1,000 BOYS are playing in youth baseball programs in the area . . . Little League, Little Major League, Pony League, etc.

Undoubtedly there are a number of dedicated men coaching the teams in these boys baseball leagues. These men spend hours at practice and games instructing boys in the finer points of the game of baseball.

But one has to remember that a coach has to instruct at least 15 players and assuredly he cannot take each boy aside individually and point out to the boy the finer points of the game. A boy can, however, learn the finer and seemingly hidden points of the game and he has the opportunity every day — by watching big league players on television.

When watching a major league game on television, a boy should not watch the entire scope of the game, but watch the major leaguer on TV play the position the boy does. For instance, if a boy is a shortstop on a Little League team, he should watch Don Kessinger of the Cubs extremely close. Just keep his eyes on Kessinger . . . either on TV or at Wrigley Field itself. The boy is sure to learn something.

When watching the major leaguers on TV (and remember the players in the major leagues are the best in the world) a boy should know what to look for. Here are a few items:

At the plate a player should be perfectly balanced and if a ball happens to come close he can move away. Watch a player like Matty Alou of the Pittsburgh Pirates at the plate. He never swings for the fences; he just tries to meet the ball. He uses a fluid, even swing. He rarely takes a called third strike. When Alou has two strikes on him he swings at any ball that's close to the plate. The ball may not be a strike but if it is close the batter should swing because the umpire might see the ball differently than the batter.

When a baserunner is caught off base with "the hidden ball trick" it is an embarrassing situation for the runner. Watch Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals. He doesn't start his lead off base until the pitcher begins his stretch motion. It is senseless to take a lead before the pitcher starts his motion because the runner is not going to go anywhere before the pitcher starts a motion, anyway.

When Brock slides into a base his legs are always bent. When the knees are slightly bent they tend to bend even more when the foot hits the base. If the runner's knees are straight when the foot hits the base it could result in a broken leg.

Ernie Banks of the Cubs has been playing first base about as long as anybody so all you Little League first basemen watch Ernie in action. Ernie is right-handed so when a throw comes in to first he stretches out his left leg. A first baseman like Willie McCovey of the Giants who is left-handed stretches out his right leg.

A rule might be: if your glove is on your left hand, stretch out your left leg. If your glove is on your right hand, stretch out your right leg.

Another thing about Ernie — he never takes a throw in the baseline. When there is a bunt, he stretches out his glove toward second base and gives the catcher a target to throw to. In this way the first baseman won't get run-over by the runner.

Next time the Pirates are in Chicago, watch Bill Mazeroski play second base. Nobody plays second base like Bill Mazeroski. When a runner is trying to steal second, Mazeroski covers second and waits for the throw. You'll notice that Mazeroski is always behind second base. He's on the left field side of second base. If his body were in front of the base, he would surely get spiked. But if he keeps his feet even with the back of the bag (straddling the bag) he will not get spiked and he can still bend over and tag out the runner.

The Chicago White Sox are on TV at least 140 times a year and Little Leaguers in this area have an opportunity to watch one of the greats like Luis Aparicio. When Aparicio is a shortstop he never day-dreams. He is always alert. When a right-handed batter is at the plate, he plays close to third base. When a left-hander is up, he shades toward second base.

One fine point of the game that Luis Aparicio plays is this: when a runner is on base and the catcher is about to throw the ball back to the pitcher, he always backs up the pitcher in case the catcher makes a bad throw back to the pitcher. If there is a ball and prevent the runner from advancing.

There are plenty of arguments over who is the best third baseman in the game and the two spoken of most frequently are Ron Santo of the Cubs and Brooks Robinson of the Orioles. My choice is Robinson but Santo is a close second. Since Little Leaguers in this area see Santo more, let's use him as an example.

You might notice that Santo is never in the same place on any pitch. He changes his place around third with every pitch. He does this according to the situation.

If there is a runner on first and less than two outs, Santo plays up close, right on the edge of the grass. He plays here because it is a situation for a bunt. If there are two outs or two strikes on the batter, he moves right even with the bag or a few steps behind the bag, meaning Santo will play three steps back from the bag and three steps from the foul line. He plays here when there is little chance that the batter will bunt.

One of the more important things that an outfielder like Billy Williams does is play the hitters. If there is a power hitter up he plays back; if a singles hitter is up he plays nearer the infield. He also shades the foul line or center field depending on if the batter is left or right handed.

There was a serious injury to Jesus Alou of the Houston Astros last week and it happened because he failed to comply with one simple rule — call for the ball. If an outfielder feels that he can catch the ball, call for it. If nobody calls for the ball it could result in a collision and injury.

An outfielder must know what to do with the ball when he catches it. There is another simple rule for that. If the outfielder catches a fly ball — throw the ball one base ahead of the runner. If the outfielder catches a single on the ground — throw the ball two bases ahead of the runner. Never throw the ball a base behind the runner. Also make sure that all throws are on the line — never throw the ball so that it looks like a pop fly.

Randy Hundley is one of the better defensive catchers in the game. Last year he only missed two games and seldom is injured though many other catchers are. One way the Cub catcher avoids injury is this. When the pitcher starts his windup, close your right hand into a fist. Never leave your hand open because a foul tip could break a finger.

One of the great tragic stories in the history of baseball is Herb Score. Herb Score was a great pitcher but in one game he threw a pitch and when he released the ball he was off-balance. The batter then hit a line drive back to Herb Score and it hit him in the face. If Herb Score was balanced after pitching the ball, if his feet were parallel after pitching, he would have caught the ball in his glove instead of his face.

There are plenty of other little factors in the game of baseball which this column doesn't have the space (or the knowledge) to continue. By watching the major leaguers you Little Leaguers can learn how to play this great game not only better — but safer.

So the next time your Dad has a Cub game on television, pay attention and watch the little things the big leaguers do and when you are on the field, pay attention to the game and use what you have learned from the major league ballplayers.

When two teams — Elk Grove and Conant — record nearly 200 strikeouts between them over a 14-game span, there's work to be done.

And that's just what the Northwest Division Summer Baseball League is all about — improvement.

BOTH TEAMS, which are a part of this league along with four other Mid-Suburban League teams as well as two non-conference foes, will open up the summer season this evening at 6:00 at the Conant diamond.

Guiding the Grenadiers will be Larry Peddy, their regular season coach. This is the Grove's first year in the league and Peddy plans to make the most of it so as to improve his ballclub for next spring.

"We'll be respectable," he advised, "but I don't care about winning or losing right now. But when it comes to tournament time, later on, I will. I just want the boys to learn how to play."

"We'll be breaking down all fundamentals such as working on baserunning, learning how to play each position, etc."

AT THE HELM for the hosting Cougars will be John Papendrea, a guidance counselor during the school year at Conant.

The biggest downfall with both clubs last spring was the lack of contact with the ball. Conant edged out the Grove in team batting in the league, .218 to .213, respectively.

However, both teams boast fine stickmen who they can center their attacks around. For the Grove the key man is Mike Losch. This rangy shortstop slugged the ball at a .436 clip to finish second in the MSL.

Wally Wiener, who can patrol any outfield position, pounded the ball at a .339 pace. Both Wiener and Losch were all-conference selections for their outstanding play.

THE PROBABLE starting lineup for the Cougars, who ended up with an overall spring record of 8-12, will be:

Mike Arkus first base; Gil Lopesilvero, second base; Rich Payson, shortstop; Larry Celeste, third base; Wiener, outfield; Rich Evenson, outfield; Dave Kellermeyer, catching; and either John MacDonald or Steve Bahnick pitching. The remaining outfield position is undecided.

MacDonald, although having a 1-5 overall mark, just didn't get enough hitting from his mates. Had they averaged two runs a contest without committing any run-scoring errors, he might have had a real fine record as he compiled a respectable 1.54 ERA.

Bahnick finished with a 1-2 mark and an ERA of 5.21. But Papendrea is hopeful that Steve can rebound this summer.

FOR THE GRENADIERS, who were 9-8 overall, this is the probable starting lineup:

Rick Chassey, first base; Bill Vandivere

Peddy pointed out that he planned to use the league's free substitution rule to the fullest by playing all 23 Grenadiers in the opener. The other players are:

Gordon Hollywood, Bob Chen, Scott

Pruitt, Steve Scholten, John Artemenko, Jeff Jarocki, Gary Proehl, John DiGiovanni, Jeff Sronkoski, Gary Sakata, Bill Browning, Dan Swanson and Glen Peterson.

Ristau and Hollywood were the two aces from last spring's staff and, with a little work, could be big winners for the Grove this summer. Righthander Ristau was 4-4 overall and lefty Hollywood compiled a 3-3 mark.

But Not His Prediction

Lee's Golf Was Shaky...

By MILTON RICHMAN

UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK UPI — There's a guy who has been sipping up quietly to Orville Moody for more than 10 years now. He hasn't been looking to sell him

French post cards; he has been looking to sell Orville Moody only on himself.

The first time he spoke with him was back in 1958 when they were both in Japan.

"I NEVER SAW anybody play golf like you do," the guy said to Moody, then an Army GI.

"If I were you, I'd be thinking of making a career of golf when I got out of service."

"No," Orville Moody replied. "I think I'm going to stay in the Army."

TIME PASSED and life being the way it is, that same guy found himself playing two practice rounds with Moody last week in Houston before the U.S. Open. When the rounds were over, he said:

"Orville, I think you've got a helluva chance to win this tournament. I mean it."

"Well," parried Orville Moody, "We'll see."

ONE OUT OF 200 million is pretty much of a long shot, wouldn't you say? At last count there were more than 200 million persons in this country and of that total how many do you think felt or said Orville Moody would be the 1969 Open champ. Exactly one.

Lee Trevino was that one. By sheer coincidence he happened to be the 1968 Open champ, and by sheer coincidence yet he also happened to be the same guy who spoke with Moody in Japan and again in Houston the other day, telling him he could win the whole works.

Lee Trevino loves to share things with everybody. If he has something good he doesn't believe in keeping it all to himself so when they called him in to the press tent for one of those pre-Open interviews and asked him whom he thought would win he came right out and said what he thought, Orville Moody. Predictably, the next question was why?

"WELL," said Trevino, "I played two practice rounds with Orville and I thought he played great. Particularly with his irons and this is a course where irons are extremely important."

"None of the big names are playing well. I'm not playing that well, either. Billy Casper won the Western Open but he doesn't play the Bermuda grass they have here as well as bent or rye."

"Moody may not be as great a golfer as Billy Casper but if he could putt he would be. He's a man who never gets in trouble. He's always concentrating and he strikes the ball well. That's why I like his chances so much."

THEN THEY went out to play the Open and after two rounds Trevino, the defending champ, was all finished. He didn't even make the cut.

"I was playing very poorly," he said. "I didn't get up for it. I don't think I should've played the week before. But you live and learn. I think, at least I hope, I served well for my year as champion."

Lee Trevino need have no worry on that score. He was one of the most popular Open champions ever.

AS FOR Orville Moody, he was at 141 after the first two rounds, four strokes behind pace setter Deane Beman. Moody shaved that margin to three strokes after 54 holes at which point Miller Barber was ahead of the pack.

Like everybody else, Trevino had his eyes glued to the TV set Sunday evening at his home in El Paso. He watched every shot along with his wife and a friend.

"Oh, lookie here, Orville's gonna win the tournament," Trevino exclaimed when Bob Rosburg, who was pressing Moody, botched up a four-footer on the 18th.

BUT THEN the camera showed Moody making a bad chip on the 17th and Trevino swung the other way.

"Oh my, he's gonna blow it," he said. Moody then hit the prettiest seven iron you ever saw 15 feet from the pin on the final hole and Trevino smiled and said, "That souavagan just won himself the tournament."

He was right.

"I'M SO HAPPY for him, it's unbelievable," says Trevino about the 35-year-old Moody who spent 14 years in the Army.

After Moody won the Open Sunday, President Nixon called him from the White House. Moody said he got a kick out of the call.

Lee Trevino called Orville Moody before the Open.

Now there was a call. One in 200 million.

DDT A Menace? The Great Debate Goes On

by SHERRY CONOMAN
United Press International
Michigan has banned the sale of DDT. Arizona has banned its use. In Wisconsin, the Natural Resources Department recently concluded hearings on a request for a ban and is considering whether to impose one. The Illinois legislature sent a bill to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie for his signature giving the state Departments of Agriculture and Public Health the authority to regulate the sale and use of pesticides. The Minnesota legislature passed a bill authorizing the state secretary of agriculture to ban the use of any pesticide. Other legislation dealing with DDT is pending in a number of states but the greatest concern in the building controversy is centered in the Great Lakes area where high concentrations of DDT have been found in fish. DDT is a nerve poison. The initials are an abbreviation for the chemical dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane, a chlorinated hydrocarbon. The discovery in 1939 of the insecticidal properties of DDT led to the development in the 1940s of a series of chlorinated hydrocarbons for use as pesticides. Paralysis spreads from any part of the insect body that comes in contact with DDT. Some scientists and conservationists contend that DDT has contributed to the extinction of certain wildlife species and poses a serious threat to the health of man, while others, such as Dr. Gordon Guyer, head of the Michigan State University pesticide research center, dismiss the warnings as overblown. Guyer said coho salmon and other fish caught in the Great Lakes are "perfectly safe to eat." The pesticide controversy, he said, has raised a scare which is not founded in scientific fact.

"We need to take it out of the press and put it back into the scientific ground," he said. "When anything gets this much publicity, there are misunderstandings that develop and spread." But the controversy cannot be suppressed and, in fact, drew wide public interest when the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in early March seized 20,150 pounds of coho salmon caught in Lake Michigan on the grounds the fish contained dangerous concentrations of DDT. A few weeks later, on April 16, the Michigan Agriculture Commission imposed the ban on sale of DDT in that state. The ban was appealed early this month by four pesticide manufacturers. Hearings on the appeal were scheduled for June 18. Subsequent to the imposition of the ban in Michigan, the FDA set an interim maximum of 5 parts per million DDT for fish sold in interstate commerce. The interim maximum is to remain in effect until studies can be completed and permanent standards set. The World Health Organization has set a DDT tolerance level of 7 parts per million. The Lake Michigan fish seized by the FDA contained up to 19 parts per million DDT residue. Concentrations of up to 2,000 parts per million have been found in fish in Clear Lake in California.

Figures from the National Agricultural Chemicals Association in Washington, D.C., show use of DDT in the United States has declined significantly in recent years. In the 1965-67 crop year, 40 million pounds of DDT were used (including 27 million pounds in agriculture) compared to 71 million pounds 10 years earlier in 1956-57. A spokesman for the association attributed the reduction to the development of other chemicals that are more effective than DDT. An encyclopedia says the average sized person in the United States in the mid-1960s contained in his body tissues about 7 parts per million DDT. In recent testimony before a congressional committee, David Brower, former executive director of the Sierra Club, put the figure for an average person at 12 parts per million.

The Man Plans to Go Out In Style

by PRESTON MCGRAW
DALLAS (UPI)—O.L. Nelms, a multimillionaire who has found mild eccentricity profitable over the years, says he is prepared to put $5 million to $10 million in a trust fund—preferably tax exempt—to hold an unending round of cocktail parties in his memory.

"There will be no limit on the number of drinks a person could have," Nelms said. In an interview, "The only thing that would stop the liquor flowing to anybody would be bad behavior."

Nelms, grinning at the thought, said he would like to get the trust fund in operation as soon as possible, so he can attend some of the parties before his death. He has worked out a device for attending the parties, in a fashion, after he dies.

That is, Nelms wants his remains, in a $25,000 coffin he already owns carted to every party and left in the midst of the merriment until the last guest has departed.

Any heir who tries to have Nelms' remains buried instead of taken to the next party will be disinherited.

Nelms is a real estate operator and builder with a fortune totalling somewhere between $12 million and $25 million.

As a boy on a sharecropper's farm near Lone Pine, Tex., he trapped skunks for their skins and sold boiled hominy door-to-door. Bored with the demands of formal education upon his time, he quit school in the third grade.

As a struggling tobacco wholesaler in Dallas in the 1930s, Nelms handed out cigars to his customers with this inscription on the covering: "Help O. L. Nelms make a million dollars."

The customers responded and Nelms, with his first million, put a classified advertisement in two Dallas newspapers. It said: "Thanks to all of you for helping O. L. Nelms make a million."

Although he cannot have that much money, Nelms has run the same advertisement every day for 20 years amending the wording to read "another million."

He also painted his "thanks" on 85 truck-trailers, each 50 feet long, parked in and around Dallas.

Sitting in his office in an apartment building, Nelms said expressing his thanks to the public had never cost him a dime. As Nelms talked, a diamond-studded, horseshoe-shaped stickpin he won in a St. Louis crap game glittered in his green sports shirt.

"I never lost a dime on them signs," Nelms said. "In fact, I made money."

"I bought those trailers cheap, depreciated them out in my income taxes and sold them for more than I paid."

A big, still vigorous looking man of 61, Nelms said he had been thinking about a cocktail party memorial fund and his own funeral for the past 30 years.

He said he needs to get a groundswell of public support for the trust fund in the hope of getting tax exempt status for it.

"I can't get a lawyer to touch it right," he said. "The lawyers never heard of anything like that so they don't understand it."

"But it stands to reason if we can put the $5 million to $10 million in a trust fund and not have to pay taxes on it, we can hold a hell of a lot more parties."

"The principal would never be spent anyhow, only the interest. So the parties could go on for years."

Nelms proposes several different kinds of parties. Some would be invitational affairs but the most would be open to anyone who wanted to come. For those who did not want to drink, there would be soft drinks.

"The parties shall not be of any specific duration," Nelms says in a prospectus. "A party might continue for a few hours, for several consecutive nights or for several days and nights consecutively.

"Once a party has started, the governing body and/or its agents need observe only two limitations—that is, the party shall terminate when all of the money available for that particular party has been spent, or the party may be terminated sooner, if in the judgment of the persons responsible, interest has declined to the extent that not enough people are in attendance to keep a good, lively party going."

Nelms has been divorced for years but his ex-wife works for him. He has a daughter and a step-daughter.

Nelms also has worked out funeral plans for himself. When his funeral is held, the religious part will last only 15 or 20 minutes.

After that, a master of ceremonies will take over and mourners will be expected to stand up and say what they think of Nelms—good or bad.

Only one funeral song will be permitted—"Tell Mother I'll Be There."

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, June 17, the 168th day of 1969 with 197 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1775 a group of 3,500 British soldiers attacked one thousand American patriots on Bunker Hill near Boston. The British lost more than 1,000 men, the Americans 441.

In 1928 Amelia Earhart became the first woman to fly across the Atlantic. The plane was piloted by Wilmer Stultz.

In 1967 Red China announced it had exploded a hydrogen bomb.

In 1968 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled an 1866 law bars the color line in housing sales and rentals.

A thought for the day: Sir John Suckling said, "Women are the baggage of life; they are troublesome, and hinder us in the great march, yet we cannot be without them."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The DDT question perhaps has been given its best public airing in the lengthy hearings conducted by the Wisconsin Natural Resources Department.

The hearings were ordered after three citizens groups — the Citizens Natural Resources Association, the Wisconsin Division of the Izaak Walton League of America and the Michigan Audubon Society Inc. — petitioned the department for a ban on DDT, contending the chemical has entered state waters and polluted the environment.

Twenty-seven days of testimony ensued over a six-month period, beginning Dec. 2 and concluding May 21, with chemical

It Was No Work And All Play

When busy career women leave their offices at the end of day, they usually face a number of chores at home. But members of Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club chucked all thoughts of work when they met for a champagne reception last Thursday evening.

The reception, held in a 12th floor suite of the new Arlington Park Towers Hotel at Arlington Park, was sponsored by Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan. The affair was a festive ending for the current club year.

FOLLOWING dinner served in the Carousel Round Table Room, installation of officers was conducted by Doris Marks, first vice president of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Immediate past president, Bernice Bosma, will be turning over the gavel to the new president, Betty Schlaver, and the new board: Phyllis Gardner, president-elect; Bea Stephens, vice president; Mildred Gilman, treasurer; Ann Ostrowski, recording secretary; and Roberta Rogers, corresponding secretary. All will be attending the forthcoming leadership conferences in Chicago at the Pick-Congress Hotel.

The Mount Prospect Club, one of the outstanding in the state, has received a number of awards and membership exceeds 100. Businesswomen interested in joining may call the new president at 253-7202.

ANNE KENNY, Bea Stephens and Ruth Laveen were among local businesswomen at recent champagne reception and dinner which closed the club year for Mount Prospect B and PV Club.

HORS D'OEUVRES and champagne were served to members of Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club at a reception held Thursday evening in the new Arlington Park Towers Hotel at Arlington Park.

Local Pair United in May

"Something borrowed, something new," was the bill filed for the wedding of Karen Sue McKelvey to Howard James Winkelhake. Karen is the daughter of the James E. McKelveys, 106 Essex Road, Elk Grove Village, and Howard is the son of the Henry Winkelhakes, 513 S. Evergreen, Arlington Heights.

The bride's short veil was held in place by a crown of crocheted petals was borrowed from one of the bridesmaids.

Mrs. McKelvey designed and made the bridal gown as well as the bridesmaids' empire dresses of yellow buttercup linen with scooped necklines and small puffed sleeves. The skirts were trimmed from waist to floor with two rows of white crocheted lace interspersed with daisies. Matching hair bows with blusher veils and nosegays of yellow daisies with yellow streamers completed the spring-like effect.

THE BRIDE'S father gave her away during a candlelight double ring ceremony in Faith Lutheran Church in Arlington Heights on May 17. The Rev. David Stuckmeyer officiated.

Karen was wearing an empire gown of white satin with scooped neckline and elbow-length sleeves trimmed with white crocheted lace medallions. A detachable chapel train was completely edged in the medallions. The bride carried a spray of white daisies and stephanotis.

Kathy McKelvey, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Gerald Franzen and Mrs. Terry Tatar, both of Elk Grove Village. Wendy Winkelhake of Arlington Heights, the groom's niece was a junior bridesmaid.

Both the maid of honor and the bridesmaids wore the gown designed by Mrs. McKelvey, with the maid of honor carrying a nosegay of yellow daisies and yellow streamers, and the bridesmaids carrying nosegays of yellow and white daisies.

LISA WINKELHAKE of Arlington Heights, 4-year-old niece of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a short A-line dress of the same fabric used for the bridesmaids' dresses, and added a white eyelet pinafore. Lisa carried a natural wicker basket of white daisies.

The bride's mother wore a street-length lime green linen dress, bone accessories and a corsage of yellow daisies. The groom's mother's dress was also street-length, in turquoise linen with matching jacket and accessories.

Ralph Winkelhake, the groom's brother from Schaumburg, was best man. Groomsman were Steven Kehe of Addison and Terry Tatar, of Elk Grove. Ushers were Jeff McKelvey, brother of the bride, and Vern Winkelhake, brother of the groom.

FOLLOWING A buffet dinner reception at the bride's home, the couple drove south to Memphis, Vicksburg and New Orleans for a week's honeymoon. They are living at 128 E. Wood St., Palatine.

Karen, a graduate of Forest View High School, is employed at the Pickwick House Restaurant in Palatine. Howard, a graduate of Arlington High School, served a two-year army stint and is now employed by Palatine Police Department.

Fall Fashions Are Slinky

PARIS (UPI)—Would-be fashionables had better plan an athletic, diet-conscious summer if they want to wear the styles Paris designers have in mind for fall and winter wardrobes.

The best dressed laurels will go to those naturally slim enough to wear featherweight jerseys and wools cut to cling to curves like a harem dancer's silken veils—and with the same sexy connotations.

Any attempt to help nature along by mechanical means is ruled out by the new fabric and styles. Fashion's "undercover" equipment for perfecting the female form—corsets, padding, waistcinchers—would reveal themselves at once under the soft materials and disrupt the smooth flowing lines created by the designers.

The fabrics, so light they float where they do not cling, will help carry fashion forward into the 1970s.

They permit designers to preserve and even demand the unfettered freedom of movement won by the fashion revolution of the last decade, while moving away from the stiff, geometric lines with which Courreges introduced the mini-skirt and trouser suit.

Christian Dior's designer, Marc Bohan, one of the leaders in the new soft movement, has already used some of the fabrics in his ready-to-wear boutique collection for winter.

Bohan uses the fabrics for slinky blouses under fall and winter suits, as well as for flowing evening gowns and trousers.

Already, he has experimented with smocking the material, crushing it together and then stitching the tiny creases in place. The fabrics are so fine that even when smocking is used across the hips, a long, slim line can be maintained.

Bohan even dares to smock one pair of black evening trousers over the entire hip region and down several inches of thigh and then release the fabric to flow over the legs.

The wool Bohan is using is so fine that he makes scarves printed in the same patchwork pattern he used so successfully in the spring-summer haute couture collection. The wool scarves fall with the same softness as the silk ones.

By the time Dior parades its fall-winter haute couture collection in July, Bohan undoubtedly will have more ideas for using the fabrics.

So probably will other designers. There is nothing like a new material to give couturiers ideas. Just as vinyl was the natural forerunner of the pop and op art fashions of several seasons ago, just as a new imitation leather prompted designers to create top-toe ensembles out of "leather," so these new fabrics will influence styles in the coming season.

There are other fashion forces at work, of course, but most of them are harmonious with the styles imposed by the soft wools and jerseys.

One important factor in the fall-winter fashion scene is the acceptance of trousers for almost anytime, anywhere. They have helped promote the long, slim look which, in turn, has promoted such side effects as higher heeled shoes. Even women of only medium height soon discovered that one of the best ways to get a long-legged look was by wearing higher heels under longer trousers.

It also, surprisingly, may help keep dress hemlines short. With the help of fashion designers, like the young Brazilian designer Ektor who made his Paris debut last January, women have discovered that a relatively short dress can serve double duty as a tunic top for trousers.

Ektor, for example, makes coats and dresses that stop about three to four inches above the knee and teams them with neat trousers. The effect is as sophisticated as it is practical and all indications are that it will stay around for several seasons and may become a fashion classic.

Art Classes for Children

Bill Wimmer, faculty member of the Art Institute of Chicago, will offer a print class for young persons of high school age during the six week summer session at the Countryside Gallery, 307 N. Vail Arlington Heights. A wide range of classes for children will be presented, starting next week, according to education chairman, Betty Hansen.

Mr. Wimmer will also teach a course for children from 7 to 12 years, in which the pupils will work with different media in two and three dimensions. This course will be held at Pioneer Park Thursday mornings, starting June 19 in the arts and crafts room.

Herb Chadley will offer oil painting illustration for teens and young adults at Pioneer Park starting Thursday, June 19, from 1 to 4 p.m. Herb is a well-known illustrator for Brown and Bigelow. He will also teach a course in photography for young people aged 13 or over, at the Gallery from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Fridays.

A class for teens in acrylic painting will be given Thursdays at the Gallery from 1 to 4 p.m. by Ted Argeropolis. Many of these classes will paint out of doors at a variety of locations. Ted is a master candidate at the Art Institute.

All supplies will be furnished for all children's classes, with the exception of the photography classes, where students are asked to bring their own camera and film.

In addition to the children's classes, Countryside Art Center is offering classes for adults for the six-week session, daily Monday through Friday, with several evening sessions.

A tuition discount is offered for registration by today, Friday. Further information may be obtained by calling the Gallery at 253-3005 between 1 and 5 p.m., Tuesday through Sundays.

Raymond Burfeind Marries Iowa Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Burfeind

The "something old" which Judith Ann Burk carried on her wedding day is a keepsake in the Nat T. Burfeind family, 1130 N. Harvard Road, Arlington Heights. The bride exchanged vows and rings May 17 with Raymond F. Burfeind and carried the handkerchief to continue a tradition in his family. It was first carried in 1908 by his late maternal grandmother and has been a part of weddings in the family for three generations.

The bride is the daughter of the Louis Cass Burks of Waterloo, Iowa, and planned her wedding for Christ Episcopal Church in Waterloo. The nuptials took place at 7:30 p.m. by candlelight, the Rev. J. C. Dahm officiating.

The couple met in Waterloo where the groom is assistant administrator of Schoitz Memorial Hospital. The bride is head nurse there.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her father, she wore a white organza gown with tracings of Alencon lace on the empire bodice and the sheath skirt. The elbow-length sleeves and sculptured neckline were embellished with the lace, and scallops of lace edged the hemline of the chapel train.

The bride's headpiece was a cap of Alencon lace and pearlized lilies of the valley, holding a veil of silk illusion. She carried a white prayer book with two phalaenopsis orchids attached. Streamers from the orchids were entwined with lilies of the valley and ivy.

Mrs. Robert Savereide of Riverside was matron of honor, wearing a lemon frost gown of ottoman in an A-line silhouette with floral designs of coral, gold and lemon on green leaves at the waistline. She carried a white basket filled with white daisies and ivy.

BRIDESMAIDS WERE Mrs. Jerry Burk of Bloomington, her sister-in-law; Mrs. Dennis Coniglia of Omaha and Barbara Schmieder of Amana, Iowa. They wore dresses matching the matron of honor's but carried yellow daisies in white baskets.

The bride's 6-year-old niece, Susan Burk, was flower girl in a dress identical to the adult attendants. She carried yellow daisies in a miniature basket.

Lt. William Burfeind of Gallup, N.M., was his brother's best man, and ushers were Jerry Burk, brother of the bride; Robert Heidrick, Des Plaines; Capt. Dennis Page, London, England; Ronald Winders of Waterloo and James E. Wood Jr., of Madison, Wis.

As they witnessed the ceremony, Mrs. Burk was attired in a lemon yellow ensemble with a yellow cymbidium corsage and Mrs. Burfeind wore a lime green ensemble with a yellow orchid corsage.

A RECEPTION followed the rites at Waterloo Elks Club for 200 guests. The couple then departed for a 10-day honeymoon in New Orleans.

The bride is a graduate of St. Luke's School of Nursing and then attended the University of Northern Iowa, both in Cedar Rapids.

The groom was graduated from Arlington High School and Westminster College, Fulton, Mo. He received his master's from the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

AAUW Convention in Progress Now

Mrs. A. Rabchuk of Arlington Heights, president of that town's branch of the American Association of University Women, along with the delegates and workers will join over 2,300 college-educated women from every state in Chicago for the AAUW biennial national convention to examine the responsibility of the educated woman in today's society. The convention will run through Thursday, June 19, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Among internationally prominent speakers addressing the convention are former U. S. Ambassador to Japan, Edwin O. Reischauer, and Mrs. Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King, Jr.

Pulitzer Prize-winning poet Gwendolyn Brooks is also slated.

A convention highlight will be the presentation of the first student recipients of the AAUW Coretta Scott King awards made possible by a special fund raised by members during the year.

The Association's four study-action topics for 1968-71 will be featured at two convention sessions. Under consideration will be "The Academic Community - New Look on Campus," "The Human Use of Urban Space," "This Beleaguered Earth - Can Man Survive?" and "American Foreign Policy: Dilemmas and Realities of Power."

PWP Hears Lawyer On Post-Divorced

Miss Jeanette Nottingham of Nottingham and Feldstein, Attorneys at Law, will return as guest speaker of Northwest Suburban Chapter 168 of Parents Without Partners on Friday evening.

Her topic will be "Following Up After the Divorce." At times it is difficult to obtain the support payments needed to raise children after the courts have nullified a marriage, and on the other hand, the men have trouble in meeting the demands set by the ex-wife and the judge.

Miss Nottingham has done a great deal of work concerning these matters and will be on hand after the meeting to answer questions. She received her Doctorate from De Paul University and practices law in Chicago.

Northwest Suburban Chapter 168 of Parents Without Partners meets the first and third Friday of each month at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 15 North Hickory, Arlington Heights.

Further information may be obtained by writing PWP, Inc., P.O. Box 472, Palatine, Ill., or by calling 358-2924 or 253-0890.

La Leche Meeting

"The Art of Breastfeeding and Overcoming Difficulties" is the subject of the 8:30 p.m. meeting tonight (Tuesday) of Arlington Heights LaLeche League. The meeting will be held in the Arlington Heights home of Mrs. Raymond Hornbostel, 2112 E. James St.

Mrs. Roland Shepard and Mrs. Quentin Ford will lead the program. Babies are welcome at the meetings and those wishing further information or counseling may contact Mrs. Hornbostel at 392-2724 or Mrs. Shepard at 259-3764.

Thursday Travelog

Parted Mates will meet Thursday, June 19, at 8 p.m. in the Winston Plaza, 1400 North Ave., Melrose Park, to hear Mrs. Betty Coffin of Illinois Bell Telephone Co. give a travelogue, "Highroads of Illinois."

Parted Mates is a social group open to widows, widowers, divorced, and legally-separated persons. Prospective members may call FI 4-1795 after 6 p.m. for further information.

'Snacks' Lesson for Satellite II Group

The Satellite II Homemakers of Mount Prospect will meet Thursday, June 19, at Mount Prospect Community Center at 8 p.m.

The meeting will feature a lesson on snack foods, presented by the home adviser from the University of Illinois Extension Service.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Ervin Cole and Mrs. Daniel Kiner of Mount Prospect, who invite all women of the area to attend.

PEDIATRIC WHEELCHAIR has been added to the Lending Closet supplies of Elk Grove Nurses Club. The purchase was made possible by funds from the local Jaycees. Gerald Aleksey, Jaycee president, is shown with Mrs.

Don Meyer, Lending Closet chairman, and Kelly Meyer, who tries out the chair. Mrs. Meyer may be called at 437-4532 by Elk Grovers needing sick-room equipment.

Relief Corps Hostess

Mrs. Ruby Florey was hostess at the June 6 meeting of Sutherland Women's Relief Corps 89 of Palatine.

Plans were completed for attending the state convention of the Relief Corps to be held June 19-21 in Springfield. Members were also reminded to fly their American flags on Flag Day June 14.

Leather Weather

Label it leather for the winter days ahead. Leather trims, leather goes into the makings of whole garments, leather shoes or it is dull-finished suede. Jacques Tiffau, designer at New York's Tiffau & Busch, shows leather evening clothes, their midriffs bared, and thongs of leather lacing the naked area.

Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court collided again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet Constitutional requirement of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO—Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $325,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Ogilvie's Help Asked

PEORIA The Rev. Jesse Jackson, director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket, said Monday a "breakdown of law and order" exists in Cairo and urged Governor Ogilvie to join him in the troubled city.

In Peoria on a tour of poverty areas, Reverend Jackson sent a telegram to Ogilvie saying, "A national emergency exists in Cairo, to which you as governor in this state should respond."

Nixon Asks Air Bill

WASHINGTON—President Nixon yesterday asked Congress to pass a $5 billion program of airport and airways improvement for the next 10 years that would be financed by a series of taxes on those who use the facilities.

Nixon asked for a new $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights starting in the United States, an increase from 5 to 8 per cent in the tax on domestic airline tickets, and a new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

ARTIST KARSTEN Topelmann displays one of his favorite oil and water color painter may be viewed at a current showing in the Schaumburg Township Library.

Painting Is His Art

by SHERI DILL

One cannot walk into the home of painter Karsten Topelmann without immediately sensing the kind of man he is. Bright orange drapes, flowers blooming in antique bird cages, the odor of garlic bread baking in the kitchen, painstakingly kept antique furniture, and three delightful children begging in German to go swimming, all depict Topelmann as a man contented with life and its pleasures.

So does his art. "In today's time of unrest, everyone needs a quiet place to get away from the turmoil. This is what I think a picture should represent," Topelmann says.

Topelmann has a one-man art show now on display at the Schaumburg Township Library. It will continue through June.

BORN IN 1929, HE attended school in Munich, and prepared for entrance into the Academy of Art there by studying under Prof. F. H. Ehnicke, one of Germany's top commercial artists. In 1955, Topelmann moved to the United States and continued his work with oils and water colors.

He likes water color best. "Water color is closer to the artist's interpretation of nature and his feeling for the things he sees. Some artists use water color as a stepping stone to oils. I think it is more valuable to the viewer if he can understand the concentration that goes into it."

'Contra Costa' Training

Approval for Dist. 21 to investigate the possibility of adopting the "Contra Costa" method of teaching social studies was given Thursday night in an informal poll of board members.

Miss Marjorie Beu, director of instruction for the district, said that Fred Miller of the Elk Grove Training and Development Center could provide in-service training for teachers in the method one day a week starting in the fall.

The board instructed Miss Beu to look further into the possibility of implementing the program to determine its cost to the district and exactly how it could be set up.

The Contra Costa method was developed by the late Hilda Taba of San Francisco State College. The method teaches children to think critically and logically instead of memorizing a set of facts.

RIVER TRAILS School Dist. 26 and Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will implement the Tabas program in their schools next fall.

In other action, the board set the textbook rental fee for the next school year at $5 for kindergarten books and $8 for texts used in grades one through eight. This fee schedule was also in effect during the 1968-69 school year.

The towel rental fee for the junior high school students was set at $4. This rate was also in effect during the 1968-69 school year.

Donald Brown, Dist. 21 personnel director, in a report to the board, said teacher recruitment for the next school year was "coming along nicely."

"We have recruited extensively in Illinois and border states and most positions have been filled," Brown stated. "This year, for the first time, the district has had enough applicants to be able to pick and choose somewhat with regard to hiring teachers," he added.

figure out a way to get the paint on the canvas in some way that had not been done. "Then make up some explanation of why you did it that way, and you'll be a recognized artist overnight. He knew I was kidding of course."

THOUGH HE WORKS with water color and oil, Topelmann says the two have to be treated differently. "Water color provides an outlet for capturing mood. Oil provides a more refined version of a mood or scene."

"People respond more to oils than water color. It's regarded as more valuable so it's demanded more," he said.

Topelmann usually works on his oils in the mornings before he goes to his "chore," his job as a package designer at Container Corporation. He works on several at a time so he can stop and think about them in between. "You have to do a lot more to an oil painting and it takes more time," he said.

His weekends are spent on water colors, giving him a chance to become "accelerated." "Every mistake in water color shows and can't be corrected so you have to be ready to concentrate," he said.

TOPELMANN'S QUIET home in Kennebunkport gives his needed isolation from the turbulence of the city. He agrees with the view of artists as sensitive and desirous of escaping from the world.

"I have separated myself physically by moving out here from our apartment on Lake Shore Drive and mentally by not painting things of the time."

"You have to get away from the negative. I try for appeal without trying to be negative or positive," he said.

Police Organizers Moved

by BARRY SIGALE

Four top members of the Cook County Police Association, including the president of the organization, have been transferred from their positions with the sheriff's police to other tasks in the county in the last four days.

A general order was released telling of the transfer of the men, plus six other policemen, in a move termed "strictly routine" by John Kistner, chief of the Cook County Police Department.

"We are taking this action to improve the supervision of our division," said Kistner. "We are reshaping our department

Negotiators will get still another chance to settle the long-standing Cambridge Subdivision drainage dispute.

Rather than setting a trial date for the four suits connected with the dispute, Judge Daniel Covelli set up another pre-trial meeting for 2 p.m. Thursday.

Richard Brown, builder of Cambridge, said the judge decided to continue negotiations because "we were so close to a settlement."

To this Richard Rysa, Buffalo Grove village attorney, agreed: "We're so close now that it should be settled Thursday."

"The only reason we didn't reach complete agreement was Lawrence Carrozza's failure to be there," Brown said. Carrozza, the township highway commissioner, is a defendant in one of the lawsuits.

James Ryan, Carrozza's attorney, said it is not customary for clients to attend pre-trial meetings. "This was the reason Mr. Carrozza wasn't there Thursday," he said.

BROWN CONTENTS THAT Wheeling Township should pay part of the costs because the channeling of Cambridge water away from Jackson Drive would ease township maintenance costs on Jackson Drive.

Covelli asked Ryan Thursday to have him attend the meeting.

However, according to Wheeling township officials, Carrozza is vacationing in Florida. When informed of this Monday by the Herald, Ryan said he plans to try to reach Carrozza. Ryan said that if Carrozza doesn't attend Thursday's meeting, he expects the negotiations to be continued once more.

Rysa supported Brown's optimism: "By Thursday the whole thing should be ironed out. I don't think there will be any necessity for a restraining order against Frazier's dam now."

William B. Frazier, who lives on Jackson Drive, built a dam to block Cambridge water from draining across his land. He is now a defendant in a suit filed by Brown and three Cambridge homeowners. The judge also asked that Frazier appear at Thursday's meeting.

Ryan was not so optimistic. He said the parties in the negotiations have not yet agreed on how much each is to pay. He said that even if Carrozza attends Thursday's meeting, no settlement would be reached then.

Once the parties do agree to a solution, they will submit it to Covelli for approval. If he approves it, he will issue a judge's order, which would be binding on all parties, Ryan said.

Behind Flooding

by ALAN AKERSON

Recently, Richard Brown, developer of Cambridge subdivision, discussed the flooding situations and the efforts to solve it. In a separate interview, two Cambridge residents living on University Drive told of their difficulties with flooding.

Brown said Cambridge area storm water flows toward the University Drive cul-de-sac because that is the natural low point of the subdivision's southern end. This was the case even before he built Cambridge, he said.

Cambridge water was to flow from the subdivision along the natural drainage paths to the low point of Jackson Drive, where a sewer was to carry it away. However, the Jackson Drive sewer is inadequate.

Brown maintains, and Jackson Drive residents agree, that the street has always flooded after a heavy rain. Jackson Drive residents complain, however, that since Cambridge was built, the flooding is more severe and takes more time to drain.

BROWN DENIES THAT in building Cambridge he increased the runoff from

No Police Answer

Wheeling's Village Board hesitated to act on a renewed proposal from the Cook County Police Association last night because the village attorney was absent from the meeting.

An association representative asked the village board to set up a three-man committee to enter into a dialogue with the policemen. Committee members would include one trustee, one citizen appointed by the mayor and approved the association and one citizen appointed by the association members.

He also asked that the association be recognized at the budget hearing as representing the policemen who are its members.

CCPA Pres. John Flood and Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon met in Scanlon's office Friday night for an hour.

Flood, who had asked the village president to meet with him, said the purpose of the meeting was to see where the two groups stood. "I think the board was getting scared of us," Flood said about the Friday meeting.

Flood said they talked generally about the history of the CCPA and about what the organization is seeking throughout the county. He said Scanlon refused to talk specifically about the Wheeling situation, a fact which the village president verified.

THE VILLAGE HAS refused to recognize association representatives because its attorney says such recognition would be illegal.

The CCPA contends that the board can recognize its representatives under a provision in the Illinois Municipal Code.

Flood said yesterday he is hopeful "a good dialogue can be reached" between the village board and the association. The association president seemed hopeful that the board will appoint an ad hoc committee to meet with the association. Flood requested such a committee at the village board meeting last week.

FLOOD WROTE A LETTER last week to the board asking to be recognized so he could seek an answer to his request for the ad hoc committee.

Seventeen policemen who are members of the association also wrote letters to the board. They want the CCPA to represent them and will not discuss their jobs on an individual basis.

The policemen also told the board that "there is indeed a large problem existing at this time because of the board's refusal to recognize our elected representatives." They told the board that Flood was speaking for them at the Monday night meeting.

THE ASSOCIATION president said yesterday he was hopeful that the board would discuss the policemen's requests in detail at last night's village board meeting.

Car Theft Reported

A light blue 1967 Volkswagen sedan was stolen from the parking lot at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect last Friday, police said.

Mrs. Sally Felten, 304 N. Pine, Prospect Heights told police she left the car keys in the glove compartment while she was shopping.

Who's To Blame for Flooding? 'Everyone'

the subdivision. "The runoff might come faster, but it is no worse," he said.

Lying between the subdivision and Jackson Drive, right in the path of the storm water, is the property owned by William B. Frazier. To keep the water from washing across his land, Frazier built a dam. In stopping the water, however, the dam forces it to back up into Cambridge on University Drive.

The solution to the problem lies in running a sewer from Cambridge to a retention basin to be built south of Cambridge. Originally the basin was designed to cope with water from the new development only. Handling Cambridge water means a bigger basin and added expense. To this, Brown says, "The cost of enlarging the retention basin is not just our responsibility."

A fair settlement, in Brown's opinion, would be for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove as well as the developers each to pay a share of the cost. Other parties involved in the pretrial negotiations agree with Brown on this.

WHEELING TOWNSHIP should also pay parts of the costs, says Brown.

"Their street (Jackson Drive) has always flooded," he said. "When we get this thing resolved, it will help them as much as anyone."

Brown ended his remarks by pointing out that when people on University Drive bought homes from him, he agreed in writing to buy back the homes at the purchase price anytime in the next two years, if any of the owners want him to. Brown explained these owners were advised of the flooding problem before they bought their homes.

The eight homeowners who signed the agreements with Brown all moved into their new houses on University Drive last fall. Three of the homeowners have since entered into a suit with Brown against Frazier. According to one of the homeowners, Jerry Driscoll, Brown is paying all legal fees in the suit.

DRISCOLL AND ANOTHER University Drive homeowner, Bob Franke, gave their views on the flooding that comes with each sizeable rain. Franke is not a party in the suit against Frazier.

"We feel that if the retention basin is built, there is no problem," Driscoll said.

But, in the meantime, residents must contend with water, sometimes almost two feet deep, that comes to within a yard of their homes.

"When I see my kids slopping around in the mud, I get disgusted," Driscoll says. "Sure, we're emotional about it. We paid for our homes, and we have a right to be."

Franke called Brown's offer to buy the house at purchase price "ludicrous." He points out that appreciation on the house and higher interest rates prevent him from selling the house back to Brown. Franke also contends Cambridge salesmen told him about the flooding problem six days before he moved in.

To this, Brown points out that the agreement he made with homeowners was the only realistic thing to be done.

"You can't take into account the possibility of future economic conditions in a case like this," he says.

"Besides," he added, "the value of those houses and the interest rates could have gone down just as easily as they went up."

Driscoll said one of the biggest problems with the water is the risk of a car losing its brakes when it goes through the water. "So far, there have been no accidents," he said.

WHAT SO FAR has been only a nuisance might have become a disaster a week and a half ago. One of the small children living on the street began heading for the water, which was almost two feet deep at the time. "Someone grabbed him just before he went in," Franke said.

For some of the houses, the backyard is nothing more than a sort of unofficial retention basin for Cambridge water. Driscoll said he still hasn't been able to walk all the way to the back of his property because of the water.

Driscoll and Franke said the residents, though they were informed about the problem in one way or another when they moved in, feel they are being "put off."

Though they are maintaining a "wait-and-see" attitude for the present, they admit they don't expect a solution to come from the pretrial meetings.

Who do they feel is to blame? "Everyone—I blame everyone for it; myself included," said Driscoll.

Sophomore To Receive Senior Piano Diploma

A Prospect High School sophomore who won the first prize in the Chicago Tribune Festival at the age of eight, will be awarded her senior diploma in piano Thursday night at the Berning School of Music.

Patti Schummer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schummer of Mount Prospect, is a student of Harry M. Berning, head of the music school.

She will also be heard at Thursday night's festivities in duo piano playing the Valse Opus 15 by Arensky in Hanson Hall, North Park College.

Patti also plays oboe in Prospect's symphonic band.

BILL GAPPERT, president of the Elk and organization are the keys to Grove Township Young Republicans, success, no matter what goals you like world travel and believes plan-hope to attain.

He Likes Aussies

by BRAD BREKKE

He's six-foot tall, balding, and he prefers kangaroos.

Bill Gappert, president of the Young Republicans of Elk Grove Township, which now has 25 members, is an easy going fellow who believes world travel is broadening, and he's flown half-way around the world to prove it.

"I toured the states as a boy . . . San Francisco is still my favorite place . . . and now I'm touring the world."

"A few years ago I went to Hawaii, Tahiti and Australia. Last year I went to Europe, but I didn't enjoy it as much as Australia. It's too Americanized. So a few months ago I went back to Australia for a month."

"It's still in the distant future, but I'd like to make my next trek to the British Isles and tour the country by motorcycle," he said.

GAPPERT, 33 and single, is a purchasing agent for Fuzze-On Products, 1620 W. Central Road, Mount Prospect. He lives in an unincorporated area near Arlington Heights with his parents.

A man who believes planning and organization are the keys to success, Gappert said he methodically plans both his work and his leisure time activities.

"I don't have any political ambitions, but I do want to stay and grow with my company. A man once told me if you think like a peanut, you'll be a peanut. I believe him. You have to think big."

Gappert wears a small kangaroo button in his lapel, instead of the traditional GOP elephant.

WHEN ASKED about it, he said, "I got it in Australia. It doesn't mean anything, but I believe in being an individual, so I wear it. Of course there's a limit to being an individual, too. I don't think it should go to the point of leading demonstrations against police or the war in Vietnam."

Gappert, who lived on the northwest side of Chicago until he was 11, graduated from Arlington High School in 1954 and earned a degree in geology from Colorado College in 1959. After graduation, he served a six month hitch in the Army and came back to work for Fuzze-On, where he has been ever since.

A golf and ski enthusiast, Gappert says "I'm going to take sailing lessons soon and after that, I hope to get a boat. Only trouble is finding a place to moor it. I checked on several places in Chicago and most of them have a three year waiting list. The nearest I can get is in Kenosha and that's too far to be convenient," he said.

GAPPERT said he believes in personal involvement and joining the Young Republicans is one way he gets it. "You should know what issues are important to your area, and who your representatives are. It's your duty as a citizen."

Then with a quick nod of his head, Gappert checked his wristwatch, which is attached to a thick leather band and said, "Time to get back to the office. I have a lot of work to do yet today." And the interview was over.

Library Begins Reading Plan

Wheeling's public library began a summer reading program and story telling hour this week.

Wheeling and Buffalo Grove children in grades one through eight may join the "Busy Bee Reading Club," by reading 10 books between June 6 and Aug. 30. For each book a child reads and writes a short report on, a "bee" is added to his "hive."

STORY HOURS for boys and girls 4 to 6-years-old will be each Thursday morning from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Beginning this Thursday, the stories will be told by Mrs. Pat Wolf and Mrs. Barbara Rosenbaum.

The programs, held at the library at 24 S. Milwaukee Ave., are open to all residents of the library district.

Warn Residents Of Concrete Use

Residents affected by the 1969 sidewalk maintenance program have been cautioned not to drive over the new sidewalks for at least 10 days after the concrete is poured.

Residents should park their cars on the street, and call the police department at 537-2131 to keep police from ticketing the car for the 10 day period.

CEMENT POURING is scheduled to begin on Wille Street, Wheeling Avenue, Center Street and Highland Avenue. Only sidewalks designated for repair earlier this year will be replaced.

This is the first time the village has undertaken any major sidewalk repair and replacement.

Cost of the project is being carried by motor fuel tax funds.

Geological Society Will Hold Meeting

The Des Plaines Valley Geological Society will meet June 19 at 8 p.m. at the West Park Field House, 651 Wolf Road, Des Plaines.

Robert Simonson, a geology instructor at Maine East High School, will present a slide lecture on mineral identification by color and techniques used in photographing minerals.

Visitors are invited to attend the meeting.

Good Shepherd Slates Times for Worship

The Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd will begin its summer worship and education schedule Sunday June 29.

Worship at the church, located at 1111 N. Elmhurst Road in Prospect Heights, will be at 8 and 10 a.m. Sunday church school, also in the church building, will be at 9 a.m. for 3-year-olds through adults and again at 10 a.m. for 3-year-olds through fourth graders.

AFS Students Will Visit

Forty-one American Field Service (AFS) students from 29 countries will visit Wheeling July 3-6. A talent show, cookout, fireworks display and visit to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago are some of the activities planned for the foreign visitors, who will stay with Wheeling families during their visit.

Wheeling residents Hank and Linda Gaudsmith are handling the arrangements.

Each of the AFS students has spent the past year attending high school and living with an American family in a community in the United States.

Their visit to Wheeling is one of several they will make en route to Washington, D. C., where they are scheduled to join 74 other touring bus loads of AFS students in a final meeting before returning to their respective countries.

The purpose of the end-of-the-year bus trips is to enable the 3,040 AFS students to see as much of the United States as possible during their one year visit. Over 25,000 families in 650 American communities will host the students.

AFS CONDUCTS International Scholarship Programs for students 16 to 18 years old from several nations. A non-profit organization with no religious or political affiliations, the AFS seeks to foster understanding of both the differences and the similarities which exist among peoples of the world. To accomplish this there are two AFS programs: the first, Students to the U.S., brought more than 3,000 students from 61 countries to live, study and join in community life in the United States in 1968-69. The other, Americans Abroad, sent over 1,500 students to 48 countries overseas for an equivalent experience in 1968-69.

In the past 21 years, more than 47,000 students from 75 countries have participated in the AFS programs. AFS has 40 overseas offices and 3,000 volunteer chapters throughout the U. S.

The Lighter Side

For Love of Dad

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Just about the most beautiful thing in this world to me is the esteem and affection that is lavished upon us fathers by department stores.

We may not be revered too highly by our children, but the department stores love and respect us with a zeal that knows no bounds.

Reading the Father's Day advertisements always brings a lump to my throat, and I'm not what you would call the sentimental type.

The most touching thing about it is the way the department stores are willing to overlook our shortcomings and follies. So maybe we're not perfect. So what? To a department store, old dad is still the greatest guy around and deserves nothing but the best.

One store, I note, wants me to have a pair of "kicky party pants" done in "smashing floral prints for Pop." I got really choked up over that one.

In the eyes of my offspring, I am strictly a parallelogram having four equal sides and four right angles. They would laugh their heads off at the idea of me stepping out in flowered trousers.

But there is no generation gap between a father and a department store.

A department store simply is blindly adoring of fathers. It will go to any extreme to be a "dad-pleaser."

That means a lot in these days when the family unit is said to be rapidly eroding as a binding-force and stabilizing influence in American society.

I'll be honest about it. At my age, I really would look pretty ridiculous in "kicky party pants." But it's nice to know that somebody still thinks of me as a swinger.

"Pop's the tops," the ads say. "For dad: the something extra." "Treat him to the luxury he so richly deserves."

The department stores, at least, are not ashamed to express a little honest emotion.

It is often alleged that America has become excessively materialistic, with commercial values taking precedent over human values.

But anyone who bothers to study the Fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate. fallacy of that allegation.

Department stores spend a great deal of money to exhibit their appreciation of fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate.

Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court collided again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet Constitutional requirement of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO—Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $225,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Ogilvie's Help Asked

PEORIA The Rev. Jesse Jackson, director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket, said Monday a "breakdown of law and order" exists in Cairo and urged Governor Ogilvie to join him in the troubled city.

In Peoria on a tour of poverty areas, Reverend Jackson sent a telegram to Ogilvie saying, "A national emergency exists in Cairo, to which you as governor in this state should respond."

Nixon Asks Air Bill

WASHINGTON—President Nixon yesterday asked Congress to pass a $5 billion program of airport and airway improvement for the next 10 years that would be financed by a series of taxes on those who use the facilities.

Nixon asked for a new $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights starting in the United States, an increase from 5 to 8 per cent in the tax on domestic airline tickets, and a new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

ARTIST KARSTEN Topelmann displays one of his favorite oil, a Baroque church. The painting and other work by the oil and water color painter may be viewed at a current showing in the Schaumburg Township Library.

Painting Is His Art

by SHERI DILL

One cannot walk into the home of painter Karsten Topelmann without immediately sensing the kind of man he is. Bright orange drapes, flowers blooming in antique bird cages, the odor of garlic bread baking in the kitchen, painstakingly kept antique furniture, and three delightful children begging in German to go swimming, all depict Topelmann as a man contented with life and its pleasures.

So does his art. "In today's time of unrest, everyone needs a quiet place to get away from the turmoil. This is what I think a picture should represent," Topelmann says.

Topelmann has a one-man art show now on display at the Schaumburg Township Library. It will continue through June. BORN IN 1929, HE attended school in Munich, and prepared for entrance into the Academy of Art there by studying under Prof. F. H. Ehmecke, one of Germany's top commercial artists. In 1955, Topelmann moved to the United States and continued his work with oils and water colors.

He likes water color best. "Water color is closer to the artist's interpretation of nature and his feeling for the things he sees. Some artists use water color as a stepping stone to oils. I think it is more valuable to the viewer if he can understand the concentration that goes into it."

Topelmann's paintings are primarily landscapes and still life studies. "I LIKE TO CREATE mood visually through a recognizable scene," he says. "I want all elements of the picture to be positive with good color. Then it is happy."

Topelmann says he chooses one focal point for the picture and the others act as background 'music' for a central theme. "I want the eye to rest in a certain area and then wander. The viewer should be drawn into a picture which is more than a spectacle of color."

"Many painters say they are making social comment on the unrest of society," he says. "I'm of the opinion we need a counterpoint to this. I like to give a feeling of relaxation and heartwarming."

Topelmann feels he could do work that falls into the realm of modern art "without much trouble."

"IT'S ALMOST TOO EASY even though it's supposed to have some kind of theory behind it. Without the observation of nature, you lose something. It's a fad to look for forms and excitement, but I wouldn't be satisfied that I had done anything worthwhile."

When asked to give advice on how to start painting to a man he met at one of his art shows, Topelmann told the man to buy five tubes of paint and a canvas, and figure out a way to get the paint on the canvas in some way that had not been done. "Then make up some explanation of why you did it that way, and you'll be a recognized artist overnight. He knew I was kidding of course."

THOUGH HE WORKS with water color and oil, Topelmann says the two have to be treated differently. "Water color provides an outlet for capturing mood. Oil provides a more refined version of a mood or scene."

"People respond more to oils than water color. It's regarded as more valuable so it's demanded more," he said.

Topelmann usually works on his oils in the mornings before he goes to his "chore," his job as a package designer at Container Corporation. He works on several at a time so he can stop and think about them in between. "You have to do a lot more to an oil painting and it takes more time," he said.

His weekends are spent on water colors, giving him a chance to become "accelerated." "Every mistake in water color shows and can't be corrected so you have to be ready to concentrate," he said.

TOPELMANN'S QUIET home in Keweenaw gives his needed isolation from the turbulence of the city. He agrees with the view of artists as sensitive and desirous of escaping from the world.

"I have separated myself physically by moving out here from our apartment on Lake Shore Drive and mentally by not painting things of the time."

"You have to get away from the negative. I try to appeal without trying to be negative or positive," he said.

Approval for Dist. 21 to investigate the possibility of adopting the "Contra Costa" method of teaching social studies was given Thursday night in an informal poll of board members.

Miss Marjorie Beu, director of instruction for the district, said that Fred Miller of the Elk Grove Training and Development Center could provide in-service training for teachers in the method one day a week starting in the fall.

The board instructed Miss Beu to look further into the possibility of implementing the program to determine its cost to the district and exactly how it could be set up.

The Contra Costa method was developed by the late Hilda Taba of San Francisco State College. The method teaches children to think critically and logically instead of memorizing a set of facts.

RIVER TRAILS School Dist. 26 and Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will implement the Taber program in their schools next fall.

In other action, the board set the textbook rental fee for the next school year at $5 for kindergarten books and $8 for texts used in grades one through eight. This fee schedule was also in effect during the 1968-69 school year.

The towel rental fee for the junior high school students was set at $4. This rate was also in effect during the 1968-69 school year.

Donald Brown, Dist. 21 personnel director, in a report to the board, said teacher recruitment for the next school year was "coming along nicely."

"We have recruited extensively in Illinois and border states and most positions have been filled," Brown stated. "This year, for the first time, the district has had enough applicants to be able to pick and choose somewhat with regard to hiring teachers," he added.

Negotiators will get still another chance to settle the long-standing Cambridge Subdivision drainage dispute.

Rather than setting a trial date for the four suits connected with the dispute, Judge Daniel Covelli set up another pre-trial meeting for 2 p.m. Thursday.

Richard Brown, builder of Cambridge, said the judge decided to continue negotiations because "we were so close to a settlement."

To this Richard Rysa, Buffalo Grove village attorney, agreed: "We're so close now that it should be settled Thursday."

"The only reason we didn't reach complete agreement was Lawrence Carrozza's failure to be there," Brown said. Carrozza, the township highway commissioner, is a defendant in one of the lawsuits.

James Ryan, Carrozza's attorney, said it is not customary for clients to attend pre-trial meetings. "This was the reason Mr. Carrozza wasn't there Thursday," he said.

BROWN CONTENTS THAT Wheeling Township should pay part of the costs because the channeling of Cambridge water away from Jackson Drive would ease township maintenance costs on Jackson Drive.

Covelli asked Ryan Thursday to have him attend the meeting.

However, according to Wheeling township officials, Carrozza is vacationing in Florida. When informed of this Monday by the Herald, Ryan said he plans to try to reach Carrozza. Ryan said that if Carrozza doesn't attend Thursday's meeting, he expects the negotiations to be continued once more.

Rysa supported Brown's optimism: "By Thursday the whole thing should be ironed out. I don't think there will be any necessity for a restraining order against Frazier's dam now."

William B. Frazier, who lives on Jackson Drive, built a dam to block Cambridge water from draining across his land. He is now a defendant in a suit filed by Brown and three Cambridge homeowners. The judge also asked that Frazier appear at Thursday's meeting.

Ryan was not so optimistic. He said the parties in the negotiations have not yet agreed on how much each is to pay. He said that even if Carrozza attends Thursday's meeting, no settlement would be reached then.

Once the parties do agree to a solution, they will submit it to Covelli for approval. If he approves it, he will issue a judge's order, which would be binding on all parties, Ryan said.

Brown said Cambridge area storm water flows toward the University Drive cul-de-sac because that is the natural low point of the subdivision's southern end. This was the case even before he built Cambridge, he said.

Cambridge water was to flow from the subdivision along the natural drainage paths to the low point of Jackson Drive, where a sewer was to carry it away. However, the Jackson Drive sewer is inadequate.

Brown maintains, and Jackson Drive residents agree, that the street has always flooded after a heavy rain. Jackson Drive residents complain, however, that since Cambridge was built, the flooding is more severe and takes more time to drain.

Wheeling's Village Board hesitated to act on a renewed proposal from the Cook County Police Association last night because the village attorney was absent from the meeting.

An association representative asked the village board to set up a three-man committee to enter into a dialogue with the policemen. Committee members would include one trustee, one citizen appointed by the mayor and approved the association and one citizen appointed by the association members.

He also asked that the association be recognized at the budget hearing as representing the policemen who are its members.

CCPA Pres. John Flood and Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon met in Scanlon's office Friday night for an hour.

Flood, who had asked the village president to meet with him, said the purpose of the meeting was to see where the two groups stood. "I think the board was getting scared of us," Flood said about the Friday meeting.

Flood said they talked generally about the history of the CCPA and about what the organization is seeking throughout the county. He said Scanlon refused to talk specifically about the Wheeling situation, a fact which the village president verified.

THE VILLAGE HAS refused to recognize association representatives because its attorney says such recognition would be illegal.

The CCPA contends that the board can recognize its representatives under a provision in the Illinois Municipal Code.

Flood said yesterday he is hopeful "a good dialogue can be reached" between the village board and the association. The association president seemed hopeful that the board will appoint an ad hoc committee to meet with the association. Flood requested such a committee at the village board meeting last week.

FLOOD WROTE A LETTER last week to the board asking to be recognized so he could seek an answer to his request for the ad hoc committee.

Seventeen policemen who are members of the association also wrote letters to the board. They want the CCPA to represent them and will not discuss their jobs on an individual basis.

The policemen also told the board that "there is indeed a large problem existing at this time because of the board's refusal to recognize our elected representatives."

They told the board that Flood was speaking for them at the Monday night meeting. THE ASSOCIATION president said yesterday he was hopeful that the board would discuss the policemen's requests in detail at last night's village board meeting.

Car Theft Reported

A light blue 1967 Volkswagen sedan was stolen from the parking lot at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect last Friday, police said.

Mrs. Sally Felten 304 N. Pine, Prospect Heights told police she left the car keys in the glove compartment while she was shopping.

board of our organization, one South Side chapter president and a secretary-treasurer have been transferred in the last month," said Flood.

"WHEN WE FORMED the association we knew we had to bear heartache and hardship. But we in the association were not to be pushed down or lose our resolve. Our organization is too strong at this time. Our membership is totally behind us. They can transfer men, but they can't transfer the ideas of men."

"Whatever happens to us," Flood continued, "can happen to any of our membership. We will continue to fight for dignity and self respect."

Behind Flooding

by ALAN AKERSON

Recently, Richard Brown, developer of Cambridge subdivision, discussed the flooding situations and the efforts to solve it. In a separate interview, two Cambridge residents living on University Drive told of their difficulties with flooding.

Brown said Cambridge area storm water flows toward the University Drive cul-de-sac because that is the natural low point of the subdivision's southern end. This was the case even before he built Cambridge, he said.

Cambridge water was to flow from the subdivision along the natural drainage paths to the low point of Jackson Drive, where a sewer was to carry it away. However, the Jackson Drive sewer is inadequate.

Police Organizers Moved

by BARRY SIGALE

Four top members of the Cook County Police Association, including the president of the organization, have been transferred from their positions with the sheriff's police to other tasks in the county in the last four days.

A general order was released telling of the transfer of the men, plus six other policemen, in a move termed "strictly routine" by John Kistner, chief of the Cook County Police Department.

"We are taking this action to improve the supervision of our division," said Kistner. "We are reshaping our department for the betterment of supervision, to improve it and beef it up."

INCLUDED IN THE transfer was Sgt. John Flood of Wheeling, president of the association which represents 85 per cent of Cook County policemen.

Flood, who was transferred to clerical duties in Chicago, is a veteran of more than 10 years of police work. He was in charge of the detective division for one year and the criminal extradition for the felony warrant section for all of Cook County for another year.

He was a patrolman for two years and a patrol sergeant for the last six years.

"Three members from the executive board of our organization, one South Side chapter president and a secretary-treasurer have been transferred in the last month," said Flood.

"WHEN WE FORMED the association we knew we had to bear heartache and hardship. But we in the association were not to be pushed down or lose our resolve. Our organization is too strong at this time. Our membership is totally behind us. They can transfer men, but they can't transfer the ideas of men."

"Whatever happens to us," Flood continued, "can happen to any of our membership. We will continue to fight for dignity and self respect."

Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court collided again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet Constitutional requirement of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO—Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $325,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Ogilvie's Help Asked

PEORIA The Rev. Jesse Jackson, director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket, said Monday a "breakdown of law and order" exists in Cairo and urged Governor Ogilvie to join him in the troubled city.

In Peoria on a tour of poverty areas, Reverend Jackson sent a telegram to Ogilvie saying, "A national emergency exists in Cairo, to which you as governor in this state should respond."

Nixon Asks Air Bill

WASHINGTON—President Nixon yesterday asked Congress to pass a $5 billion program of airport and airways improvement for the next 10 years that would be financed by a series of taxes on those who use the facilities.

Nixon asked for a new $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights starting in the United States, an increase from 5 to 8 per cent in the tax on domestic airline tickets, and a new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

ARTIST KARSTEN Topelmann displays one of his favorite oil and water color paintings may be viewed at a current showing in the Schaumburg Township Library.

Painting Is His Art

by SHERI DILL

One cannot walk into the home of painter Karsten Topelmann without immediately sensing the kind of man he is. Bright orange drapes, flowers blooming in antique bird cages, the odor of garlic bread baking in the kitchen, painstakingly kept antique furniture, and three delightful children begging in German to go swimming, all depict Topelmann as a man contented with life and its pleasures.

So does his art. "In today's time of unrest, everyone needs a quiet place to get away from the turmoil. This is what I think a picture should represent," Topelmann says.

Topelmann has a one-man art show now on display at the Schaumburg Township Library. It will continue through June.

BORN IN 1929, HE attended school in Munich, and prepared for entrance into the Academy of Art there by studying under Prof. F. H. Ehmecke, one of Germany's top commercial artists. In 1955, Topelmann moved to the United States and continued his work with oils and water colors.

He likes water color best. "Water color is closer to the artist's interpretation of nature and his feeling for the things he sees. Some artists use water color as a stepping stone to oils. I think it is more valuable to the viewer if he can understand the concentration that goes into it."

Topelmann's paintings are primarily landscapes and still life studies.

"I LIKE TO CREATE mood visually through a recognizable scene," he says. "I want all elements of the picture to be positive with good color. Then it is happy."

Topelmann says he chooses one focal point for the picture and the others act as background "music" for a central theme. "I want the eye to rest in a certain area and then wander. The viewer should be drawn into a picture which is more than a spectacle of color."

"Many painters say they are making social comment on the unrest of society," he says. "I'm of the opinion we need a counterpoint to this. I like to give a feeling of relaxation and heartwarming."

Topelmann feels he could do work that falls into the realm of modern art "without much trouble."

"IT'S ALMOST TOO EASY even though it's supposed to have some kind of theory behind it. Without the observation of nature, you lose something. It's a fact to look for forms and excitement, but I wouldn't be satisfied that I had done anything worthwhile."

When asked to give advice on how to start painting to a man he met at one of his art shows, Topelmann told the man to buy five tubes of paint and a canvas, and figure out a way to get the paint on the canvas in some way that had not been done. "Then make up some explanation of why you did it that way, and you'll be a recognized artist overnight. He knew I was kidding of course."

THOUGH HE WORKS with water color and oil, Topelmann says the two have to be treated differently. "Water color provides an outlet for capturing mood. Oil provides a more refined version of a mood or scene."

"People respond more to oils than water color. It's regarded as more valuable so it's demanded more," he said.

Topelmann usually works on his oils in the mornings before he goes to his "chore," his job as a package designer at Container Corporation. He works on several at a time so he can stop and think about them in between. "You have to do a lot more to an oil painting and it takes more time," he said.

His weekends are spent on water colors, giving him a chance to become "accelerated." "Every mistake in water color shows and can't be corrected so you have to be ready to concentrate," he said.

TOPELMANN'S QUIET home in Keweenaw gives his needed isolation from the turbulence of the city. He agrees with the view of artists as sensitive and desirous of escaping from the world.

"I have separated myself physically by moving out here from our apartment on Lake Shore Drive and mentally by not painting things of the time."

"You have to get away from the negative. I try for appeal without trying to be negative or positive," he said.

In other action, the board set the textbook rental fee for the next school year at $5 for kindergarten books and $8 for texts used in grades one through eight. This fee schedule was also in effect during the 1968-69 school year.

The towel rental fee for the junior high school students was set at $4. This rate was also in effect during the 1968-69 school year.

Donald Brown, Dist. 21 personnel director, in a report to the board, said teacher recruitment for the next school year was "coming along nicely."

"We have recruited extensively in Illinois and border states and most positions have been filled," Brown stated. "This year, for the first time, the district has had enough applicants to be able to pick and choose somewhat with regard to hiring teachers," he added.

Negotiators will get still another chance to settle the long-standing Cambridge Subdivision drainage dispute.

Rather than setting a trial date for the four suits connected with the dispute, Judge Daniel Covelli set up another pre-trial meeting for 2 p.m. Thursday.

Richard Brown, builder of Cambridge, said the judge decided to continue negotiations because "we were so close to a settlement."

To this Richard Rysa, Buffalo Grove village attorney, agreed: "We're so close now that it should be settled Thursday."

"The only reason we didn't reach complete agreement was Lawrence Carrozza's failure to be there," Brown said. Carrozza, the township highway commissioner, is a defendant in one of the lawsuits.

James Ryan, Carrozza's attorney, said it is not customary for clients to attend pre-trial meetings. "This was the reason Mr. Carrozza wasn't there Thursday," he said.

BROWN CONTENTS THAT Wheeling Township should pay part of the costs because the channeling of Cambridge water away from Jackson Drive would ease township maintenance costs on Jackson Drive.

Covelli asked Ryan Thursday to have him attend the meeting.

However, according to Wheeling township officials, Carrozza is vacationing in Florida. When informed of this Monday by the Herald, Ryan said he plans to try to reach Carrozza. Ryan said that if Carrozza doesn't attend Thursday's meeting, he expects the negotiations to be continued once more.

Rysa supported Brown's optimism: "By Thursday the whole thing should be ironed out. I don't think there will be any necessity for a restraining order against Frazier's dam now."

William B. Frazier, who lives on Jackson Drive, built a dam to block Cambridge water from draining across his land. He is now a defendant in a suit filed by Brown and three Cambridge homeowners. The judge also asked that Frazier appear at Thursday's meeting.

Ryan was not so optimistic. He said the parties in the negotiations have not yet agreed on how much each is to pay. He said that even if Carrozza attends Thursday's meeting, no settlement would be reached then.

Once the parties do agree to a solution they will submit it to Covelli for approval. If he approves it, he will issue a judge's order, which would be binding on all parties, Ryan said.

Behind Flooding

by ALAN AKERSON

Recently, Richard Brown, developer of Cambridge subdivision, discussed the flooding situations and the efforts to solve it. In a separate interview, two Cambridge residents living on University Drive told of their difficulties with flooding.

Brown said Cambridge area storm water flows toward the University Drive cul-de-sac because that is the natural low point of the subdivision's southern end. This was the case even before he built Cambridge, he said.

Cambridge water was to flow from the subdivision along the natural drainage paths to the low point of Jackson Drive, where a sewer was to carry it away. However, the Jackson Drive sewer is inadequate.

Brown maintains, and Jackson Drive residents agree, that the street has always flooded after a heavy rain. Jackson Drive residents complain, however, that since Cambridge was built, the flooding is more severe and takes more time to drain.

BROWN DENIES THAT in building Cambridge he increased the runoff from

No Police Answer

Wheeling's Village Board hesitated to act on a renewed proposal from the Cook County Police Association last night because the village attorney was absent from the meeting.

An association representative asked the village board to set up a three-man committee to enter into a dialogue with the policemen. Committee members would include one trustee, one citizen appointed by the mayor and approved the association and one citizen appointed by the association members.

He also asked that the association be recognized at the budget hearing as representing the policemen who are its members.

CCPA Pres. John Flood and Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon met in Scanlon's office Friday night for an hour.

Flood, who had asked the village president to meet with him, said the purpose of the meeting was to see where the two groups stood. "I think the board was getting scared of us," Flood said about the Friday meeting.

Flood said they talked generally about the history of the CCPA and about what the organization is seeking throughout the county. He said Scanlon refused to talk specifically about the Wheeling situation, a fact which the village president verified.

THE VILLAGE HAS refused to recognize association representatives because its attorney says such recognition would be illegal.

The CCPA contends that the board can recognize its representatives under a provision in the Illinois Municipal Code.

Flood said yesterday he is hopeful "a good dialogue can be reached" between the village board and the association. The association president seemed hopeful that the board will appoint an ad hoc committee to meet with the association. Flood requested such a committee at the village board meeting last week.

FLOOD WROTE A LETTER last week to the board asking to be recognized so he could seek an answer to his request for the ad hoc committee.

Seventeen policemen who are members of the association also wrote letters to the board. They want the CCPA to represent them and will not discuss their jobs on an individual basis.

The policemen also told the board that "there is indeed a large problem existing at this time because of the board's refusal to recognize our elected representatives."

They told the board that Flood was speaking for them at the Monday night meeting. THE ASSOCIATION president said yesterday he was hopeful that the board would discuss the policemen's requests in detail at last night's village board meeting.

Car Theft Reported

A light blue 1967 Volkswagen sedan was stolen from the parking lot at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect last Friday, police said.

Mrs. Sally Felten, 304 N. Pine, Prospect Heights told police she left the car keys in the glove compartment while she was shopping.

board of our organization, one South Side chapter president and a secretary-treasurer have been transferred in the last month," said Flood.

"WHEN WE FORMED the association we knew we had to bear heartache and hardship. But we in the association will not be pushed down or lose our resolve. Our organization is too strong at this time. Our membership is totally behind us. They can transfer men, but they can't transfer the ideas of men."

"Whatever happens to us," Flood continued, "can happen to any of our membership. We will continue to fight for dignity and self respect."

House OKs Sex Bill

SPRINGFIELD — The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill giving parents the right to remove their children from a sex education class in elementary schools and to review all course materials before sanctioning attendance.

The bill states that a parent, upon written approval, may have his child removed from such a class.

Deck Officers Strike

NEW YORK — A deck officers' strike, which could affect 750 U.S. flag vessels including luxury liners, hit East and Gulf Coast ports yesterday, just after most had returned to normal after the longest maritime strike in their history.

In Washington, officials announced that a special mediation panel has been set up in an attempt to bring a quick end to the strike.

BACKYARD VIEW FOR Mrs. Michael Carroccia, 519 N. Stephen Drive, in unincorporated Palatine Township, is an unsightly graveyard of abandoned automobiles. Mrs. Carroccia's 2-year-old daughter, Lynnette, is too young to play on the other side of the fence, but other youngsters in the neighborhood are frequently attracted to the junk pile.

Will Junk Autos Vanish?

by ED MURNANE

At least one Palatine Township resident is hoping that yesterday's Cook County board preliminary acceptance of Com. Floyd Fuller's ordinance will help eliminate junk autos and other unsightly nuisances from unincorporated areas.

Mrs. Michael Carroccia of 519 N. Stephen Drive in the Palatine Park subdivision of unincorporated Palatine has lived with at least five, sometimes six or seven, abandoned autos almost in her back yard.

The Carroccia home is on the corner of Stephen and Geri Avenue. Geri deadends just past Carroccia's property line and a huge field begins that runs as far east as the Palatine village dump on Smith Street, more than half a mile away.

The field has become a graveyard for junked autos and, because the road ends, the cars are towed only as far as the field will allow. That brings them almost to the Carroccia's back door.

"There are seven there right now," Mrs. Carroccia said. "There were six when we moved in last year, but one was towed away. Then two more were brought here."

SHE SAID the last one was deposited in broad daylight around the end of April or beginning of May.

Windows on all the cars are shattered, one is turned upside down, and another looks as if it was burned before being abandoned. Various parts are missing from each.

"There are always kids taking things from the cars," Mrs. Carroccia said. "I've shouted at them to get away and I've called the police, but the kids are usually gone before the county police arrive."

She said some of the teenagers who frequently appear to strip the cars said they have permission of the lot's owner to do so. The property reportedly is owned by a Norman Visdahl, or Visdol, whose address is unknown.

Under the terms of Fuller's ordinance, the lot owner would be responsible for cleaning the property or facing a fine. If the owner does not clean the property, the county would clean it and charge the owner.

Mrs. Carroccia said she has repeatedly talked to the county police, the county zoning board, the county health board and township officials with no success.

"THE COUNTY health board said it is not a health hazard, although some of our neighbors say they have seen rats," she said. "The sheriff's police have no authority and the township has no police jurisdiction."

She said the county zoning board has agreed that it is a problem, but has been unable to do anything to correct it.

Besides the unsightly view the junked cars create, Mrs. Carroccia is concerned about the possible dangers from the cars.

"Some young children who live around here throw rocks at the cars and get pretty close to them. There's a lot of broken glass around and the last one they brought in still had gasoline in the tank when they abandoned it," Mrs. Carroccia said.

"Another one of our neighbors said she saw a child climb into one of the trunks. That could lead to a disaster if the trunk closed," she said.

There's another danger involved, too. Last summer, a neighbor reported that a vagrant had slept in one of the cars overnight.

Teachers in Dist. 15 went to the board of education meeting last week to support their Educators Association salary committee's request that the board reconsider the negotiating status of that committee and the salary schedule the board passed May 21, which the teachers had rejected by a 6 to 1 margin.

Board Pres. Walter Sundling told the teachers he would activate a committee by Aug. 1 to consider establishing a professional negotiating agreement with the EA, and that if the state legislature raised the foundation level of per pupil state aid to $550, the board would reopen salary schedule discussions.

He also told them the board would consider proposing a tax rate increase to the public in the fall.

More than 75 teachers went to the meeting, George Yingst, EA salary committee chairman said, to show their support for the EA as the representative for teachers.

"WE ARE CONCERNED about keeping experienced teachers in Dist. 15," Yingst says, "when surrounding areas have a higher pay scale for the more experienced teachers."

"It is the responsibility of the board of education as guardians of the schools to enter into negotiations with representatives of its teachers rather than to present them with a salary ultimatum on an accept or resign basis."

The teachers were concerned that the board would not reconsider its salary schedule if the increase in state aid to education comes. "Teacher morale is at an all-time low right now. They are concerned about and offended at what the board said at the May 21 meeting," Yingst told the board.

Sundling said that the board had explained in detail the financial status of the district: "We took a look at the recommendations of the Educators Association committee, but we also have to look at the financial picture. We've had nothing from the teachers. You have the same reports and facts we have."

"BECAUSE WE VOTED differently from your recommendations does not mean we ignored you. We appreciate the consultation we've always had with the Educators Association salary committee, even though we have not had a formal negotiating agreement."

About the negotiating agreement, Yingst said the teachers feel put off. "For some undisclosed reason the project was shelved last fall. Our president tried to reopen discussion, but she was told the board was too busy with other things and we would have to wait."

The EA wants to present the latest Illinois Educators Association negotiating agreement to the board for consideration: "All the surrounding districts have negotiating contracts. We are one of the only ones that doesn't." E. S. Castor, Superintendent of Schools, explained that the salary committee was already meeting almost every night when he wrote the EA suggesting they wait until fall to begin discussion: "I had no intent of delaying an agreement, but I felt the board committee could not do both at the same time."

"I EXPECTED TALKS to be resumed last fall, but nothing was offered until February of this year. The contract is long overdue and should have been finalized last fall. It is imperative we have it."

"The teachers have no alternative," Yingst said, "but to accept the salary schedule because we have no negotiating agreement. Our number one interest is the educational level of the district. We hope our experienced teachers will return despite the substandard salaries."

"With the vote of confidence the teachers gave us at the board meeting, the public support we feel we have, our bargaining power will be greatly increased next year."

A county ordinance aimed at abating spontaneous junk yards on unincorporated property could relieve local communities of some headaches.

Cook County Commissioner Floyd T. Fuller has introduced an ordinance that would hold a property owner responsible for eliminating junk on their land under threat of penalty or fine.

The ordinance will hopefully be back for a county board vote by July 21, Fuller said. The county has no authority now to take after unsightly and unauthorized junk yards. As Fuller explained, junk yards have a habit of growing and growing with no way to control the nuisance.

Fuller said the county has prosecuted under the health department when there is a health hazard with a dump and less often, under the building department when there is a building violation.

SHERIFF'S POLICE have no authority to investigate illegal dumping. But the county police force can prosecute a violator caught in the act under criminal law that states persons can dump only where authorized.

Municipalities suffer just as much from dumping grounds, from complaints and ugly introductions to their communities. But jurisdiction ends at the border.

Fuller said his proposed ordinance would be policed under jurisdiction of the county board president.

"Any violation of the ordinance can be reported to the county board or the president's office," he said, reviewing procedures.

"Complaints will be checked by an inspector and if he finds the ordinance is violated, he'll send a letter to the land owner."

THE LAND owner will be given a time limit to clear the nuisance. On failure to comply, the county will either issue a warrant forcing the property owner to act, or will itself clear the property and recapture costs by placing a lien on the property, the commissioner said.

The ordinance also provides penalties of from $10 to $500.

Prohibited by the bill are such things as dead animals, garbage, stagnant water, weeds, water and air pollution, abandoned wells, rubbish and wrecked cars.

FULLER SAID junk yards should not be the responsibility of the taxpayer. He maintained it is fair to hold a property owner responsible, though the nuisance may not be their fault. In most cases, it is impossible to trace owners of abandoned vehicles or find the violators.

"They are responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of their property," the commissioner said.

Full information and entry blanks are available now at the Jewel-Osco, 45 S. Plum Grove Rd., and at the Community Park. The Pentathlon is open to all boys and girls from 6 to 18. There is no entry fee.

The Quaker Oats — AAU Pentathlon consists of five sports activities such as push-ups, standing broad jumps, baseball throw, walk-run and sit-ups and is designed to measure the speed, strength, endurance, and agility of Chicago's youth.

EACH CHILD chooses five of the six events. Youngsters are not being asked to compete against each other, but rather to measure their ability against pre-set AAU and national standards.

Every entrant will receive a special pack of prizes containing free athletic equipment and souvenirs. In addition, participants will receive a chance to win two valuable Home Exercise Kits and many more prizes and surprises.

The Pentathlon is one in a national series being conducted by the Quaker Oats Company and the AAU to create a greater awareness of all young people for the need for better nutritional and physical fitness.

Urge Pay Pact Change

Development Group To Be Established

The Palatine Village Board was expected to create a committee to explore commercial and industrial development possibilities in the area at its meeting last night.

The Palatine Area Development Committee will be a joint effort by the village, the Chamber of Commerce, school officials, and concerned individuals to determine what type of development residents want.

Board Member Tom Kearns, who is organizing the committee, said the committee will work to broaden the tax base of the town. "We should decide what general over-all picture we want to preserve and then perhaps put out brochures to attract either the commerce or industry, or both, or neither, that we want."

"We are looking for people to work with us in the community. We've got state agencies and other groups to go to for help and information, but we need dynamic direction from within the community," Kearns said.

Palatine has no development program. The committee will be an ad hoc committee of the village board working in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce.

"THE PURPOSE OF THE committee," said Kearns, "is to attempt to develop the area of Palatine and Palatine Township in a way that would benefit everyone who lives and works here. We don't know what we want or what would be good for the community."

The committee will be made up of representatives of different facets of the community — village government, Chamber of Commerce, schools, real estate, small industry, large industry and businessmen.

POSTERS ANNOUNCING the battle of the bands, to take place Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Rolling Meadows shopping center, are being distributed by Bill Spiecker, right, and Bob Gill of Fabric World.

Battle of the Bands Friday

A battle will be waged Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, when 11 bands will compete for prizes.

The bands will perform for eight minutes each in the shopping center parking lot.

The groups will be judged on talent, appearance, and audience reaction.

THE ROLLING MEADOWS Merchants Association will award the first prize of $50. Jewel Food store will provide a $25 second prize.

Third prize, $15, will be the donation of Schiff Shoes; Rolling Meadows Bank and Fabric World will also contribute to the prizes.

A case of pop from Armanetti's will be awarded as fourth prize.

Dist. 15 School Boundaries Detailed

Elementary School Dist. 15 has announced boundaries for student assignment to schools for the 1969-70 school year.

New boundary lines and some old ones are included in next year's assignment plan.

Some shifts in present enrollment at the district's existing 15 schools will be made because of the opening of two new Palatine schools, Hunting Ridge and Lake Louise.

Most students will continue at the same school.

It's expected that all available classrooms will be filled, but there will be no double sessions and some rented and portable classrooms will continue to be used.

District officials estimate next fall's enrollment will reach 12,000 students, an increase of about 1,000.

THE BOUNDARIES for Gray M. Sanborn School are north of the Chicago & North Western RR, bounded on the east to include Ashland Avenue, north on a line through Marion Street to Baldwin Road, west on Baldwin to Hicks Road, north on Hicks in a straight line to Lake-Cook Road, and west to the district boundary.

For the school year, 18 classrooms at Sanborn School will be used and seven classrooms at the St. Paul Church of Christ annex will be used.

All elementary level children residing in the Pepper Tree Farm and Reseda West subdivisions will be reassigned to the Hunting Ridge School. However, junior high students will remain at Sanborn.

Students from the Pinehurst area will be reassigned to Lake Louise School.

Boundaries for Joel Wood School are the same as for Sanborn School. Fourth grade students will come from Sanborn School. Fifty students at the sixth grade level will be assigned to Sanborn.

Jane Addams School boundaries are north, Williams Drive extended to the east side of Rohlwing Road; east, Salt Creek; south, Salt Creek, and west, the east side of Rohlwing Road.

Kindergarten students living on Babcock, Bissell and Morris, now housed at the Jane Addams School, will return to Winston Churchill School and kindergarten children from Unit VI will be housed at Virginia Lake School.

STUDENTS LIVING on Winston and Everett drives will attend Lake Louise School.

Boundaries for Virginia Lake School will be the Willow Wood subdivision bounded on the west by Route 53, on the south by Baldwin Road, on the east by Rohlwing Road, and on the north to include Pebble Creek, Reseda East, Kenilworth, and Northwest Highway, on the east by Rohlwing Road, and on the north by Baldwin drives, and all of Cooper Drive, Carpenter Drive, Sutherland Court and Wente Drive. This included the area south of Palatine Road to include Winston Park Unit VI, and the children residing between Salt Creek and Wilke Road.

The children from Unit I presently attending Virginia Lake will be reassigned to Lake Louise School. Children entering the sixth grade special opportunities class will be reassigned to Lake Louise.

The boundaries for Winston Park elementary students will be as follows: that section of Palatine Park bounded on the west by Forest Avenue, on the south by Northwest Highway, on the east by Rohlwing Road, and on the north by Baldwin Road, the area south of Palatine Road bounded on the west by Rohlwing Road, on the south by Kenilworth, and on the east by Salt Creek, and Winston Park Unit II bounded on the south by Palatine Road, on the west by Rohlwing Road, and on the north and east by Salt Creek.

BOUNDARIES FOR the junior high students will be Northwest Highway on the south, on the east by Route 53 expressway, on the north by Lake Cook Road, and on the west by Hicks Road.

An exception to the boundary is the area between Northwest Highway on the south, a line between Forest and Ashland on the east, Baldwin on the north and Hicks Road on the west. This area is served by Sanborn School.

Some fifth grade students will be assigned to sixth grade at Churchill School.

The boundaries for Winston Churchill are the section of Palatine Park bounded on the west by Forest Avenue, on the south by Northwest Highway, on the east by Rohlwing Road, and on the north by Baldwin Road; the area south of Palatine Road bounded on the west by Rohlwing Road, on the south by Northwest Highway and on the east by Salt Creek, and all of the Winston Park Unit II bounded on the south by Palatine Road, on the west by Rohlwing Road, and on the north and east by Salt Creek.

Students living in Winston Park Unit VI will attend Virginia Lake School. Students residing in Capri Village and Pinehurst Manor will attend Lake Louise. Students residing in Northern Aire will attend Virginia Lake.

Boundaries for Lake Louise are Salt Creek from Palatine Road to Williams Road on the west, Lake Cook Road on the north, Palatine Road on the south and Wilke Road on the east.

Boundaries for Marion Jordan School are the Chicago & North Western RR on the north, the district boundary on the west and an imaginary line extending through Freeman Court on the south. The eastern boundary is an irregular line at Quentin Road north of Palatine Road and at R-selle Road south of Palatine Road.

STUDENTS ENTERING the sixth grade special opportunities class will be assigned to Hunting Ridge School. Present sixth grade students entering junior high will be assigned to Paddock and Plum Grove schools.

Children now attending Marion Jordan School who reside in the area south of Palatine Road between Quentin and Roselle Roads will be assigned to Hunting Ridge.

Boundaries for Pleasant Hill school are north, Hellen Road from Elm Street to Plum Grove Road and the Chicago & North Western RR from Plum Grove Road to Oak Street; south, Illinois Avenue from Oak Street to Elm Street; east, Oak Street from the C & NW tracks to Illinois Avenue, and west, Stuart Lane from Illinois Avenue to Dorset Road.

Students from Pinehurst Manor, Capri Village and the areas of Rand and Dundee roads will be reassigned to Lake Louise.

Students living on Elm Street and west will be assigned to the Hunting Ridge School with the exception of first and second level students.

Pleasant Hill school will receive students living north of Hellen between Plum Grove and Oak Street and students living on the north side of Hellen from Elm Street to Plum Grove Road.

Sixth grade special opportunities students will be assigned to Hunting Ridge.

SIXTH GRADE students living east of Quentin Road and north of Illinois Avenue will be assigned to Paddock School. Students living south of Lanark Lane and west of Quentin Road will attend Plum Grove School.

For students in grades kindergarten through sixth, boundaries will be Quentin Road on the west, the C & NW tracks on the north, the west side of Plum Grove Road on the east, and the north side of Hellen Road on the south.

Junior high boundaries are the C & NW on the north, Hicks Road on the east, Illinois Avenue to Quentin Road, and Gilbert Road between Quentin and Roselle roads on the south, and Roselle Road on the west.

Boundaries for Hunting Ridge School will be on the east, Elm Street, south of Hellen, Quentin Road, north of Hellen; on the west and south, the district boundary lines; and on the north, Palatine Road, from Quentin to Roselle Road, and on a line even with the point where Freeman Road turns south, west of Roselle Road.

The enrollment at this school will represent the reassignment of students from the Plum Grove, Pleasant Hill and Marion Jordan schools. Students residing in the following subdivisions will be assigned to Hunting Ridge School: Hunting Ridge, Pepper Tree Farm, Reseda West, Cambridge, Cammgate, Winston Knolls and Willow Bend.

dated School Dist. 15 was planning an election to authorize the sale of Bradwell and Wittenburg country schools.

The proposed sale of the country schools was reported as another step in the interest of economy. The board has found that the unit cost of operating these schools far exceeds the cost of similar facilities and equal educational services within the village.

The Band Boosters Club of Palatine was trying to raise the initial $2,400 necessary to continue band instruction for the next year in the elementary schools. Their goal was to have a band for Palatine grade school children.

Concerning higher education, 34 members of the Palatine High School graduating class had plans for college entrance in the fall.

Charles H. Wilson of Arlington Heights and John Maxon of Barrington appeared before the Palatine Village Board.

They made an informal request for annexation of 97½ acres, immediately east of Rohlwing Road and north of Northwest Highway. It was then farm land. The eastern boundary was Salt Creek.

THE INFORMAL OPENING of the Little League took place. Little Leaguers, the American Legion color guard, Girl Scouts and the Palatine Fire Department marched in a parade.

Mayor Wittenberg threw the opening baseball of the season. The first meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Palatine Little League was held.

The American Legion auxiliary of Palatine netted $213 in its annual Poppy Day sale.

A new medical service was made available to the area when the Prospect Clinical Laboratory opened in the professional building at 4 N. Elmhurst Road.

Warman Has a Vote

The Democratic Organization of Palatine Township has endorsed State Rep. Edward Warman of Skokie as the party's candidate for 13th District congressman.

Township Committeeman Pete Gerling announced his group's selection Monday, saying he met with executive board members Sunday.

Gerling will take his organization's recommendation to the township Thursday night when the eight township committeemen in the 13th District meet. Committeemen are to decide whether the Democrat party will have a primary race or back a single candidate.

Gerling said Monday he hopes for a single endorsement to avoid a primary.

"IT'S PRETTY rough financially to go through a primary," Gerling said. "These are not wealthy people," he said referring to the 10 candidates the party screened.

"The candidates we screened all felt, if we got the right man up there, they'd get behind him 100 per cent," he added.

In the other local Democratic organizations, Wheeling Township Committeeman James McCabe has said he has made up his mind but will not reveal his decision until Thursday.

Elk Grove Township Committeeman Chester Chesney has said he is debating between Warman and Dr. Milton Rakove, a political science professor at Chicago Circle Campus.

Schaumburg Township Committeeman Ed Degan has been unavailable for comment.

Both McCabe and Chesney have authority to vote their choices in behalf of their organizations.

Reseda Homeowners To Sponsor Parade

Members of the Reseda Homeowners Association in Palatine will sponsor a parade through the streets of Reseda today to call attention to the association's picnic Sunday, June 22.

The parade will begin at 6 p.m.

Sunday's picnic will get underway around noon at the Barrington Park, Northwest Highway in Barrington. It will include games and refreshments for adults and children.

Rockford Graduates

Robert Craig Birss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Birss of Palatine and Donald S. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel S. Williams of Rolling Meadows received bachelor of arts degrees from Rockford College.

Birss was elected Phi Beta Kappa and received a National Defense Education Act Fellowship for graduate study at the University of Iowa next year.

He majored in classics and English and was named to the Distinguished Scholars list for the spring semester at the college.

The Lighter Side

For Love of Dad

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Just about the most beautiful thing in this world to me is the esteem and affection that is lavished upon us fathers by department stores.

We may not be revered too highly by our children, but the department stores love and respect us with a zeal that knows no bounds.

Reading the Father's Day advertisements always brings a lump to my throat, and I'm not what you would call the sentimental type.

The most touching thing about it is the way the department stores are willing to overlook our shortcomings and follies. So maybe we're not perfect. So what? To a department store, old dad is still the greatest guy around and deserves nothing but the best.

One store, I note, wants me to have a pair of "kicky party pants" done in "smashing floral prints for Pop." I got really choked up over that one.

In the eyes of my offspring, I am strictly a parallelogram having four equal sides and four right angles. They would laugh their heads off at the idea of me stepping out in flowered trousers.

But there is no generation gap between a father and a department store.

A department store simply is blindly adoring of fathers. It will go to any extreme to be a "dad-pleaser."

That means a lot in these days when the family unit is said to be rapidly eroding as a binding-force and stabilizing influence in American society.

I'll be honest about it. At my age, I really would look pretty ridiculous in "kicky party pants." But it's nice to know that somebody still thinks of me as a swinger.

"Pop's the tops," the ads say. "For dad: the something extra." "Treat him to the luxury he so richly deserves."

The department stores, at least, are not ashamed to express a little honest emotion.

It is often alleged that America has become excessively materialistic, with commercial values taking precedent over human values.

Dick West

But anyone who bothers to study the Fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate.

Department stores spend a great deal of money to exhibit their appreciation of fathers, and I, for one, reciprocate.

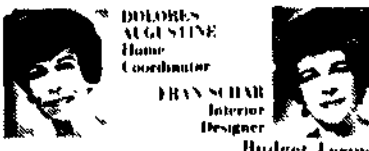

I get a warm feeling every time I hear the patter of little credit cards around the house.

House OKs Sex Bill

SPRINGFIELD — The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill giving parents the right to remove their children from a sex education class in elementary schools and to review all course materials before sanctioning attendance.

The bill states that a parent, upon written approval, may have his child removed from such a class.

Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court collided again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet constitutional requirement of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO—Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $325,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Deck Officers Strike

NEW YORK — A deck officers' strike, which could affect 750 U.S. flag vessels including luxury liners, hit East and Gulf Coast ports yesterday, just after most had returned to normal after the longest maritime strike in their history.

In Washington, officials announced that a special mediation panel has been set up in an attempt to bring a quick end to the strike.

Nixon Asks Air Bill

WASHINGTON—President Nixon yesterday asked Congress to pass a $5 billion program of airport and airways improvement for the next 10 years that would be financed by a series of taxes on those who use the facilities.

Nixon asked for a new $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights starting in the United States, an increase from $1 to $4 per cent in the tax on domestic airline tickets, and a new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

View High School Plan

JUNE HAS BEEN a good month so far for Arlene Dul of Rolling Meadows. She graduated from Forest View High School and was named winner of a Hallmark award in art given by Scholastic Magazine. Her winning entry will appear in a national high school display in New York City.

Right Foot Forward

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

A Rolling Meadows art student has a good start for her career. She's already won national recognition for one of her drawings.

Arlene Dul, who has just graduated from Forest View High School, won a Hallmark award in art competition sponsored by Scholastic Magazine.

Her colored pencil drawing won one of the 51 Hallmark awards and an honor prize of $100. She also won a medal in the regional competition.

Her art work will be on display in New York City June 24-July 15 as part of the national high school art exhibits.

ARLENE, WHO HAS just graduated from Forest View, will be going to the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts in the fall.

She won a half-year scholarship to the academy, by submitting a portfolio and taking tests.

Added to the list of her accomplishments is a sixth place award this year in State Women's Club art competition. She was entered in the contest by the local Rolling Meadows Women's Club.

The drawing was a charcoal of a still life.

Arlene, who likes to design book and magazine covers, designed the cover for this year's Forest View year book and the freshmen orientation booklet.

She also served as publicity chairman for the student council.

Colored pencils, pastels and charcoal are her favorite materials to work with. The college that won the national award is done with colored pencils, and its subject is faces and figures.

WHEN SHE WAS NOTIFIED of the award, she said she had "walked around the halls, I couldn't stay still. My parents were very proud and happy."

"I was fairly surprised, the drawing was light, it wasn't really finished," she said.

She has taken art courses for two years in junior high and four years in high school.

"Forest View's art department is excellent, it's rated second in the country," she said.

Arlene plans to go into advertising art, which is offered at the academy.

"I STARTED stylizing my work more this year than before," she said. As for her own art style, she says, "It depends on the picture and what you want how you use materials."

In high school, Arlene said seniors spent the whole year working on portfolios and concentrating on what they liked to do best. "I've stayed in graphics, and worked on that," she said.

Also on display in New York are the works of six other Forest View students who won other scholastic art awards.

Will Junk Autos Vanish?

by ED MURNANE

At least one Palatine Township resident is hoping that yesterday's Cook County board preliminary acceptance of Comr. Floyd Fuller's ordinance will help eliminate junk autos and other unsightly nuisances from unincorporated areas.

Mrs. Michael Carroccia of 519 N. Stephen Drive in the Palatine Park subdivision of unincorporated Palatine has lived with at least five, sometimes six or seven, abandoned autos almost in her back yard.

The Carroccia home is on the corner of Stephen and Geri Avenue. Geri deadends just past Carroccia's property line and a huge field begins that runs as far east as the Palatine village dump on Smith Street, more than half a mile away.

The field has become a graveyard for junked autos and, because the road ends, the cars are towed only as far as the field will allow. That brings them almost the Carroccia's back door.

"There are seven there right now," Mrs. Carroccia said. "There were six when we moved in last year, but one was towed away. Then two more were brought here."

SHE SAID the last one was deposited in broad daylight around the end of April or beginning of May.

Windows on all the cars are shattered, one is turned upside down, and another looks as if it was burned before being abandoned. Various parts are missing from each.

"There are always kids taking things from the cars," Mrs. Carroccia said. "I've shouted at them to get away and I've called the police, but the kids are usually gone before the county police arrive."

She said some of the teenagers who frequently appear to strip the cars said they have permission of the lot's owner to do so. The property reportedly is owned by a Norman Visdahl, or Visdol, whose address is unknown.

Under the terms of Fuller's ordinance, the lot owner would be responsible for cleaning the property or facing a fine. If the owner does not clean the property, the county would clean it and charge the owner.

Mrs. Carroccia said she has repeatedly talked to the county police, the county zoning board, the county health board and township officials with no success.

"THE COUNTY health board said it is not a health hazard, although some of our neighbors say they have seen rats," she said. "The sheriff's police have no authority and the township has no police jurisdiction."

She said the county zoning board has agreed that it is a problem, but has been unable to do anything to correct it.

The new Rolling Meadows High School has lost the cross-shaped look shown to High School Dist. 214 administrators before the $9.1 million referendum was approved earlier this spring.

Architects Orput, Orput & Associates of Skokie gave the school board a preview of the proposed new plans last night. The drawings show a far more compact building, intended to give major emphasis to the new trend of using highly equipped instructional materials centers.

The school board saw slides for three floors of the new building, including a little theater capable of being divided into three separate meeting rooms, a student commons area that can be used as a cafeteria, an informal study area or cleared for dances, and a second student dining area more enclosed.

Assistant Supt. Roderick McLennan said this may be the first high school building in the country designed along a divisional plan. Blocks of classrooms, teachers' rooms and a resource center will house separate divisions of fine arts and the humanities, science and mathematics, foreign languages and social studies, and practical arts.

THE NEWEST IDEA in the building will be a two-story instructional materials center. Oldsters may call it the library, but it will come equipped with film strip machines, slide viewers, small projectors, recording equipment and a wide variety of visual aids in addition to books.

The instructional materials center will be two-story, the first floor opening out onto the English division block and the administrative offices. On the second floor, the center will be linked to mathematics and science division and the division of foreign language and social studies.

Many of the classrooms will be triangular-shaped with moveable walls. "We are trying to give you as much future flexibility as possible," Alden Orput told the board.

The school plans make provision for an outdoor pool to be constructed at some future date on the south side of the building on the other side of the school from Central Road.

THERE WILL BE parking lots at the rear of the building as well as in front. The little theater will also be designed to feed in from two levels, and the gymnasium will be two stories tall.

Architects said they have tried to design the building so it can be used by as many different groups as wish. They pointed out that the instructional materials center — the updated library — can be opened to students at night without giving them access to the entire building.

Urge Pay Pact Change

by JUDY BRANDES

Teachers in Dist. 15 went to the board of education meeting last week to support their Educators Association salary committee's request that the board reconsider the negotiating status of that committee and the salary schedule the board passed May 21, which the teachers had rejected by a 6 to 1 margin.

Board Pres. Walter Sundling told the teachers he would activate a committee by Aug. 1 to consider establishing a professional negotiating agreement with the EA, and that if the state legislature raised the foundation level of per pupil state aid to $550, the board would reopen salary schedule discussions.

He also told them the board would consider proposing a tax rate increase to the public in the fall.

More than 75 teachers went to the meeting, George Yingst, EA salary committee chairman said, to show their support for the EA as the representative for teachers.

"WE ARE CONCERNED about keeping experienced teachers in Dist. 15," Yingst says, "when surrounding areas have a higher pay scale for the more experienced teachers."

"It is the responsibility of the board of education as guardians of the schools to enter into negotiations with representatives of its teachers rather than to present them with a salary ultimatum on an accept or resign basis."

The teachers were concerned that the board would not reconsider its salary schedule if the increase in state aid to education comes. "Teacher morale is at an all-time low right now. They are concerned about and offended at what the board said at the May 21 meeting," Yingst told the board.

Sundling said that the board had explained in detail the financial status of the district: "We took a look at the recommendations of the Educators Association committee, but we also have to look at the financial picture. We've had nothing from the teachers. You have the same reports and facts we have."

"BECAUSE WE VOTED differently from your recommendations does not mean we ignored you. We appreciate the consultation we've always had with the Educators Association salary committee, even though we have not had a formal negotiating agreement."

About the negotiating agreement, Yingst said the teachers feel put off. "For some undisclosed reason the project was shelved last fall. Our president tried to reopen discussion, but she was told the board was too busy with other things and we would have to wait."

The EA wants to present the latest Illinois Educators Association negotiating agreement to the board for consideration: "All the surrounding districts have negotiating contracts. We are one of the only ones that doesn't." E. S. Castor, Superintendent of Schools, explained that the salary committee was already meeting almost every night when he wrote the EA suggesting they wait until fall to begin discussion: "I had no intent of delaying an agreement, but I felt the board committee could not do both at the same time."

"I EXPECTED TALKS to be resumed last fall, but nothing was offered until February of this year. The contract is long overdue and should have been finalized last fall. It is imperative we have it."

"The teachers have no alternative," Yingst said, "but to accept the salary schedule because we have no negotiating agreement. Our number one interest is the educational level of the district. We hope our experienced teachers will return despite the substandard salaries."

"With the vote of confidence the teachers gave us at the board meeting, the public support we feel we have, our bargaining power will be greatly increased next year."

Scholarship Won By Claudia Weihs

Claudia Weihs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Weihs of Palatine, has won a $500 scholarship for 1969 from the Northwest Industrial Council of which her father's employer, Flick-Reedy Corp. is a member.

The scholarship is to apply on the tuition cost of the college of her choice.

COMPETING for the scholarship were 96 sons and daughters of employees in 33 different companies which are members of the Northwest Industrial Conference.

The scholarship was presented to Claudia at a dinner meeting of the council held in late May. Daniel Sundt, president of the council, made the presentation.

Firemen Appeal

The trustees of the Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District have mailed an appeal to residents to cast "yes" votes on the June 24 referendum to raise the cost of fire protection for Rolling Meadows.

A favorable vote would raise the cost from its present 25 cents to 40 cents per $100 evaluation; from a cost of 5 cents per day to an average cost of 8 cents per day for fire protection.

The appeal says that from 1964 through the 1967 assessment, the following rates for fire protection were paid for an average three-bedroom home in Rolling Meadows: 1964: .168 cents or $11.77; 1965: .162 cents or $11.35; 1966: .150 cents or $10.51; 1967: .218 cents or $15.49.

IN FOUR YEARS, cost of fire protection increased a total of $3.72. This included building the fire house addition and hiring full-time firemen, the appeal says.

Fire protection in 1967 cost residents 43 cents per day, with the passage of the referendum, residents will pay about 7.2 cents per day. For this, the appeal says, "the resident will have 25 dedicated volunteer firemen and five full-time paid firemen to serve the community."

For 7.2 cents per day, fire protection could be provided with three pumpers, one squad truck, on inhalator and rescue truck and one aerial truck.

Aerial equipment is needed not only to protect apartment complexes, but industrial buildings, churches, schools and commercial buildings, the letter says.

RECENT SERIOUS FIRES in Rolling Meadows have speeded up the department's apparatus purchase and replacement program, although the fire district has contemplated purchasing this equipment for the past three years.

Present equipment is fast becoming what is referred to in fire service as "second-line equipment," the appeal continues. The department's pumpers are 11 years old.

The Illinois Inspection and Rating Bureau rates a commercial pumper "second-line" after it is in service 15 years. This means the equipment is more susceptible to breakdowns and it might not be able to pump the amount of water it's rated for.

Present pumpers were purchased in 1958 by the Fire Equipment Drive Committee, which sponsored carnivals to raise money.

The appeal notes that the city has not purchased an additional pumper in 11 years, although it has continued to grow. And the district has held purchases to a minimum.

The district finds it can wait no longer for the additional apparatus, the appeal says. In case of a breakdown in the present apparatus it would pose a serious problem in providing fire protection for the city.

A big item to be covered by the increased tax rate will be the hiring of full-time personnel, the appeal continues.

Since it is almost impossible to get men to serve as volunteer firemen, it is necessary for the district to hire full-time personnel to man the department's apparatus, inspect the city's commercial, industrial and multi-family properties, inspect the schools and churches and to attend schools to upgrade the fire service within the city, the district says.

Videotape Equipment Share-Cost Approved

Federal approval to share the cost of videotape equipment for the Palatine Police Department has been announced.

The equipment will record the actions of a driver suspected of driving while under the influence of alcohol and may be played back as evidence at future court proceedings. It also is expected to prove valuable in training and traffic engineering functions.

Total cost of $4,000 with half to be paid by Palatine and half reimbursed by the federal government under the provisions of the Highway Safety Act of 1966.

House OKs Sex Bill

SPRINGFIELD — The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill giving parents the right to remove their children from a sex education class in elementary schools and to review all course materials before sanctioning attendance.

The bill states that a parent, upon written approval, may have his child removed from such a class.

Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court declined again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet Constitutional requirement of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO—Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $25,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON—Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurled back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Deck Officers Strike

NEW YORK — A deck officers' strike, which could affect 750 U.S. flag vessels including luxury liners, hit East and Gulf Coast ports yesterday, just after most had returned to normal after the longest maritime strike in their history.

In Washington, officials announced that a special mediation panel has been set up in an attempt to bring a quick end to the strike.

Dist. 59 Vote July 26

School Dist. 59 will hold a special election July 26 to give voters an opportunity to elect a new member to the school board.

The special election was called at a meeting of the Dist. 59 board last night.

The call for the election came directly after the resignation of George Blanchard as a member of the board. Blanchard's resignation comes as a result of a job transfer to Kansas City, Mo. The resignation has been expected for several months.

In calling for the special election, the board decided against its prerogative to appoint a member to the board. Faced with a vacancy, a school board may either appoint a member or call for a special election. Cost of the July 26 election is estimated at $1,800.

DR. ALLAN SPARKS, president of the school board, said petitions for candidates will be available today through July 3. Under the present circumstances, the board does not have to conform to normal filing dates.

Whoever wins the seat vacated by Blanchard will hold his term only until the 1970 elections. At that point the seat will be open again for candidates. Next April's elections will see four seats open to candidates.

Paul Neuhauser, former candidate for the Dist. 59 board, said last night he has not yet made up his mind whether he will run for the July election. Other candidates had similarly expressed hesitancy over attempting to win a board seat which will have to be defended next April.

When asked why the Dist. 59 board decided to go to an expensive election rather than make an appointment Dr. Sparks said the continued interest of local residents in school affairs dictated the decision. The school board has been the subject of controversy during the past several months.

In accepting the resignation of Blanchard, board members praised the outgoing member and said he had made valuable contributions to the district.

Blanchard said in his letter of resignation that Dist. 59 has its share of problems but all of them can be overcome with the cooperation of local residents.

IN OTHER ACTION, board members and members of the audience discussed an item in the Dist. 59 budget which calls for a communications specialist. The specialist, according to the board and administration spokesmen, would be charged with dissemination of information about the district to staff members and area residents. In other districts the position is often called a public relations director.

Although the position has not yet been filled, the Dist. 59 Board has authorized to spend some $10,000 for a communication specialist's salary.

GEORGE BLANCHARD, recently elected member of the Dist. 59 board of education, resigned his post last night. The move by Blanchard was long expected following his announcement that his employer is transferring him out of the state.

"MUST SELL. Artist Hungry." Stenciled on a large, neon-green sign, these words attract the curious to a street corner art stand in Mount Prospect. Paddock staff writer Judy Covelli browses at the collection of oil paintings which range in price from $7.95 to $50.

Art Stand, Colorful as Gypsy Camp

by GERRY DeZONNA

With curly red hair and a Dan Rowan mustache to match, he sat in the shade of a large, neon-green sign munching a cold roast beef sandwich and washing it down with lemonade.

The sign read "Oil paintings $7.95 and up. Must sell. Hungry artist." Large contemporary oil paintings were perched on easels around an enclosed trailer that was bulging with paints, frames, and more paintings.

Parked in the corner of a Sinclair gas station at Mount Prospect Road and Northwest Highway, the art stand was as colorful as a gypsy camp, but business was slow. A few curious housewives wandered over from Cumberland Plaza, and an occasional businessman stopped while he bought gas.

"I've been here for three days now, and a lot of people stop, but only to look. I've been thinking about moving on to Arlington Heights. There's not enough foot traffic here. An artist could really starve on this corner," he said.

CLIFF'S FROM Old Town, and he's got a plan to sell paintings. "Everyone likes paintings but not everyone likes to pay high art prices, so I appeal to the middle-income pocketbook. I think today people want large paintings, the massive look to go with the trend in Spanish furnishings."

"So seven friends of mine and I have decided to sell the people what they want — an attractive painting already framed for an equally attractive price."

Cliff, born in the Bronx but raised along the New England coast, has a college degree in business, and although he paints, he is primarily the business manager for the group. "I had a good job as a salesman for a New York company. I was the Chicago representative and the typical 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. businessman living in a high rise and taking my short business trips."

"SO ABOUT three years ago, I decided I needed a change and a job that would give me an opportunity to do some skiing. I'm an avid ski enthusiast, and I spend my winters in Aspen."

He sells paintings, colorful oils depicting harbor scenes and old whaling vessels, for $25. The selection also includes big-city street scenes and contemporary still-lives done in hues of blue, green, and orange. The smaller paintings cost about $10, while a few of the "super-large" ones sell for $50.

He had one portrait on display of a naked woman. "The Mount Prospect police paid me a visit this morning. They asked me to put the painting in the trailer because some woman had called to tell them her children were playing outside, and the painting wasn't a good influence on her little children. So far, this has been the only exciting experience on this corner."

"We've got art stands in several locations on the south side of Chicago, and our stands in Skokie and Dempster are doing well. The Sinclair representative in this area has given us permission to set up our stands in gas station lots.

"MY BUSINESS increases his business. You'd be surprised at how many people buy gas, so they have an excuse to browse through the paintings."

Cliff isn't a hippie or an Old Town beatnik, but an enterprising businessman with an idea. "I've been around a lot doing almost everything. I tried three universities before I finally got my degree, I traveled all over the country with the Coast Guard, and now I'm trying my luck at business. Something other than the 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. drag."

"I enjoy what I'm doing now, but I'm not sure what I'll be doing next year. Perhaps I'll still be in the painting business. One thing I know for sure is that I'll be in Aspen for the winter. I love the slopes."

See School Plans

The new Rolling Meadows High School has lost the cross-shaped look shown to High School Dist. 214 administrators before the $9.1 million referendum was approved earlier this spring.

Architects Orput, Orput & Associates of Skokie gave the school board a preview of the proposed new plans last night. The drawings show a far more compact building, intended to give major emphasis to the new trend of using highly equipped instructional materials centers.

The school board saw slides for three floors of the new building, including a little theater capable of being divided into three separate meeting rooms, a student commons area that can be used as a cafeteria, an informal study area or cleared for dances, and a second student dining area more enclosed.

Assistant Supt. Roderick McLennan said this may be the first high school building in the country designed along a divisional plan. Blocks of classrooms, teachers' rooms and a resource center will house separate divisions of fine arts and the humanities, science and mathematics, foreign languages and social studies, and practical arts.

THE NEWEST IDEA in the building will be a two-story instructional materials center. Oldsters may call it the library, but it will come equipped with film strip machines, slide viewers, small projectors, recording equipment and a wide variety of visual aids in addition to books.

The instructional materials center will be two-story, the first floor opening out onto the English division block and the administrative offices. On the second floor, the center will be linked to mathematics and science division and the division of foreign language and social studies.

Many of the classrooms will be triangular-shaped with moveable walls. "We are trying to give you as much future flexibility as possible," Alden Orput told the board.

The school plans make provision for an outdoor pool to be constructed at some future date on the south side of the building on the other side of the school from Central Road.

THERE WILL BE parking lots at the rear of the building as well as in front. The little theater will also be designed to feed in from two levels, and the gymnasium will be two stories tall.

Architects said they have tried to design the building so it can be used by as many different groups as wish. They pointed out that the instructional materials center — the updated library — can be opened to students at night without giving them access to the entire building.

No Decision on Arts Classes

A decision on where to put practical arts classes at Central Junior High for one year has been deferred until the July 7 meeting of the Dist. 57 School Board.

The administration asked the board to reopen a small audio-visual room. The room was closed by an earlier school board several years ago because of poor safety features.

Board members hesitated to reopen the room because it is small, has a low ceiling and a narrow entrance. A separate tunnel entrance into the room has been closed by order of the Mount Prospect Fire Department.

Alternative suggestions included a new outside door on the audio-visual room, partitioning of the small gym or adding inexpensive lighting to the old band room. The band room was also closed because of safety and lighting problems.

"I HATE TO put students back into those rooms," said Board Member Leo Flores.

The board hopes to install some of the same equipment to be used at Lincoln in practical arts, but on a minimal basis.

Dist. 59 Vote July 26

School Dist. 59 will hold a special election July 26 to give voters an opportunity to elect a new member for the school board.

The special election was called at a meeting of the Dist. 59 board last night.

The call for the election came directly after the resignation of George Blanchard as a member of the board. Blanchard's resignation comes as a result of a job transfer to Kansas City, Mo. The resignation has been expected for several months.

Weller Bridges Decision Expected

The Mount Prospect village board will probably decide the fate of two proposed bridges to span Weller Creek at George and See Gwon streets tonight.

The bridges, if approved, will be paid for with state motor fuel tax funds.

Three other bridges have been proposed also, to be built over a five-to-10-year period. They are at Candota, William and School streets.

Homeowners north of the creek have opposed the bridges, while residents living in Golfhurst subdivision, to the south, are in favor of them.

Other business items to be undertaken by the group tonight are a decision whether to appoint auxiliary police and final action on a fence ordinance which has been reviewed by the building committee.

Cowen Wins Post

With about 50 of their number voting, Republican precinct captains in Wheeling Township last night insured Richard Cowen's appointment as township committeeman.

Endorsed by the Republican Executive Committee in the township on June 7, Cowen predictably won the support of the precinct captains by acclamation.

Calling on those present to understand, communicate and "above all, to respect each other's point of view," Cowen said the Republican Party in Wheeling Township would be open to all.

He emphasized that the township is one of the fastest growing areas in the state and that he hoped to attract residents new to the area and new to politics into the organization.

HE ALSO SAID that within the next four to six months he would ask more individuals to assume positions of leadership and responsibility in the township Republican Party.

Cowen's endorsement was the first order of business at last night's session at South Junior High School in Arlington Heights. The result of the vote will be forwarded to Edmund Kucharski, head of the Cook County Republican Central Committee, who will make the appointment official.

Cowen, 34, will replace State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman as township committeeman. When Schlickman was a candidate for the GOP nomination for the 13th Congressional District seat on June 2, he announced his intention to resign as committeeman.

A Chicago attorney, Cowen is past chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans and served this spring as head of the citizens committee for the library referendum in Arlington Heights. He has lived in the village for 7½ years and was selected Outstanding Young Man of the Year by the Jaycees in 1967.

Tenure of office for the new committeeman will end in the spring of next year when an election is slated which is open to all registered township Republicans.

FACING TOWNSHIP Republicans this summer is intense campaign work for Schlickman, whose name will be on the ballot in the October primary. The 13th Congressional District seat sought by Schlickman was vacated when Donald Rumsfeld resigned to serve as head of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Social events planned include an Aug. 24 picnic and a dinner-dance scheduled for Oct. 4 at Arlington Park. Dance chairman Dwight Walton said last month that he, Cowen and Schlickman would attempt to snare Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to the annual Wheeling Township event.

CLIFF'S FROM Old Town, and he's got a plan to sell paintings. "Everyone likes paintings but not everyone likes to pay high art prices, so I appeal to the middle-income pocketbook. I think today people want large paintings, the massive look to go with the trend in Spanish furnishings."

Dist. 59 Budgets Deficit

School Dist. 59 will apparently operate in the red for the 1969-70 school year.

The deficit is an apparent one, stemming from $1,500,000 which will be available to the board of education July 1.

A tentative budget for the district submitted to the school board last night places the total revenue of the district at $10,872,334. Operating costs are listed at $12,465,391.

Despite the apparent $2 million deficit disclosed in the district's budget, the financial statement does not include the funds the district will borrow through tax anticipation warrants. A balanced budget must be sent to the state Office of Education, meaning that additional anticipation warrants must be secured.

The budget presented last night to the board of education members is the tentative budget of the district and is open to change at the direction of the board members. Public hearings on the budget will be held before final action is taken.

ALTHOUGH THE Dist. 59 budget is a tentative one, the district will undoubtedly face an increase in its expenditures.

High on the list of expenditures in the district is $4.5 million set aside for salaries for elementary teachers. The total amount reflects the pay increase agreed to by teachers and the board and recently negotiated by both parties.

Should the proposed budget in excess of $12 million be approved by the school board, it will mark a new high reached by the district. In 1963, Dist. 59 discussed a tentative budget of $2 million, or one-sixth of the district's expected expenditures five years later.

The following year, then-assistant superintendent William Mann submitted a budget of $5 million. At the same time, the district was facing an enrollment increase of 24 per cent.

In 1965, with the budget still increasing in the district each year, Mann told members of the school board that the district could stop issuing tax anticipation warrants in the 1966-67 school year. Mann at that time said expected increases in the assessment of the district would overcome the yearly increase in costs.

FOUR YEARS later, that prediction remains invalid. Dist. 59 is still issuing tax anticipation warrants, and at a rate higher than ever before.

By 1966, the budget for the district rose to $4.1 million, with half of that amount going for teachers' salaries.

By 1967, the budget rose to $7 million and in 1968 the expected expenditures were boosted over the $8 million mark.

This year's increase, although not yet formally approved, would bring to the district its highest amount of expenditures.

A breakdown of the expenditures requested by the district shows $7,567,942 for education fund, $767,407 for the building fund, $1,209,316 for bond and interest, $342,300 for transportation, $134,300 for municipal retirement, $2,370,000 for site and construction and $94,326 for capital improvements.

Summer School Filled Up

Registrations for Mount Prospect summer school are no longer being accepted, because all classes are filled with more than 1,000 children enrolled.

The school announced that no further changes will be made in schedules, and withdrawals with refunds are not being made.

Fifty teachers will serve the large enrollment. Each student has been provided with his student schedule, providing three periods between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. In all cases, except early childhood education and pre-first grade readiness, each child is assigned to three subjects each morning.

THE PROGRAM WAS designed to provide subject offerings for students at all ability levels. Special arrangements are being used in some cases to provide individual assistance and programming. Among these are team teaching, ungraded classrooms and field trips.

Busse, Fairview, Lions Park and Lincoln are the buildings being used for summer classes. No bus transportation is provided.

Guards to provide help in crossing will be at Shabonee and Route 83, Central and North Western tracks, Main Street and North Western tracks, and Louis and Central.

Car Theft Reported

A light blue 1967 Volkswagen sedan was stolen from the parking lot at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect last Friday, police said.

Mrs. Sally Felten, 304 N. Pine, Prospect Heights told police she left the car keys in the glove compartment while she was shopping.

by BARRY SIGALE

Four top members of the Cook County Police Association, including the president of the organization, have been transferred from their positions with the sheriff's police to other tasks in the county in the last four days.

A general order was released telling of the transfer of the men, plus six other policemen, in a move termed "strictly routine," by John Kistner, chief of the Cook County Police Department.

"We are taking this action to improve the supervision of our division," said Kistner. "We are reshaping our department for the betterment of supervision, to improve it and beef it up."

INCLUDED IN THE transfer was Sgt. John Flood of Wheeling, president of the association which represents 85 per cent of Cook County policemen.

Flood, who was transferred to clerical duties in Chicago, is a veteran of more than 10 years of police work. He was in charge of the detective division for one year and the criminal extradition for the felony warrant section for all of Cook County for another year.

He was a patrolman for two years and a patrol sergeant for the last six years.

"Three members from the executive board of our organization, one South Side chapter president and a secretary-treasurer have been transferred in the last month," said Flood.

"WHEN WE FORMED the association we knew we had to bear heartache and hardship. But we in the association will not be pushed down or lose our resolve. Our organization is too strong at this time. Our membership is totally behind us. They can transfer men, but they can't transfer the ideas of men."

"Whatever happens to us," Flood continued, "can happen to any of our membership. We will continue to fight for dignity and self respect."

Laseke: Garbage Going

by TOM WELLMAN

Laseke Disposal Co., Arlington Heights' scavenger service, has agreed to purchase and rent additional equipment to eliminate a garbage pile-up all over the village during the last week.

Asst. Village Mgr. John Coste told the Herald that Laseke, during a meeting Friday, bowed to the village's demands to obtain additional trucks to speed garbage collections.

Four trucks, rented from a Chicago competitor, are now in action around the village. A Laseke official said the scavenger service should be back on schedule as early as tomorrow.

The crisis, caused primarily by the failure of trucks and a sudden loss of manpower, brought at least 60 irate phone calls to the municipal building yesterday alone.

IT ALL BEGAN early last week, when pickups began to lag behind schedule. It followed the breakdown of several Laseke trucks, as well as the failure of eight men to report for work, thus cutting into the firm's collection schedule.

By Wednesday, calls started to come into the village hall. By Friday, the landfill was open late in the evening and Laseke had the additional trucks in operation.

As the phones rang and rang yesterday, Laseke officials said they would be back on schedule later this week.

"We're doing the best we can. That's all we can do," said H. W. Laseke. He said college students, eager to make spending money, were available this week and would fill in the gaps in Laseke's ranks.

Henry Laseke, vice president of the company, said the firm has rented the four trucks, and it will keep the trucks as long as possible. Delivery on the four new trucks is six or seven months away, he said.

H. W. LASEKE blamed part of the trouble on the Teamsters, whom he said made his company pay triple time on holidays. His company couldn't afford to pay triple time, hence, no holiday pickups, he said.

In the village hall, Coste emphasized firmly that once Laseke gets back on schedule, the firm won't be allowed to slip back again.

He recommended that homeowners with an excessive amount of garbage use plastic bags to seal in the odors and dampness. Since the pickup schedule will be somewhat confused until later this week, he urged homeowners to place cans in the usual places for pickup, preferably not inside a closed garage door.

Meanwhile, officials in the health department patiently answered call after call. However, by yesterday afternoon, they reported the tide of calls had subsided somewhat. They anticipate more calls, however, until Laseke returns to schedule late this week.

House OKs Sex Bill

SPRINGFIELD — The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill giving parents the right to remove their children from a sex education class in elementary schools and to review all course materials before sanctioning attendance.

The bill states that a parent, upon written approval, may have his child removed from such a class.

Demos Balk On Tax

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois House Democrats yesterday decided not to support the Republican state income tax plan unless it is amended to tax corporations at least twice as much as individuals.

The surprise announcement came after an hour-long caucus during which Democrats sent a five-man delegation to confer with Governor Ogilvie. In proposing a straight 3 per cent income tax, Republicans have argued it would be unconstitutional to tax corporations and individuals at different rates.

Powell Unseating Hit

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court collided again with Congress yesterday, declaring the House of Representatives had no authority to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from his seat two years ago.

The ruling agreed with Powell's argument that the House and Senate can refuse admission to an elected member only if he fails to meet Constitutional requirements of age, residency and citizenship.

Curfew Set In Cairo

CAIRO — Mayor Lee Stenzel yesterday ordered a curfew for citizens in this racially troubled town where police and firemen were driven from a $325,000 warehouse blaze Sunday night by a hail of sniper fire.

No one was injured during the Sunday fire and shooting. The river town of 8,000 about half Negro, which has been the scene of continuing racial violence.

Rockets Hit Saigon

SAIGON — Communist gunners fired rockets into Saigon early today. Military sources said one missile hit a school building about 100 yards from the U.S. Embassy and destroyed a classroom, but first reports mentioned no casualties.

Monday, Thailand's Black Panther Division hurried back Viet Cong wave attacks near Saigon and reported killing 212 guerrillas in five hours of hand-to-hand combat supported by American gunners.

Deck Officers Strike

NEW YORK — A deck officers' strike, which could affect 750 U.S. flag vessels including luxury liners, hit East and Gulf Coast ports yesterday, just after most had returned to normal after the longest maritime strike in their history.

In Washington, officials announced that a special mediation panel has been set up in an attempt to bring a quick end to the strike.

LATER THIS WEEK — perhaps as early as tomorrow — Laseke's scavengers will have removed such unpleasant collections of trash. The delay in trash and garbage pickups has been caused by a loss of manpower and equipment, according to company officials.

Art Is Colorful

by GERRY DEZONNA

With curly red hair and a Dan Rowan mustache to match, he sat in the shade of a large, neon-green sign munching a cold roast beef sandwich and washing it down with lemonade.

The sign read "Oil paintings $7.95 and up. Must sell. Hungry artist." Large contemporary oil paintings were perched on easels around an enclosed trailer that was bulging with paints, frames, and more paintings.

Parked in the corner of a Sinclair gas station at Mount Prospect Road and Northwest Highway, the art stand was as colorful as a gypsy camp, but business was slow. A few curious housewives wandered over from Cumberland Plaza, and an occasional businessman stopped while he bought gas.

"I've been here for three days now, and a lot of people stop, but only to look. I've been thinking about moving on to Arlington Heights. There's not enough foot traffic here. An artist could really starve on this corner," he said.

CLIFF'S FROM Old Town, and he's got a plan to sell paintings. "Everyone likes paintings but not everyone likes to pay high art prices, so I appeal to the middle-income pocketbook. I think today people want large paintings, the massive look to go with the trend in Spanish furnishings.

"So seven friends of mine and I have decided to sell the people what they want — an attractive painting already framed for an equally attractive price."

Cliff, born in the Bronx but raised along the New England coast, has a college degree in business, and although he paints, he is primarily the business manager for the group. "I had a good job as a salesman for a New York company. I was the Chicago representative and the typical 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. businessman living in a high rise and taking my short business trips.

"SO ABOUT three years ago, I decided I needed a change and a job that would give me an opportunity to do some skiing. I'm an avid ski enthusiast, and I spend my winters in Aspen."

He sells paintings, colorful oils depicting harbor scenes and old whaling vessels, for $25. The selection also includes big-city street scenes and contemporary still-lives done in hues of blue, green, and orange. The smaller paintings cost about $10, while a few of the "super-large" ones sell for $50.

He had one portrait on display of a naked woman. "The Mount Prospect police paid me a visit this morning. They asked me to put the painting in the trailer because some woman had called to tell them her children were playing outside, and the painting wasn't a good influence on her little children. So far, this has been the only exciting experience on this corner."

"We've got art stands in several locations on the south side of Chicago, and our stands in Skokie and Dempster are doing well. The Sinclair representative in this area has given us permission to set up our stands in gas station lots.

"MY BUSINESS increases his business. You'd be surprised at how many people buy gas, so they have an excuse to browse through the paintings."

Cliff isn't a hippie or an Old Town beatnik, but an enterprising businessman with an idea. "I've been around a lot doing almost everything. I tried three universities before I finally got my degree. I traveled all over the country with the Coast Guard, and now I'm trying my luck at business. Something other than the 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. drag."

"I enjoy what I'm doing now, but I'm not sure what I'll be doing next year. Perhaps I'll still be in the painting business. One thing I know for sure is that I'll be in Aspen for the winter. I love the slopes."

Cowen Wins Post

With about 50 of their number voting, Republican precinct captains in Wheeling Township last night insured Richard Cowen's appointment as township committeeman.

Endorsed by the Republican Executive Committee in the township on June 7, Cowen predictably won the support of the precinct captains by acclamation.

Calling on those present to understand, communicate and "above all, to respect each other's point of view," Cowen said the Republican Party in Wheeling Township would be open to all.

He emphasized that the township is one of the fastest growing areas in the state and that he hoped to attract residents new to the area and new to politics into the organization.

HE ALSO SAID that within the next four to six months he would ask more individuals to assume positions of leadership and responsibility in the township Republican Party.

Cowen's endorsement was the first order of business at last night's session at South Junior High School in Arlington Heights. The result of the vote will be forwarded to Edmund Kucharski, head of the Cook County Republican Central Committee, who will make the appointment official.

Cowen, 34, will replace State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman as township committeeman. When Schlickman was a candidate for the GOP nomination for the 13th Congressional District seat on June 2, he announced his intention to resign as committeeman.

A Chicago attorney, Cowen is past chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans and served this spring as head of the citizens committee for the library referendum in Arlington Heights. He has lived in the village for 7½ years and was selected Outstanding Young Man of the Year by the Jaycees in 1967.

Tenure of office for the new committeeman will end in the spring of next year when an election is slated which is open to all registered township Republicans.

FACING TOWNSHIP Republicans this summer is intense campaign work for Schlickman, whose name will be on the ballot in the October primary. The 13th Congressional District seat sought by Schlickman was vacated when Donald Rumsfeld resigned to serve as head of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Social events planned include an Aug. 21 picnic and a dinner-dance scheduled for Oct. 4 at Arlington Park. Dance chairman Dwight Walton said last month that he, Cowen and Schlickman would attempt to snare Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to the annual Wheeling Township event.

Radar Clarity Attempted

Two trustees of the Arlington Heights Village Board last night attempted to clarify their position on the weather radar controversy, currently under consideration by the public safety committee of that board.

Trustee Charles Bennett, as the minutes of the last meeting were considered for approval, charged that a minority report by Trustee George Burlingame should be deleted from the record.

Burlingame, after the safety committee last month rejected the installation of radar, submitted a minority report charging, among other things, that the committee (including Bennett and William Griffin) had disregarded the testimony of certain experts who attended.

Bennett commented that he wanted it made clear that he was not necessarily opposed to radar, as he felt Burlingame's report had inferred. Griffin stressed that he, too, was open minded on the question.

HOWEVER, THE ATTEMPT to change the minutes was rejected, 4 to 2. Village Pres. John Walsh then suggested that concerned trustees submit written remarks at a later time.

In other action the board approved drafting of an ordinance to create a commission to start work on a village cultural center.

The village, over a year ago, acquired property for a center. Enabling legislation presently on Gov. Richard Ogilvie's desk will supply the necessary means of creating a center.

The board also approved two resolutions of land condemnation, to acquire property for a north side fire station at Arlington Heights Road and Arthur and for a parking lot at Arlington Heights Road and Sigwalt Street.

Also, the resignation of Jack Pittas, member of the Plan Commission, was accepted. Pittas, a one-year veteran of the commission, is moving to Philadelphia. No replacement was named.

A HIKE IN FARES requested by the City Transportation Co. for taxis in Arlington Heights was announced, and the matter was referred to the finance committee of the board.

Finally, Roy Bressler, who retired this spring as a trustee, was given a resolution of commendation for his service to Arlington Heights. Bressler is now serving on the Arlington Heights Park Board.

"MUST SELL. Artist Hungry." Stenciled on a large, neon-green sign, those words attract the curious to a street corner art stand in Mount Prospect. Paddock staff writer Judy Covelli browses at the collection of oil paintings which range in price from $7.95 to $50.

Dist. 59 Budgets Deficit

School Dist. 59 will apparently operate in the red for the 1969-70 school year.

The deficit is an apparent one, stemming from $1,500,000 which will be available to the board of education July 1.

A tentative budget for the district submitted to the school board last night places the total revenue of the district at $10,872,331. Operating costs are listed at $12,485,391.

Despite the apparent $2 million deficit disclosed in the district's budget, the financial statement does not include the funds the district will borrow through tax anticipation warrants. A balanced budget must be sent to the state Office of Education, meaning that additional anticipation warrants must be secured.

The budget presented last night to the board of education members is the tentative budget of the district and is open to change at the direction of the board members. Public hearings on the budget will be held before final action is taken.

ALTHOUGH THE Dist. 59 budget is a tentative one, the district will undoubtedly face an increase in its expenditures.

High on the list of expenditures in the district is $4.5 million set aside for salaries for elementary teachers. The total amount reflects the pay increase agreed to by teachers and the board and recently negotiated by both parties.

Should the proposed budget in excess of $12 million be approved by the school board, it will mark a new high reached by the district. In 1963, Dist. 59 discussed a tentative budget of $2 million, or one-sixth of the district's expected expenditures five years later.

The following year, then-assistant superintendent William Mann submitted a budget of $5 million. At the same time, the district was facing an enrollment increase of 24 per cent.

In 1965, with the budget still increasing in the district each year, Mann told members of the school board that the district could stop issuing tax anticipation warrants in the 1966-67 school year. Mann at that time said expected increases in the assessment of the district would overcome the yearly increase in costs.

FOUR YEARS later, that prediction remains invalid. Dist. 59 is still issuing tax anticipation warrants, and at a rate higher than ever before.

By 1966, the budget for the district rose to $4.1 million, with half of that amount going for teachers' salaries.

By 1967, the budget rose to $7 million and in 1968 the expected expenditures were boosted over the $8 million mark.

This year's increase, although not yet formally approved, would bring to the district its highest amount of expenditures.

A breakdown of the expenditures requested by the district shows $7,567,942 for education fund, $767,407 for the building fund, $1,209,316 for bond and interest, $342,300 for transportation, $134,300 for municipal retirement, $2,370,000 for site and construction and $94,326 for capital improvements.

Interest Up, But Too Late?

by JOAN KLUSMANN

Illinois legislators increased the maximum interest rate for library bonds this month but the action may be too late to be of immediate help to the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

William Inman, vice president of John Nuveen & Co., retained by the village to manage the $500,000 bond sale for books approved by voters in May, said yesterday that if the library could take advantage of the new 6 per cent rate now, there would be a fairly good chance for the sale.

However, by the time trustees could schedule another referendum to seek approval of the increased interest rate, the spiraling bond market might well go beyond 6 per cent, Inman said.

THE INTEREST RATE on the May ballot read 5 per cent, at that time the legal maximum for library bonds. The bonds would mature over a 10-year period and the library had 13 to 14 months to complete the sale.

Library Atty. R. Marlin Smith informed the board last week that the interest legislation was successful, but trustees did not discuss the immediate possibility of another referendum.

School Dist. 25, allowed to go to 6 per cent, squeaked through last week when board members accepted a 5.949 per cent bid on school bonds. The other two bids received by the board of education quoted 6 per cent and demanded that the district pay for printing and attorney fees.

Inman said that bonds in the amount of $175,000,000 were offered on the market last week and bids received on only $84,000,000.

BOTH INMAN AND Smith, are forging ahead with preparation of detailed papers necessary for sale of the bonds so action can be taken if the market takes an unexpected favorable turn.

The library board estimates that it will take four years and over $650,000 to bring the library to the minimum "two-book per capita" standard recommended by the American Library Association.

In addition to the $500,000 in bonds, trustees hope it will be possible to use excess funds from the library construction fund for book acquisitions. As soon as the board receives an architect's certificate testifying that all necessary work on the library building is completed and an audit is performed, trustees will decide on the fate of the surplus funds.

Wings Received By Lt. Schalin

Second Lt. James G. Schalin has received the silver wings of an Army aviator. Schalin received his wings at the May 29 graduation of the Army Aviation School at Hunter Army Airfield, Ga. Schalin, 23, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morry G. Schalin of 836 N. Dunton Ave. in Arlington Heights.

During the 16-week course he was taught fire-fighting techniques and tactical maneuvers for helicopters supporting ground troops in combat. In addition, he received instruction in helicopter maintenance and survival techniques.

Second Lt. Schalin was a member of the Reserve Officer's Training Corps program at the University of Illinois in Champaign.

Receive Degrees At Marymount

Two Mount Prospect co-eds have received degrees from Marymount College, Tarrytown, N.Y.

Donna Marie Dorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Dorn of 101 W. Longquist Parkway, received a B.A. degree.

She plans to work in customer relations for a major airline. While at Marymount she was a member of the house and 100th Night committees.

Penelope Ann Dunk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Dunk of 817 S. Emerson, received a B.A. degree.

An honor student, Miss Dunk was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. She was a member of the tutoring program, social service club, secretary of the student council and class secretary.

Student Named Editor Of College Magazine

Jonathan Stull, an Arlington Heights resident, is the editor of Genesis, the literary magazine of Upper Iowa College in Fayette.

"This is the first effort at a literary magazine," Stull said, "and also the first time many of the students have had anything published. We thought the title Genesis was appropriate. We selected the contents to provide a variety of literature and art — from humor to macabre."

Stull is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stull of 640 S. Belmont.

Sophomore To Receive Senior Piano Diploma

A Prospect High School sophomore who won the first prize in the Chicago Tribune Festival at the age of eight, will be awarded her senior diploma in piano Thursday night at the Berning School of Music.

Patti Schummer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schummer of Mount Prospect, is a student of Harry M. Berning, head of the music school.

She will also be heard at Thursday night's festivities in duo piano playing the Valse Opus 15 by Arensky in Hanson Hall, North Park College.

Patti also plays oboe in Prospect's symphonic band.

Geological Society Will Hold Meeting

The Des Plaines alley Geological Society will meet June 19 at 8 p.m. at the West Park Field House, 651 Wolf Road, Des Plaines.

Robert Simonson, a geology instructor at Maine East High School, will present a slide lecture on mineral identification by color and techniques used in photographing minerals.

See School Plans

The new Rolling Meadows High School has lost the cross-shaped look shown to High School Dist. 214 administrators before the $91 million referendum was approved earlier this spring.

Architects Orput, Orput & Associates of Skokie gave the school board a preview of the proposed new plans last night. The drawings show a far more compact building, intended to give major emphasis to the new trend of using highly equipped instructional materials centers.

The school board saw slides for three floors of the new building, including a little theater capable of being divided into three separate meeting rooms, a student commons area that can be used as a cafeteria, an informal study area or cleared for dances, and a second student dining area more enclosed.

Assistant Supt. Roderick McLennan said this may be the first high school building in the country designed along a divisional plan. Blocks of classrooms, teachers' rooms and a resource center will house separate divisions of fine arts and the humanities, science and mathematics, foreign languages and social studies, and practical arts.

THE NEWEST IDEA in the building will be a two-story instructional materials center. Oldsters may call it the library, but it will come equipped with film strip machines, slide viewers, small projectors, recording equipment and a wide variety of visual aids in addition to books.

The instructional materials center will be two-story, the first floor opening out onto the English division block and the administrative offices. On the second floor, the center will be linked to mathematics and science division and the division of foreign language and social studies.

Many of the classrooms will be triangular-shaped with moveable walls. "We are trying to give you as much future flexibility as possible," Alden Orput told the board.

The school plans make provision for an outdoor pool to be constructed at some future date on the south side of the building on the other side of the school from Central Road.

THERE WILL BE parking lots at the rear of the building as well as in front. The little theater will also be designed to feed in from two levels, and the gymnasium will be two stories tall.

Architects said they have tried to design the building so it can be used by as many different groups as wish. They pointed out that the instructional materials center — the updated library — can be opened to students at night without giving them access to the entire building.

Police Organizers Moved

by BARRY SIGALE

Four top members of the Cook County Police Association, including the president of the organization, have been transferred from their positions with the sheriff's police to other tasks in the county in the last four days.

A general order was released telling of the transfer of the men, plus six other policemen, in a move termed "strictly routine" by John Kytner, chief of the Cook County Police Department.

"We are taking this action to improve the supervision of our division," said Kytner. "We are reshaping our department for the betterment of supervision, to improve it and beef it up."

INCLUDED IN THE transfer was Sgt. John Flood of Wheeling, president of the association which represents 85 per cent of Cook County policemen.

Flood, who was transferred to clerical duties in Chicago, is a veteran of more than 10 years of police work. He was in charge of the detective division for one year and the criminal extradition for the felony warrant section for all of Cook County for another year.

He was a patrolman for two years and a patrol sergeant for the last six years.

"Three members from the executive board of our organization, one South Side chapter president and a secretary-treasurer have been transferred in the last month," said Flood.

"WHEN WE FORMED the association we knew we had to bear heartache and hardship. But we in the association will not be pushed down or lose our resolve. Our organization is too strong at this time. Our membership is totally behind us. They can transfer men, but they can't transfer the ideas of men."

"Whatever happens to us," Flood continued, "can happen to any of our membership. We will continue to fight for dignity and self respect."

Oas To Be Installed As Bethel Commander

Harry T. Oas, of 905 W. Elm St., Arlington Heights, will be installed Saturday as Eminent Commander of Bethel Commandery No. 36 Knights Templar.

Oas will be installed by David E. Wernersstrand, past grand commander in Illinois, at 8 p.m. in the Elgin Masonic Temple.

OTHER NORTHWEST suburban residents who will be installed include Robert Hoeckerberg, Olav Larsen, William Naeher, Henry Wallace, Charles Neumann, all of Arlington Heights.

Palatine residents to be installed include Richard Salisbury, Charles Smith, and Charles Rowell.

Crash Injures Henry

William T. Henry, 22, of 424 S. Prindle in Arlington Heights received minor cuts and bruises when his motorcycle collided with a car driven by Patricia Galivan, Schaumburg, at the intersection of Kensington Road and Prospect Manor Sunday.

Mrs. Galivan failed to yield the right-of-way, according to police.
